22% undecided on unit vote

A Herald staff report

Elk Grove Township voters are agonizing over the decision they must make Saturday on the unit school district.

A hard-fought battle between forces favoring the unit district and those unopposed to it has left many voters uncertain, a Herald survey taken Tuesday shows.

Herald staff members surveyed the attitudes of 305 residents, using random telephone sampling techniques.

The survey showed 22 per cent had not decided how they would vote.

(Major advertising campaigns by pro-and anti-unit forces aimed at swaying uncertain voters, were launched after the survey had been completed.)

THE UNDECIDED segment of potential voters — 22 per cent — nearly matched the number who said they would vote against the unit district — 22.6 per cent. Eighteen per cent said they will vote yes on the referendum.

Among the 41 per cent who had decided the issue, 55 per cent said they would vote no and 45 per cent planned to vote yes.

Approval of the referendum would create a new school district combining the 21 elementary and junior high schools of Dist. 59 with two high schools currently in Dist. 214 — Elk Grove in Elk Grove Village and Forest View in Arlington Heights.

Opposition to the unit district appears strongest in the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect sections of Dist. 59, and support for the referendum appears strongest in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines.

Slightly more than one-third of the voters surveyed in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect said they intend to vote no. Of those surveyed in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, about 17.5 per cent said they will vote no.

ONLY 3 PER CENT of the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect voters surveyed said they will support the unit district compared with about 24 per cent of those surveyed in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines.

Indecision appears highest in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village, where about one-fourth of those surveyed said they still don't know how they will vote Saturday.

Many of these undecided voters said they have received so much information both pro and con that they are not sure what to believe.

Only about 10 of the 305 Dist. 59 residents surveyed said they were unaware of the unit district issue.

Although awareness of the issue is high, about one-third of those surveyed said they do not intend to vote Saturday and another 5 per cent said they aren't sure whether they will vote.

THE LIGHTEST voter turnout can be expected in the Mount Prospect and Des Plaines sections of the district, according to The Herald's survey results.

Only residents of Dist. 59 will be eligible to vote in Saturday's referendum.

Residents who are not registered voters may register any time up to and including Saturday and still vote in the Sat. referendum. Those who are already registered voters do not have to register again for the school elections.

A special voter registration is being conducted today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

Tour to shed light on street safety

A bus tour of streetlights in Arlington Heights has been scheduled by members of the plan commission to decide whether sodium-vapor, lantern-like fixtures should be used throughout the village.

Plan commission members decided to arrange the tour, tentatively scheduled for Thursday, April 14. It is expected to take two hours, after hearing a two-hour presentation on lighting systems by William Bachem, village electrical engineer.

Bachem recommended that sodium-vapor lights in traditional fixtures set on 22-foot poles with 6-foot overhanging arms be used on residential streets.

HE SAID sodium-vapor lighting could save the village as much as 50 per cent on its electrical bill and conserve energy.

"In the energy-conscious world we live in let's save what we can in electricity and money by using sodium-vapor," Bachem said.

The yellow-tinted sodium-vapor lights have been opposed by some residents who contend they damage plants and are aesthetically offensive.

DESPITE THAT, commission members recommended and the village board approved, after a bus tour two years ago, a plan to use sodium-vapor lights on major and secondary arterial streets and in the central business district.

The plan commission has been trying for more than two years to formulate a recommendation to the village board for streetlighting standards.

During that time, residents of some subdivisions, including Scarsdale, have said they want to select the lights for their area and have rejected village proposals.

Scarsdale residents said they want coachlight lanterns installed on 15-foot poles with no overhanging arms.

BACHEM SAID that proposal is unsatisfactory because the lights will be obscured by trees and would not provide enough light.

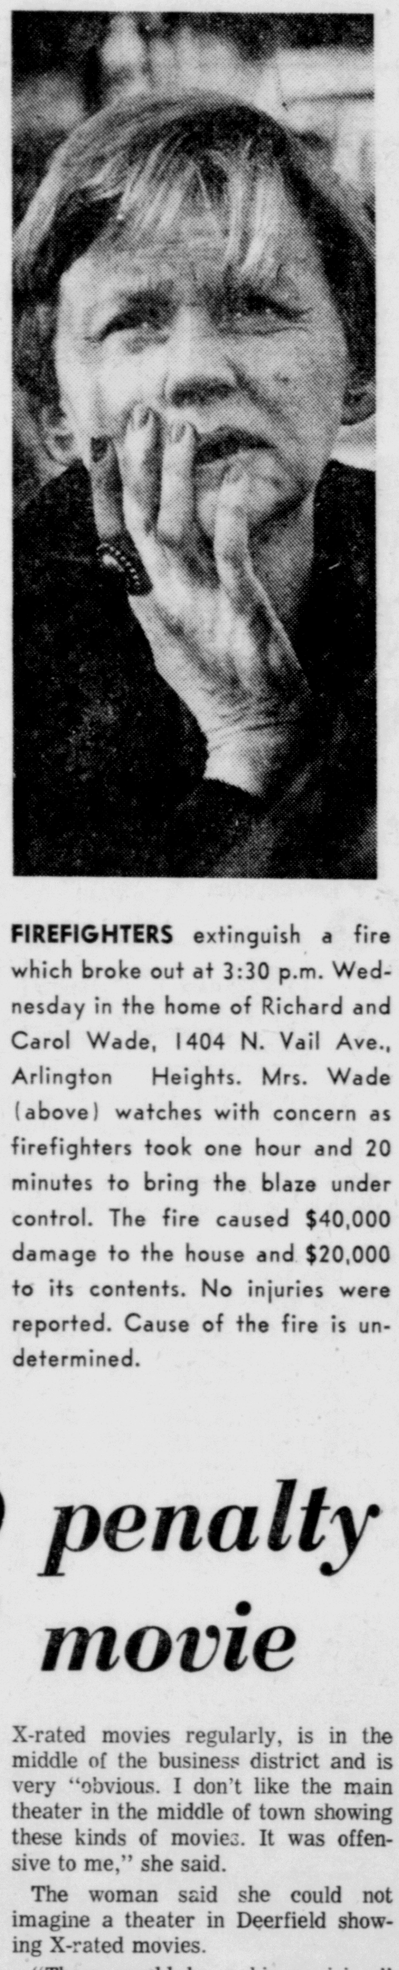
"The worst thing I could have on my conscience would be if I recommended that luminaire at 15 feet for Scarsdale and a Scarsdale child got hit by a car because he couldn't be seen," Bachem said.

Plan commission member Wayne Walter, who said he lives in Scarsdale, agreed.

"Scarsdale is so dark that when children play at dusk they can't be seen by drivers. As far as I'm concerned my children are more important than the height of a pole."

Bachem recommended that aesthetically pleasing fixtures be used but that higher poles and overhanging arms are necessary.

"There have been a lot of heartaches and a lot of emotionalism over this and I don't tend to stir up any more than I have to," he said. "But we need lights that are best for the whole village."



FIREFIGHTERS extinguish a fire which broke out at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the home of Richard and Carol Wade, 1404 N. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights. Mrs. Wade (above) watches with concern as firefighters took one hour and 20 minutes to bring the blaze under control. The fire caused $40,000 damage to the house and $20,000 to its contents. No injuries were reported. Cause of the fire is undetermined.

Disease prevention poor here

A Cook County Public Health Dept. official Wednesday said the level of childhood immunization in the Northwest suburbs is "amazingly bad."

"We find the Northwest suburbs amazingly bad considering the socio-economic condition up there," said Dr. Colette Rasmussen. "It's not that they are worse than anyone else. It's just that we would expect them to be better."

Reacting to the expected announcement today of a new national immunization program, Rasmussen said the failure of some parents to immunize their children has become "a major problem."

She said, however, she could not comment on the proposed program because details have not been announced. The county health department already offers free immunizations.

THE NEW federal program will seek by the fall of 1979 to immunize the estimated 20 million children now without complete protection from such diseases as polio, tetanus, and measles.

President Carter is scheduled to outline the new immunization program today — World Health Day.

Rasmussen blamed the problem on the increased mobility of American society, saying it is difficult for people to keep accurate records on their children as they move from town to town and from school to school.

"It's this mobile American population," she said. "Somehow immunization kind of slips. They lose records or the old doctor somehow didn't finish up the job."

DR. MARVIN GOLDMAN, an Arlington Heights pediatrician, agrees with Rasmussen. He said there are pockets of children in the area who have not been immunized because their families move often.

Lavergne Lutiger, school nurse for Arlington Heights Dist. 25, however, said she has found most children are up to date on their immunizations. "I think most parents are very conscientious. I don't really think we have a problem."

County health department officials said measles is the most prevalent preventable childhood disease in the Northwest suburbs, although there have been some cases of the German measles as well.

The seven childhood diseases which are preventable through immunization are polio, measles, German measles, mumps, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare Sec. Joseph A. Califano Jr. announced the federal program Wednesday. He said people have forgotten the horrors of the childhood diseases because they are now preventable.

Family pays $500 penalty to protest X-rated movie

by RUTH MUGALIAN

The family from Deerfield had just put $500 down on a $91,500 home in Rolling Meadows and decided to take in a movie in their new hometown.

But after learning that the feature was something on the order of "Schoolgirl Hitchhikers" or "Sensuous Teen-agers," they not only canceled their trip to the theater, but canceled their plans to move to Rolling Meadows.

"That isn't the only reason we changed our minds," the wife said. "But it indicated something to us. If a community accepts it, it's not a place we'd want to live.

THE CHOICE did not come cheaply. The family immediately lost the $500 in earnest money and risked being sued for as much as the entire purchase price of the Plum Grove Countryside home.

The home was sold this week for an undisclosed amount. Phillip Mizoch, attorney for the home's seller, said if the new deal was for less than the original deal the Deerfield family would be sued for the difference.

"They have been advised that if we couldn't sell it, we'd file a suit compelling them to buy it," Mizoch said.

"We had a heck of a lot at stake," the woman said. "The whole thing is really very embarrassing and I didn't tell anyone about it for about a week because it was so humiliating.

THE WIFE, who asked to remain anonymous, said she and her family spent a Sunday in Rolling Meadows and called the chamber of commerce to learn more about the city. She learned that the Meadows Theatre, 3265 Kirchoff Rd., which shows X-rated movies regularly, is in the middle of the business district and is very "obvious. I don't like the main theater in the middle of town showing these kinds of movies. It was offensive to me," she said.

The woman said she could not imagine a theater in Deerfield showing X-rated movies.

"There would be a big uprising," she said, adding that she would be one of the protesters.

Although she was embarrassed by the incident, the woman said she wanted to tell her story because of her concern about X-rated theaters.

"My first instinct was to say no comment, but maybe it will do some good to stir something up. I think the only way they could get rid of that theater is for the people to boycott it."

Home fire causes $60,000 damage

Fire caused about $40,000 in structural damage and $20,000 contents damage Wednesday to the home of Richard and Carol Wade, 1404 N. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights. The blaze broke out in the basement about 3:30 p.m. No injuries were reported in the fire, which took Arlington Heights firefighters nearly an hour and a half to extinguish. Most of the contents damage was caused by smoke, fire officials said. No cause for the fire was released Wednesday night.

Dist. 63 chief Gogo resigns

G. Allan Gogo has resigned as superintendent of East Maine Township Dist. 63. Gogo's resignation, effective June 30, was submitted to the board of education this week. He said he has decided to accept a position as superintendent of Lake Park High School Dist. 108, Roselle. Gogo said Wednesday he decided to leave Dist. 63 because "in terms of time and energy, I felt I wasn't getting the kind of return that justified my effort. It's very important for me to feel I'm successful on the job and I'm making progress. That wasn't the situation here." Gogo's Dist. 108 salary was not disclosed. He makes $40,000 a year in Dist. 63.

Robbery suspect court date set

Franz Heck, a former Mount Prospect janitor arrested in connection with nearly 50 armed robberies in the Northwest suburbs and Chicago, will appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court May 12 on three counts of armed robbery in Mount Prospect. Heck, 28, of 5300 N. Winchester, Chicago, was arrested Feb. 3 by Chicago police after Mount Prospect investigators funneled key information to them within minutes after Heck allegedly robbed a store in Berwyn. The suspect was picked up by police while carrying a gun believed to have been used in the robberies. Heck is charged with robbing the Plaza Cleaners, 1143 Mount Prospect Plaza, Dec. 18 and Jan. 26, and the Clark Gas Station, 698 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, Feb. 16. Associate Judge Jerome T. Burke of the Cook County Circuit Court will hear motions from the defense attorney Victor Ciardelli to suppress evidence found in Heck's car or house.

Atom bombs easily built, report warns

Terrorists could construct powerful nuclear explosives "within days" if nuclear fuels fell in their hands, a report presented Wednesday to President Carter says.

The report warns that terrorists could build an atomic bomb, as powerful as the one dropped in 1945 on Hiroshima, using stolen nuclear material, instructions and a workshop.

"I think the conclusion that comes through the strongest in the report is that to prevent nuclear proliferation it will be necessary to scrap the breeder reactor and to halt the processing of plutonium from spent nuclear fuel," said David Comey of Chicago, a member of the Nuclear Proliferation and Safeguards Panel that compiled the lengthy report.

BILL HARRAH, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison Co., Chicago, said the utility continues to hope that the nuclear breeder reactor program will be included in President Carter's major energy policy statement later this month and that the reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel will come about "sooner rather than later." A breeder reactor produces more fuel than it uses.

Carter plans to announce his nuclear nonprofliferation policy today.

The federal study was commissioned by U.S. Senators Charles Percy, R-Ill., Abraham Lincoln Ribicoff, D-Conn., and John Glenn, D-Ohio.

"There are no single or all-purpose solutions, no short cuts," the report said, noting that the spread of atomic weapons may be controlled through cooperative international agreements.

THE MAJOR THREATS are reactor fuel enrichment and reprocessing plants and the fast breeder reactor, which produces plutonium, the report said.

"Perhaps a dozen well-trained and very competent persons with experience in several fields of science and engineering" could develop nuclear weapons in about two years at a cost of "a few tens of millions of dollars," it said.

Seizure of a plant or associated plutonium development program, could result "in the fabrication of nuclear explosives within days," the report said.

Comey, who also serves as executive director of the Citizens for a Better Environment organization in Chicago, said he concluded that the reprocessing of nuclear fuel and the breeder reactor program are not economically viable.

Morris, Ill., and Barnwell, S.C., are sites for previously proposed nuclear fuel reprocessing systems, Comey said. Spent nuclear materials already are stored at Morris, he said.

Comey believes that the elimination of nuclear power "makes the most sense, economically and environmentally." Conservation and solar energy can take up the slack, he said.

'Too much public rhetoric'

Optimism may hurt arms talks: Ford

GERALD FORD

by MELANIE DEEDS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Former President Ford said Wednesday he fears "overoptimism and possible miscalculation" by the Carter Administration in arms negotiations with the Soviet Union may have serious repercussions in relations between the two countries.

"I believe the administration went to Moscow too optimistic," Ford said during a question and answer session with a University of Michigan political science class. "There was too much public rhetoric before and after.

"There may have been some miscalculation on our part about what might happen. I hope the either perceived or real relationship is only a temporary one."

FORD'S COMMENT on the SALT talks — his strongest criticism of the administration to date — came after a short lecture to students on the campus where the former chief executive is spending four days as a professor.

The hourlong session was the only one of 10 classes Ford is scheduled to teach this week that was open for press coverage.

Ford said he felt "very deeply" that a new SALT agreement was vitally important, adding that he closely watched preparations for the U.S.-Soviet meetings.

"I hope the administration has not put themselves in a position where they cannot reach agreement," Ford said. "I hope they aren't frozen into a position.

"Their over-optimism, their rhetoric and the possible miscalculation might have serious repercussions in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States. I hope this isn't true."

FORD SAID IT WAS premature to try to measure the impact of President Carter's recent statements on human rights.

"When I was president, a number of protests were made to a number of nations, but done from the presidency to the head of state," he said. "The technique we used was simply different than Carter's.

"The technique is new. It may be productive, it may be harmful. Time will tell whether the new tactic is a better one."

Ford defended his record on civil rights during his 25 years in Congress when a student asked him to explain Carter's strong support among black voters in the November election.

FORD SAID he thought his record in civil rights legislation "somehow wasn't conveyed" to black voters.

"I do regret that we didn't do better," he said. "We just didn't communicate it (the record)."

About 300 students attended the class in Rackham Auditorium and applauded the guest professor at both the start and finish of the session.

Outside the building, about 20 students gathered to protest his appearance. The demonstration was conducted by members of the Spartacus Youth League who carried signs reading "Send Ford and Nixon to Hanoi." It was the first since Ford's visit began Tuesday.

Many homeless, 19 killed as flood waters recede

by United Press International

Floodwaters surging to century high marks left scores of Appalachian communities ravaged Wednesday. The runaway waters trapped and drowned victims as they tried to flee and inflicted tens of millions of dollars' damage.

The rampage of mountain rivers and streams, and the torrential rains that fed them, were blamed for at least 19 deaths. They drove about 23,000 persons from their homes in six southeastern states.

The flood toll, coupled with deaths of 69 persons in the crash of a hail-battered Southern Airlines jetliner and 22 persons in tornadoes that swept the South, pushed the three-day count of weather-connected fatalities to 110.

SOME RESIDENTS were beginning to return to their homes Wednesday. Many found devastation waiting for them.

Bob Ryan, a Williamson, W. Va., firefighter, said, "Anything less than two stories was completely under water. Cars are on top of cars, houses are upside down, the total business district has been wiped out."

Homes, business and streets in Williamson were filled with mud and debris. Huge chunks of street and sidewalk had been tossed about by the Tug Fork River floodwaters. Electricity was dead and food and drinking water were in short supply.

The police chief of Haysi, Va., reported, "Only two buildings are considered sound in the entire town." Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin appealed for federal disaster relief. He said a conservative estimate was that the state suffered about $25 million damage to public and private property and $15 million to roads and bridges.

ALTHOUGH FLOODWATERS were falling back in some areas, communities remained in peril. The Cumberland River aimed a crest 16 feet above flood stage at Williamsburg, Ky., which has no flood wall. Sandbagging and evacuation began.

North of the flood belt, it was snowing.

Northeast Ohio got eight to 12 inches of snow and up to five inches was reported across northwest Pennsylvania. A four-minute snow shower swirled above New York City.

More than 16,000 persons were out of their homes in West Virginia, including 13,000 in Mingo County alone. Martial law was declared in Harlan County, Ky., and National Guardsmen patrolled the streets to prevent looting.

PATIENTS AT the Methodist Hospital in Pikeville, Ky., had to be moved out when floodwaters reached the second floor. Furious sandbagging atop a floodwall saved the downtown section of Barbourville, Ky., from inundation by the raging Cumberland River.

A National Weather Service official said the predicted crest at Williamsburg, Ky. early Thursday "should get most of the city, except Cumberland College which is on a hill."

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll, making his second helicopter tour in two days, said the situation was "worse than I expected. I noticed homes off their foundations and cars in the water." He declared 10 counties disaster areas.

Gov. Jay Rockefeller asked the West Virginia Legislature for an emergency appropriation to help flood-stricken counties in the state's southern hill country.

IN ADDITION to the homeless in West Virginia, about 5,000 had been driven to higher ground in Kentucky, 1,300 in Virginia, at least 600 in Tennessee, and scores in Georgia and Alabama.

Sneedville, Tenn., was isolated — helicopters the only means in and out. As floodwaters drove lowland residents into the hills downstream, luckless residents upstream began returning to their mud-plastered homes. They faced a multitude of problems.

Fleets of helicopters shuttled back and forth above the greening hills of Appalachia, looking for still-marooned victims, airlifting medicine, food and water supplies.

National Guardsmen and West Virginia state police managed to reach several Mingo County communities that had been isolated since Monday. Heavy trucks rumbled into the towns of Matewan and Williamson with drinking water, food, medicine and blankets.

"We searched the whole area and did a helicopter run and we didn't discover any people still stranded," said state police Lt. R. E. Stanley.

Property damage in the county was estimated in the millions of dollars. Some 23,000 telephone subscribers were without service.

2 of 5 railroads show profit in '76

Two commuter railroads made profits in fiscal 1976 with the aid of Regional Transportation Authority purchase-of-service agreements, but one could do no better than break even and two still showed a loss, the RTA said Wednesday in its annual report. The RTA paid more than $28.7 million in subsidies to the five major lines, compensating for operating losses of nearly $27.1 million. The Chicago Transit Authority received $103,000 in subsidies, and the suburban bus lines obtained over $7 million from the RTA.

The Milwaukee Road got nearly $5 million in subsidies for a profit of almost $600,000. The Chicago and North Western Ry. reaped $4.5 million. The loss of $1.8 million for the railroad was blamed on a $2.4 million debt owed for its commuter cars. The Illinois Central Gulf R.R. got the biggest subsidy, $9.6 million, and showed the biggest loss, $960,000. The Burlington Northern R.R. obtained a $5 million subsidy, but still lost nearly $700,000 on commuter service. The Rock Island Line broke even.

The five lines will receive a minimum of $35.8 million in subsidies for fiscal 1977, with additional bonuses for high performance, the report said. The report said suburban bus lines are scheduled for 150 new buses, and the CTA will get 200 in the next year.

Home insulation plan for elderly

Northern Illinois Gas Co. petitioned the Illinois Commerce Commission Wednesday for permission to carry out a residential ceiling insulation program for 1,000 elderly customers. The customers who would benefit from the plan must be over 65, on an income of less than $4,000 per year and owners and residents of the single-family homes to be insulated. NI-Gas serves much of northern Illinois outside Chicago.

$6 million air crash suit filed

A $6 million law suit on behalf of two victims of the history's worst airlines disaster was filed in Chicago Wednesday. Listed as defendants were the two airlines, Pan American and KLM, the airport on Tenerife, Canary Islands, Lloyds of London insurance firm, and the Boeing Co., manufacturer of the two 747 jumbo jets. Attorney John J. Kennelly, a Chicago-based aviation legal expert, filed the suit in Cook County Circuit Court on behalf of Robert Jakoubek, Visalia, Calif., who died in the collision of the two planes, and his widow, Marianne, who is still hospitalized with severe burns.

The suit charges the airlines with negligence for not having radios operating on the same frequency and for lacking proximity radar to alert them to the dangers of a possible collision. The KLM pilot was charged with negligence for not having permission from the control tower to take off. Kennelly said he would seek an immediate order directing authorities to reproduce tape recordings of the radio transmissions of the two planes just before the collision on March 27. Kennelly said the suit was filed in Chicago because all the companies involved have offices in the Chicago area.

'Lifeline' utility proposal amended

The "lifeline" legislation to give typical residential electricity users a rate reduction was amended in a subcommittee Wednesday to become a "poor people's bill." A subcommittee of the House Public Utilities panel voted to accept an amendment by Rep. John Sharp, D-East Alton, limiting the rate break to the aged and those earning under $10,000. A full committee vote was put off until later this month. The bill's chief sponsor, Rep. William Marovitz, D-Chicago, is opposed to "turning this into a welfare program. I want to help all, not just the poor, who are hit hard by soaring utility bills." Marovitz said he is willing to cut by half the benefits originally proposed. "This would make lifeline rates roughly 11 per cent lower than others instead of 22 per cent and shift about $82 million from that group instead of $165 million."

'Gypsy' warning issued

Acting Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said Wednesday a band of "gypsy type" persons that invaded a food store where $3,800 was taken from an office filing cabinet may be operating throughout Illinois and in adjoining states. The loss was reported Tuesday after several women came into Mack's Big Star store. Charles Glasser, the store manager, said the women kept clerks busy and then marched out of the store together "in military fashion" as if on signal.

Later, Glasser said, it was discovered that the money was missing from an office filing cabinet. He said the cabinet lock apparently had been picked. Hogan said Witnesses reported seeing the women get into three cars in which men and children were waiting and that the cars left in different directions.

Cut of the cards decides election

A deck of cards Wednesday decided what the voters could not in the race for Carbondale Township highway commissioner. Unofficial results of Tuesday's election gave Democrat Vernell Bloodworth and Republican Harold Chew 1,346 votes each for the position. And the official vote canvass Wednesday did not change the count.

So, Commissioner Ike Brandon suggested that the township clerk go out and buy a deck of cards. A girl was summoned off the street to shuffle the new deck. Bloodworth drew first and turned up an ace of spades giving him a victory over Chew, who drew the king of diamonds. Chew has five days to challenge the result if he desires.

Energy conservation for new buildings urged

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson announced Wednesday he will introduce legislation requiring the Dept. of Business and Economic Development to adopt energy conservation standards for new buildings.

"We can save more than 5 per cent of the energy consumed in Illinois through improved insulation and lighting of buildings and by insisting that government purchases take account of energy efficiency," Thompson said in a special message to the legislature.

The proposal will be called the "Energy Conservation Act of 1977," Thompson said, and will be part of an energy program which he has largely borrowed from other sources.

He said he may have further energy proposals after President Carter submits his suggestions for federal policy revision.

Thompson said the proposed new state building standards should be drafted to apply to most new buildings and should include provisions to reduce the amount of energy wasted in lighting public buildings.

"The legislation would rely on local governments to enforce these standards through their own building codes," Thompson said in a special message to the legislature. "It would be unacceptable to have these standards enforced by a state agency with a new army of inspectors."

National slate plan not likely here

by BILL HILL
A news analysis

National political parties probably will postpone plans to run slates in Arlington Heights' municipal elections after the sweep in Tuesday's election by five independent candidates.

However, the election of Martin E. Cawley and Kathryn Graham to the board could encourage the revival of the Arlington Heights Caucus, which failed to run a slate this year after dominating village elections for 20 years.

The caucus dropped out of the election process this year because of a lack of interest; only a handful of residents appeared before its candidate recommendation committee, including Cawley and Mrs. Graham. Before disbanding, the caucus endorsed both candidates.

CAWLEY, WHO finished third in the balloting according to unofficial vote totals released Wednesday by the village clerk's office, called his win a victory for the caucus and a defeat for the local organizations of national political parties. He promised to push for the rebirth of the caucus with many changes in its bylaws.

"The only reason I didn't use the caucus endorsement on my campaign literature is because if I had lost, it would have been the kiss of death for the caucus. By electing me, the ideals of the caucus won," Cawley said.

It was the Village Independent Coalition party that suffered resounding losses this year, but in 1975 it was the caucus that was buried by the voters as a Village Independents for Progress slate was formed at the last minute with all three of its candidates winning.

The only caucus candidate to win in 1975, Madeline Schroeder, still remembers the backlash vote against the caucus two years ago and questions whether there is sufficient interest to revive it.

"The caucus system seems to operate better in areas where the population is smaller," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder said national political parties seem better able to generate interest in elections. And while Douglas Cannon and Ralph Clarbour of the VIC party predicted national party slates will appear in the village next election, other village officials disagree.

"HAD THE VIC group been successful, I think the Republicans could not have sat idly by and let this new group dominate the local political scene," said David Griffin, a village trustee who did not seek reelection and served as cochairman in Village Pres. James Ryan's campaign.

"I think that with the VIC candidates being trounced pretty heavily, it sort of alleviates the possibility of national party slates, though we're certainly getting closer to the point national parties are going to get involved," Griffin said.

Ryan also questioned whether the national political parties will run slates in future Arlington Heights elections. "The big question for the Republicans and Democrats is whether it's going to be a benefit to a candidate to run in a local election with a national party label. It can backfire because there are some fears with people as far as that is concerned," Ryan said.

Ryan said he considered the VIC slate "a small, splinter group" of the Independent Conservative Party. "Certainly there was national party involvement there," he said.

The VIC candidates think the same about the backers of Ryan, Leonard Perkins, Alfred Barboro and Frank Palmatier, Cannon said.

"THERE'S NO question they had the backing of the Republican organization. Campaign literature for those candidates was passed together with Wheeling Township Republican campaign literature," Cannon said.

The Wheeling Township Democratic organization's decision to endorse Ryan this year also indicates national political parties are ready to run slates in local elections, Cannon said.

Perkins also expects such a move by the Republican and Democratic organizations in the 1979 election and he welcomes it.

"Candidates have a certain responsibility for voter education and this year candidates failed miserably at it," said Perkins, who finished fifth in the unofficial results.

"If most voters knew three candidates they were lucky. I certainly don't think they knew the philosophical stands of more than three candidates," he said.

"I don't see how the village can go any other route than to national political parties," Perkins said.

Recount in trustee race likely

A recount in the Arlington Heights municipal election appeared likely Wednesday as unofficial vote totals released by the village clerk showed three candidates within 57 votes of winning the fourth trustee post.

Leonard Perkins, who stands fifth in the balloting and only 53 votes behind Kathryn Graham, said he will ask for a recount if the canvassing of ballots shows a similar margin.

Ralph Clarbour, who is four votes behind Perkins, said he has not decided about asking for a recount.

"If somebody thinks there was a misinterpretation in the counting or uninformed judges, I think a request for a recount should come from the pollwatchers," said Clarbour, a former village president and village trustee who ran on the Village Independent Coalition slate.

A REQUEST FOR a recount does not have to be filed until after the results of the vote canvass are presented to the village board April 21.

Unofficial results of the trustees race for four seats are: Frank Palmatier 5,150; Alfred Barboro 3,880; Martin E. Cawley 3,843; Mrs. Graham 3,109; Perkins 3,056; Clarbour 3,052; Charles Swanson 2,194; John Fitzpatrick 1,706; Art Gollberg 1,660; G. Victor Johnson 1,651; Wilbur Mennecke 1,500.

Unofficial vote totals in the village president's race are: James T. Ryan 6,511; Douglas Cannon 1,910.

ALL OF THE unofficial winners ran as independents.

Cannon Wednesday blamed the losses of the Village Independent Coalition party on a lack of name recognition.

Perkins said Tuesday's results "bordered on the ridiculous.

"It's clear that when someone doesn't run a campaign, ring doorbells or put out any campaign literature, there's something wrong. I don't think voters knew who they were voting for," Perkins said.

Mrs. Graham, a member of the park board, plan commission and plat and subdivision committee, said she did not spend any money for her campaign.

Carter bill signals start of bureaucracy attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter signed the reorganization authorization bill Wednesday and said he would begin a "searching examination of the entire government structure" with an overhaul of his own office.

The signing, which took place in the White House Oval Office, was a climax to Carter's two-year presidential campaign in which he repeatedly assailed the Washington bureaucracy.

The bill gives Carter three-year authority to submit reorganization plans to Congress, subject only to a veto by either house. It carries a Republican-sponsored amendment requiring Carter to give the cost-effectiveness of each plan.

"I think of all the campaign speeches I made, the most consistent commitment was that I would move as quickly as possible to improve the efficiency, effectiveness and sensitivity of the federal government in dealing with the needs of the American people," Carter said during the brief ceremony.

The White House said in a statement that there is "no master list or hidden agenda" for reorganization targets.

Crash landing a success in Miami

A LACSA Airlines Lockheed Electra turboprop cargo plane en route to Miami from San Jose, Costa Rica, made a successful crash landing at Miami International Airport late Wednesday when the pilot was unable to lower the plane's nose gear. None of the three crewmen aboard was injured, authorities said. Lt. John Nicoletti of the Dade County Fire Department, stationed at the airport, said "It looked like more of a problem than it actually was. There were lots of sparks when it skidded down the runway but there was no fire."

Nicoletti said the plane's propellers and engines were damaged and the aluminum along the belly of the fuselage was torn but it appeared otherwise undamaged. A LACSA spokesman identified the crew as pilot Jorge Marin, co-pilot Edgar Camora and flight engineer Juan Cruz, all of San Jose. The spokesman said the plane carried general cargo. Nicoletti said, "He couldn't get his nose wheel down so he elected to come in with the gear up."

Report 6 new botulism cases

Health officials in Pontiac, Mich., Wednesday reported six new cases of botulism in the worst outbreak in U.S. history, but said it could be the last large group of victims in a food poisoning epidemic that has afflicted 45 persons. "It should pretty much start tapering off now," said Hank Costantino, Oakland County health administrator. "We sure hope, anyway, that this is the last big group that we get." Costantino said his office was still expecting the final toll to approach 50.

Tax for disabled bill to Senate

Both the House and Senate voted Wednesday to delay for one year the end of tax deductions that sick and disabled workers have received for the first $100 a week of sick pay. But the House rejected a Senate-approved move to delay an earlier decision to reduce from $20,000 to $15,000 the amount of income that U.S. workers abroad may exclude from income tax. House Ways and Means chairman Al Ullman noted that U.S. taxpayers abroad have until June 16 to file returns, so this provision can be dealt with later. The bill now goes back to the Senate which is expected to approve the amended bill, possibly on Thursday.

Sadat nixes Mideast plan

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat Wednesday rejected President Carter's concept of stationing Israeli border defense forces on Arab soil as part of a Middle East peace settlement. "We have discussed it," Sadat told a news conference on the final day ofhis Washington visit. "But sovereignty is indivisible, and we can't have two borders. Sovertignty always means one border."

He indicated the Arabs might accept demilitarized border zones, however, and said he believes Carter might be ready to put Middle East peace initiatives into high gear by opening up a "dialogue" with the Palestinians. He praised Carter as a peacemaktr who may "leave his fingerprints on history," and one who has his "full confidence."

Tanker explodes in Tokyo

A 46,000-ton Liberian tanker fully loaded with crude oil burst into flame Wednesday night and spilled thousands of gallons of petroleum into the sea after colliding with a small Japanese freighter, maritime officials in Tokyo said. The Japanese Maritime Safety Agency said the total of 58 crewmen on the two vessels escaped injury, and that neither vessel was likely to sink. Ten firefighting boats were rushed to the scene of the accident in the western part of Japan's Inland Sea, about 500 miles southwest of Tokyo. Oil gushing from the tanker was feeding a flaming oil slick about half a mile long, an MSA spokesman said.

Quake rocks central Iran

A strong earthquake shook areas southwest of Isfahan in central Iran Wednesday. There were unconfirmed reports of some damage. The Seismological Institute at Uppsala, Sweden, said the quake measured 6.5 on the open-ended Richter scale of intensity. It occurred at 8:36 a.m. EST, the institute said. A telephone switchboard operator at Shahr Kord, a town of 3,000 people southwest of Isfahan, said he had heard there was some damage in outlying villages around the town.

Unit school district controversy centers on money—not education

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The controversy over the proposed Elk Grove Township unit school district has focused little on education.

Most of the discussion on the unit district proposal has centered on finances — whose taxes would go down, whose would go up, and who has been providing what share of High School Dist. 214's tax base over the years.

Swimming pools and field houses also have taken up much discussion time as have elusive topics such as "articulation" and "local control."

WHAT HAS RECEIVED little discussion, even by State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin who gave the go-ahead for Saturday's referendum, are the educational advantages or disadvantages formation of the unit district holds for students.

The unit district would combine the elementary schools from Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 with Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in Dist. 214 under one administration and board of education.

Few have complained about the quality of education Dist. 214 offers.

Even Donald Zommer, an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education candidate running in support of the unit district, said at a recent candidates night he sees no educational advantages to forming a unit district.

"I don't think the unit district would improve the quality of education, but I don't think it would hurt it either," he said.

OPPONENTS OF THE unit district argue that what's well enough should be left alone. They say that Dist. 214 is a highly-respected high school district which provides an outstanding education. They question the wisdom of giving this up for an unknown.

Unit district supporters say the new district would mean "more local control" and more finances to provide students with whatever they want educationally.

Most of the educational debate is centering on whether students from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools have the same educational opportunities as other students. Supporters of the unit district say they do not.

Although Dist. 214 offers 375 different courses — 570 — if sections for different ability groups are counted, many of these programs are offered outside Elk Grove and Forest View high schools and are inaccessible to students from these schools, unit district supporters say. They admit, however, that part of the reason courses are offered where they are is student and teacher interest.

"It's marvtlous to have all the things Dist. 214 provides, but if the students aren't taking advantage of them because of the size of the district, what the heck good is it?" said Thomas Guy, chairman of the committee of 10 Dist. 59 residents who filed the petition seeking formation of the unit district.

MANY STUDENTS from the Dist. 59 area are in fact enrolled in specialized programs offered outside Elk Grove and Forest View high schools and are provided transportation to these programs, Roderick McLennan, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for instructional service, said.

Over-all, though, only a small percentage of the district's 19,500 students choose to take a course outside their home school. Still, it would be far too costly for the district to duplicate all its offerings at each of its eight schools and some subjects are best taught outside a school environment, McLennan said.

Most of the courses unit district supporters complain their children need transportation to are not offered in any school. They are offered in nondistrict facilities and students from every school in the district must travel to participate in them.

These programs include:

- Cosmetology is offered at a private beauty school in Arlington Heights. Thirty-three of the program's 100 students are from Dist. 59. The budget is $38,640.
- Horticulture is offered at the Mount Prospect Park District greenhouse, and 16 of the program's 86 students are from Dist. 59. The budget is $63,327.
- Power on site training places students in body shops and car dealerships to learn advanced power mechanics. More than half of the 44 students are from Dist. 59. The budget is $30,479.
- Fire cadet is taught at the Mount Prospect Fire Dept. Seven of the students are from Dist. 59. The budget is $25,632.
- Auto body repair is taught at a Wheeling facility operated by Allstate Insurance Co. Four of the program's 16 students are from Dist. 59 and the program costs $19,994.
- Student Therapeutic Educational Program (STEP), which uses a facility in Wheeling to provide education and therapy for students with emotional disorders. The program, with a budget of $640,000 has an enrollment of 88 students, 12 from the Dist. 59 area.

Unit district opponents, however, point to the Dist. 214 bilingual program offered at Wheeling High School and question why no students from Elk Grove or Forest View high schools are enrolled in the class.

McLennan said the answer is that no students from these two schools have expressed an interest in the program, but Guy doesn't accept this.

"These are kids that have to be identified and guided into the program, they don't just enroll," Guy said. "When there are enough kids in the Dist. 59 area for Dist. 59 to have a bilingual program, Elk Grove or Forest View (high school) should have one too."

GUY CHARGES THAT schools in the north portion of Dist. 214 offer "many many more" specialized courses than Elk Grove or Forest View high schools and that with or without transportation it's inconvenient for students to get to these courses.

McLennan denied that these two high schools have fewer specialized courses than other schools in the district. He acknowledged that because of student and teacher interests and needs some schools have programs others don't.

Opportunities offered exclusively at Forest View and Elk Grove high school include:

- A student-run FM radio station.
- A Work Experience Career Education Program (WECEP) which pays drop-out prone students under the age of 16 to work.
- Practical architectural construction which provides students with residential construction skills.
- Public service practicum which acquaints students with the practical aspects of social science by having them work with attorneys, legislators and municipal employes.

"The so-called deprived schools in the south have got the curriculum the ones in the north don't have," McLennan said.

Regardless of which courses are offered where, any student who wants to enroll in a program outside his home school can and wherever possible Dist. 214 provides the transportation for students to do so, McLennan said.

McLennan said Dist. 214 buses more students for learning experiences outside their home school classrooms than any other district. Some $107,700 was budgeted this year to bus students for district programs, community resource programs and physical education programs, he said.

DIST. 214's HIGH cost, low-incidence specialized programs are the ones most likely to be lost if the unit district is formed, McLennan said. Lack of sufficient enrollment could kill these programs for the unit district and lack of sufficient finances could kill them for Dist. 214.

Guy said he sees no reason why Dist. 214 and the unit district cannot offer these high expense, low incidence programs on a cooperative basis if the student interest is there.

"When all the smoke is over, I can't imagine that they wouldn't want to cooperate for the advantage of the students in both districts," he said. "They're professional educators and if it's to their advantage and the students' advantage to cooperate, they will."

McLennan, however, said he is not so sure the Dist. 214 Board of Education will "immediately extend the hand of fellowship and say let's work together.

"You don't tend to form a cooperative from two districts that were once one," he said.

If the student interest is there, the unit district, with or without Dist. 214, would renegotiate agreements for programs like horticulture and fire cadet with the cooperating community agencies, Guy said.

Kucera joins the winner's circle

Virginia Zittnan Kucera was a loser Tuesday night in the Arlington Heights Library Board election but Wednesday she joined Lois Davidheiser in the winner's circle.

Tuesday night's unofficial totals showed Lucille M. Jevitz defeating Mrs. Kucera by 118 votes, but Wednesday's results had Mrs. Kucera winning by 52 votes with 2,176 votes. Mrs. Davidheiser had 2,478 votes to win easily.

Election officials said there was a mistake in the original tally. Mrs. Jevitz said she was undecided about challenging the vote results.

"It's a surprise that I won and I wish Mrs. Jevitz all the best of luck," Mrs. Kucera said Wednesday. "I suppose name recognition gave me the edge. I have been a substitute teacher in the village and have taught religion at Our Lady of the Wayside for years, so I suppose I was just well known."

Mrs. Kucera said her commanding lead in her home precinct, Elk Grove Township Precinct 46, helped put her over the top.

"I had one nice day of victory," Mrs Jevitz said, "but I still say it was a rewarding experience. I'm still glad I ran."

The two 6-year terms were sought by 12 candidates. Mrs. Davidheiser, an incumbent, is the current secretary and vice president of the board.

FBI hoping to curb crime with program

The statistics tell the story.

Crime is on the increase, especially in the suburbs, where projections indicate the rate of crime will surpass that of the city by 1980.

And it is costing Americans billions annually, according to the FBI.

"Crime in America is at an appalling high and what it portends for the future of our liberties and freedom is frightening," FBI Director Clarence Kelley has said.

IN THE FACE OF the rising crime statistics, law enforcement officials are attempting to refocus their anti-crime efforts.

Curbing crime before it happens is taking on an increasing role in that new direction, and the FBI is gearing a major program of "crime resistance" toward that aim.

Four "crime resistance" projects were tried for a year in Birmingham, Ala.; DeKalb County, Ga.; Norfolk Va. and Wilmington, Del. The FBI, working with local police, established crime resistance task forces in the communities, analyzed crime data, then met with local groups, business and the public to discuss what each could do to curb crime and make themselves less vulnerable to crime.

Officials are hoping their efforts will translate into lower crime statistics this year.

NOW THE BUREAU is attempting to make "crime resistance" a national concern

"The citizen today is lulled into a sense of security that 'the police will handle it, I don't want to get involved,' " says Agent Bud Giannetti, who is helping to coordinate the program in the Chicago area.

"But crime is a hazard. We train our kids to recognize hazards like fire, but we don't teach kids how to avoid crime situations," he said.

"Crime resistance is an attitude," he said, and it is one the bureau, working with local police, is hoping to instill in the public.

Suggestions the crime resistance program stresses are:

- Locking your home and taking the key even if you are only in the backyard.
- Keeping lights and a radio on when you are away from home.
- Installing deadbolt locks on doors.
- Locking unattended autos.
- Avoiding confrontation situations.
- Traveling well-lighted routes at night.

In the four areas where it has been tested, crime resistance has met with good public response, Giannetti said.

"We were trying to use our expertise to help the local police," he said. "That's the way the bureau views this. We do not want to usurp the role or the job of local law enforcement in crime prevention programs.

"What we are trying to do is augment those programs with crime resistance programs," he said. "We're trying to use our assets as a clearing house."

IN ILLINOIS, THE bureau is working with statewide law enforcement agencies and organizations to promote the program. A report on the pilot projects also has been sent to all police chiefs in communities of more than 50,000 across the country.

In areas of federal jurisdiction, such as interstate shipping, the FBI is advising companies on ways to reduce the possibility of thefts.

"We are trying to talk to businesses with whom we interact to develop programs within the business family, to disseminate information to the employes," Giannetti said.

Prevention units work praised

Crime prevention bureaus in the Northwest suburbs have been given credit for curbing crime in certain areas and increasing public awareness of criminal activity, police officials say.

Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette of Buffalo Grove's crime prevention bureau said the unit "has been an outstanding effort" in making the public aware of methods to decrease chances of being victimized by a criminal.

The year-old bureau "has been well-received by the public and has been instrumental in decreasing burglary and other (felony) crimes," Blanchette said.

THE OLDEST CRIME prevention unit in the area belongs to Mount Prospect. It offers a wide variety of programs ranging from armed robbery prevention to safety tips for babysitters.

Mount Prospect's bureau, which has accumulated more than 40 programs in the past year and a half, is hailed as a major success by Police Chief Ralph J. Doney.

Crime Prevention Officer Michael Salatino said the unit's strongest points have been making the public aware and community relations.

Both Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect have periodically teamed their bureaus together for seminar programs at Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, where emphasis has been placed on prevention of commercial theft.

PALATINE HAS had a crime prevention bureau in operation for about 18 months. It has principally been used to concentrate on home burglary and bike thefts in the Honey Ridge subdivision.

Officer Stan Rajski of the unit said the number of Palatine's programs have been kept to a minimum so the new existing programs are given concentrated effort. Plans for expanded programs are being considered now, he said.

Officials at the Arlington Heights Crime Prevention Bureau believe the unit is working effectively at reducing crime, "but it's hard to answer when someone asks how many crimes you've prevented today," Capt. Paul Buckholz said.

Police support Thompson legislation

Opinion mixed on crime plan

Gov. James R. Thompson's "get tough" anti-crime legislation Wednesday drew mixed reaction from judges, law enforcement and legal experts.

Law enforcement officials said they see the governor's proposals to set lengthy mandatory prison sentences for persons convicted of crimes committed with dangerous weapons as a deterrent to crime.

But the good of mandatory sentences as a crime deterrent were questioned by newly elected Cook County Circuit Court Judge Brian Duff.

"MANDATORY SENTENCING is self-defeating. I think it results in additional plea bargaining," Duff said. He said he will have to study other provisions of Thompson's proposals before making further comment.

Certain proposals, such as the requirement to have prosecutors file public statements on the details of plea bargaining agreements, will have to be "carefully defined," Duff said.

Other judges also have expressed reservations about the proposals. The governor's suggestions are being viewed as placing limits on judicial discretion in violent crime cases.

Most police officials, however, support the proposals.

"We certainly hope he is for real," said Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh, adding he hopes Thompson's plan "doesn't fall prey to judicial discretion."

WALSH ALSO said the plan will serve as a deterrent to crime.

"Not immediately, but once people realize we are not going to put up with crime, it will be a deterrent. I think we have to stop coddling criminals," Walsh said.

Northwestern University law professor Fred Inbau also applauded the proposals, but noted that implementing the program may be expensive.

"I think anything you do to make it tougher on the criminal serves as a deterrent to crime," Inbau said, adding that the proposals show "the state means business" when it comes to dealing with crime.

MOUNT PROSPECT, Police Chief Ralph Doney also praised the proposals saying frequently "we do a lot of hand-holding with criminals."

Arlington Heights Deputy Police Chief Paul Buckholz singled out the proposal that calls for persons who are convicted of three felonies to be sentenced to mandatory, no-parole prison sentences.

"There is a duty to keep the guys off the street, and this is most appropriate after a person has been convicted of three felonies," he said, adding, "At some point the state has the duty to protect potential victims."

Warrant used to search Columbo apartment voided

A criminal courts judge Wednesday declared void a search warrant which culminated in the arrests of Patricia Columbo and Frank DeLuca, but said he would allow into court evidence collected under the warrant.

Judge R. Eugene Pincham granted a motion by assistant Cook County public defenders filed on behalf of Miss Columbo, 20, that Pincham quash a search warrant issued for the apartment Miss Columbo and DeLuca, 39, shared in Lombard in May 1976.

However, Pincham refused to bar evidence collected at the apartment from being used by assistant Cook County state's attorney in the Columbo-DeLuca trial.

MISS COLUMBO and DeLuca are charged in the May 4, 1976, murders of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo, and her 13-year-old brother, Michael, at their home at 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

After handing down his decision, Pincham urged prosecutors appeal his ruling to the Illinois appellate or Supreme Court and ask that his ruling be upheld or reversed before the actual trial begins.

Prosecutors have not decided whether they will appeal the ruling.

At issue was a search warrant drawn up in May 1976 by Det. Raymond Rose of the Elk Grove Village Police Dept., who headed the investigation of the Columbo slayings.

The warrant stated that based on information provided by two informants, police believed goods taken from the Columbo household the night of the slayings could be found at DeLuca's and Miss Columbo's apartment.

ALTHOUGH THE warrant had been signed by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters, defense attorneys argued police had failed to show "probable cause" that would justify the warrant.

"I am unable to find anything in this affidavit (search warrant) to establish probable cause that the articles sought would be found in the residence of Patricia Columbo," he said. "I therefore find the warrant should be quashed," Pincham said.

"I will not suppress the evidence," he said.

Before searching the apartment May 15, 1976, police placed Miss Columbo and DeLuca under arrest. According to law, the evidence collected after the apprehensions thus could be entered into court as evidence seized in the course of an arrest and not under the search warrant.

Pincham said none of the evidence gathered at the apartment had been listed in the search warrant.

The next hearing in the Columbo-DeLuca case is today at 9 a.m. in Pincham's courtroom at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Rose today is expected to testify on whether Miss Columbo, after her arrest, had been informed of her rights to silence and an attorney before she signed two statements prosecutors may use against her at her trial.

Panel fails to settle jobs bill deadlock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House-Senate negotiators tried but failed Wednesday to break a deadlock delaying the $4 billion public works job bill, a key part of President Carter's economic recovery program.

They tentatively planned to try again Thursday morning.

The talks broke down after 90 minutes largely because Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, a key participant, declined to attend and refused to agree to separating two complex issues which have become entwined — jobs and water pollution.

Even if agreement can be reached Thursday, it would be too late to meet the original goal of congressional leaders to get the measure to Carter for signature by Easter. The House was beginning its Easter recess Wednesday night, the Senate late Thursday.

But proponents hoped the unusual Thursday meeting — while the House is out of session — could pave the way for quick passage when Congress returns April 18, and could avoid a much longer delay involving a major change in economic plans.

Police cling to 'traditional' weapons

A long shopping list of gadgets to stop criminals without bullets is available to police in the United States, but most officers in the Northwest suburbs continue to carry weapons popular in the 19th Century — the handgun and the billy club.

Area police chiefs and crime prevention officers agree that an effective, nonlethal weapons remains unavailable despite a decade in which domestic arms suppliers peddled everything from rubber bullets to "instant banana peel," a slippery substance that gives a dry sidewalk the consistency of a frozen pond.

Development of the nonlethal weapons blossomed in the turbulent 1960s when law enforcement authorities sought nonlethal ways to control middle-class students and adults who formed the backbone of the antiwar movement.

A VARIETY OF alternative weapons were produced, but area police say there is no way they will replace police arsenals in the United States, at least in the immediate future.

"I don't know of anything (in nonlethal weaponary) that works," Arlington Police Chief Robert Dierks said. "Studies have been done on them and they just aren't feasible. If the hoods are going to go to nonlethal weapons, then we will match them."

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said today's "violently oriented society" forces the use of sophisticated firearms, such as the Smith and Wesson Model 59 semiautomatic pistol which packs 15 rounds of 9 millimeter ammunition.

"To keep a proper defense, we must be supplied with comparable weapons that criminals carry. We can't let criminals out-weigh police forces in fire-power. Too much is at stake," Doney said.

DES PLAINES Police Chief Arthur Hintz said it's a question of "fighting fire with fire."

THE VIOLENCE ORIENTED American culture also was cited by Buffalo Grove crime prevention officers Gary Deters and Gary Del Re as a reason why police carry guns and clubs.

"Our nation historically has always been violent," Deters said. "As late as 1910, in this century mind you, people were walking down the streets of Nevada, Montana and other western states with guns strapped to their sides."

In other cultures, such as in Japan and Great Britain, guns are not allowed to be kept by citizens and police do not carry guns on routine patrols, Deters said.

"A British couple on vacation stopped in the village and had their picture taken with a police officer. They said they had never seen a handgun before."

A random UPI check of police departments in 10 states found lethal firearms were standard equipment, with the nonlethal chemical spray MACE used as a supplement in many states.

OTHER NONLETHAL weapons include tranquilizer guns, stun guns packing fist-sized bean bags and electrical shock guns such as TASER. Nonlethal ammunition includes plastic and rubber bullets, water bags and aluminum golf balls.

Chemicals also are available to do everything from mark feeling criminal suspects with dye to gasses that trigger disorientation and nausea.

Some Northwest suburban police officers carry a can of a chemical similar to MACE, but other nonlethal weapons besides the billy club are virtually nonexistent in the area.

One reason the weapons aren't being used is their limited effectiveness. Mount Prospect's Doney said most of the chemical weapons are only good for about five or six feet. Other weapons which shoot dummy ammunition also have limited range.

"These (nonlethal weapons) just can't compete with a sniper using a high-powered rifle," Doney said. Doney also cited high cost as a prohibitive factor in using nonlethal weapons.

Police gain a psychological advantage in carrying deadly weapons, said Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case who insists that carrying handguns is a deterrent to criminals.

Stereotypes from fables no fairy tale, expert says

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Women who loved Cinderella may still be waiting for handsome princes to come along. Those partial to Little Red Riding Hood sometimes are easily seduced.

At least that's what Sue Hendrix of the University of Minnesota College of Education suggests.

"You can often learn quite a bit about adults by finding out what their favorite fairy tale was," she said.

ONCE UPON A time, she said, people thought fairy tales, nursery rhymes and children's television were innocent and failed to think about hidden messages.

Ms. Hendrix quoted: "Peter, Peter, pumpkin-eater, had a wife and couldn't keep her; put her in a pumpkin shell and there he kept her very well."

Parents who do not want their daughters to grow up in pumpkin shells or their sons to plan on using them for keeping future wives should look twice at what their preschoolers learn from kids' stories, she said.

In a report by Jeannie Hanson of the University News Service Ms. Hendrix and Linda Jones of the College of Education said sex stereoptypes in children's books and shows can impede children in identifying with their own sex.

THEY GAVE the following examples:

• "The invisible girl." Girls aren't shown nearly as often as boys in children's stories and shows.

• "The fragile flower." Many fairy tale heroines wait in their best clothes for help from a prince or husband. They sometimes are stupid or silly to boot. Even the Bionic woman needs help from her male supervisor.

• "The Housewife." Some books show girls most often in a house. Yet 90 per cent of the women in this country will work outside the home at sometime.

• "The scatterbrain." Little Miss Muffet is afraid of a spider. Little Red Riding Hood doesn't notice it isn't her grandmother in bed.

• "The pretty face." Beauty in fairy tales usually is seen as the most imporant quality a female can have.

They said the children's television show, Sesame Street, tries to get away from a number of these things.

For starters,they said, "they can call half the stuffed animals in the house by girls' names."

They said parents also can get books without stereotypes and watch television with their children periodically to counteract stereotypes.

Adults show the effects of stereotypes for years, they said, like the Cinderellas waiting for princes and Red Riding Hoods who are easy to seduce.

"Those who liked the little old woman who lived in a show may already have more children than they know with what to do."

Man vows crucifixion

by VICTOR LANIAUSKAS

ORANI, The Philippines (UPI) — Domingo Yumang, a long-haired, bearded fisherman, plans to crucify himself on Good Friday for the sixth straight year to honor a vow he made in a private talk with God.

Yumang, 41, vowed six years ago in this tiny village north of Manila to crucify himself each year for 10 years if his ailing infant daughter was allowed to live.

His daughter, Esperanza, is now a healthy, laughing 6-year-old and her grateful father is determined to fulfill his pledge, which he said he made "in a private talk with God" in a desperate attempt to save his daughter.

SURPRISINGLY, there are no scars on the hands that have been pierced five times already.

Yumang keeps the four specially made nails he uses in his annual ordeal in a jar of alcohol. They are three inches long, razor thin and flattened at the end.

He explains in halting English that the greatest pain comes when the nails must be removed — sometimes with a crowbar — and usually about five minutes after the cross has been raised near a now-abandoned chapel in his village.

Photographs of his previous crucifixions show his waist and feet are tied to the 10-foot cross to prevent the flesh in his hands from tearing.

YUMANG SAYS he usually is ready to go back to his boat a few days after the crucifixion. He never sees a doctor and says he soaks his hands in alcohol to heal the wounds.

Enrica, his wife, looks drawn and shakes her head while listening to Yumang.

"What can I do? He has made his vow and will not listen to me. I cry when I see the pain he suffers. His mother begged him to stop. But he listens to no one."

Yumang asks his friends to drive the nails through his hands. They sometimes scream and beg him not to continue. Domingo says some in the large crowd that gathers each year yell encouragement and even make bets with each other.

In the Philippines, the only predominantly Christian nation in Asia, the tradition of crucifixion, self-flagellation and other acts of penance during the Lenten period before Easter dates back to Spanish colonial days.

Contract expires tonight

Harper faculty rejects pact bid

by DICK DAHL

The Harper College faculty has rejected unanimously the latest contract offer of the board of trustees, setting the stage for an 11th hour bargaining session today.

Faculty representative Henry Roepken said the faculty voted 164 to 0 Wednesday to reject the trustees' offer of a 3.5 per cent total salary increase. The 3.5 per cent increase amounts to about $650 per faculty member, Roepken said.

The two sides meet at the bargaining table at 3 p.m. today with the faculty team asking for a 9.3 per cent increase, Roepken said.

The teachers' contract ends at midnight.

Last year teachers agreed to a 7.5 per cent total increase.

In spite of the wide differences in salary positions, William Miller, faculty senate president said the total salary package is not the main issue.

The faculty is pushing for recognition of the faculty senate as a bargaining unit in professional matters such as grievance procedures, he said.

The faculty also is charging that faculty members at the top of their academic ranks are penalized by salary ceilings.

The faculty also objects to the quota system limiting the number of faculty members who can achieve ranks of professor, assistant professor and associate professor.

THE FACULTY HAD requested that persons at the top of their ranks receive the full negotiated increase, but last week a compromise with the board was reached limiting the increase for those at the top of their ranks to 90 per cent.

Miller said he could not predict what will happen if a settlement is not reached by midnight tonight.

"That's an iffy question," he said. "It depends on what the new board will do."

Miller said it appears both sides may be standing pat, waiting for the results of the Saturday board of trustees election. Furthermore, Harper's Easter vacation starts today. Classes won't resume until April 18.

Miller said the faculty "would be open to an extension (of the contract deadline). I expect we'd be willing to negotiate until there is a settlement."

Kirk students winning top ratings were: Kevin Coffman, boys 50-yard freestyle in 46.4 seconds; Barry Gradert, boys 25-yard backstroke in 27.2 seconds; and the four-man Kirk boys team won the 25-yard relay race with a time of 1:35.6.

Fitzsimmons fights move to oust him from union

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters Union dissidents Wednesday demended the ouster of President Frank Fitzsimmons, but the determined labor leader told a meeting of 2,000 local union supporters he would not be forced out by charges of corruption.

Union leaders indicated they would dismiss an internal complaint filled against Fitzsimmons by three dissident members, who demanded his ouster on grounds of nepotism, squandering funds and dealing with organized crime figures.

During a three-hour meeting designed to convince local leaders that these allegations of corruption are untrue, Fitzsimmons declared his intention to finish out his five-year term and run for another in 1981.

WITH HUSKY GUARDS posted at every door to keep reporters and dissidents out, the local officials were reported to have applauded Fitzsimmons more than 30 times and offered him a unanimous vote of confidence. Dissidents picketed outside the hotel where the meeting was held.

The vote of confidence was proposed by William Joyce of Chicago Local 710, who was charged by dissidents with receiving multiple union salaries in six figures.

Fitzimmons portrayed allegations against the Teamsters Union as the start of a widespread attack on the entire labor movement by government, radical outsiders, lawyers and the news media.

BOTH HE AND the union have been under severe pressure recently by dissidents and federal investigators in connection with the 1975 disappearance of former union boss Jimmy Hoffa and alleged mismanagement of pension funds.

As Fitzsimmons spoke, a federal grand jury in Detroit indicted a Teamsters Union business agent, reputed Mafia leader Vincent A. Meli, and three other men on extortion charges for allegedly forcing truck drivers to pay employer contributions to var'ous union pension funds.

Earlier, Fitzsimmons issued a statement saying reports he may resign are "absolutely false" and "I believe, maliciously circulated."

The three members, all affiliated with a dissident group known as PROD Inc., said the union has been "riddled by corruption" under Fitzsimmons, who took over when Jimmy Hoffa was imprisoned in the late 1960s.

FILLING THE complaint were John Catlett of Washington, D.C., Peter Vitrano of Jersey City, N.J., and William Berryhill of Hagerstown, Md. PROD officials said they risked their safety by doing so.

The complaint demanded expulsion of Fitzsimmons after a disciplinary hearing by the union's general board on a long list of charges. It said an interim president should be appointed pending a special convention.

The complaint goes to the union's executive board, which is expected to dismiss the charges.

Some of the dissident members picketed outside the hotel where Fitzsimmons met with an estimated 2,000 leaders of union locals, and tight security was thrown up. Fitzsimmons declined to talk to reporters as he entered.

Fitzsimmons, reelected in June to a five-year term, has been under severe pressure by dissidents and government investigators. He recently was forced by the Labor Dept. to resign as trustee of the union's largest pension fund.

TEAMSTER DISSIDENTS demonstrate outside hotel in Washington where union president Frank Fitzsimmons met with local union leaders. The dissidents filed internal union charges against Fitzsimmons demanding he be expelled from the union for nepotism, squandering funds and embracing organized crime figures.

The way we see it

Baseball time despite snow

If the umpire shouts "Brr" instead of "play ball" today when Chicago's major league baseball teams open their seasons, it will be understandable.

The Cubs make their 1977 National League debut in Wrigley Field where temperatures are not expected to rise above the low 50s.

In Toronto, the question will be whether the Blue Jays will be literally blue as temperatures hover near 40 when the American League's newest member starts life against the White Sox.

In recent years there has been much discussion about shortening the baseball season. Two years ago, the Cubs opener was postponed because of snow. Last year the White Sox had a disaster at the box office in April because of the miserable weather.

And baseball faces increasing competition for the sports dollar with basketball and hockey seasons running through May.

The owners say they need a longer season because of the increasing salary demands of the players. The players say they want bigger contracts because they draw paying customers (at least when it's warm) to the ballpark.

Apparently not many baseball men are concerned with what the fan wants. After all, most major league stadiums will be filled today when the hometown team takes the field.

But will the fans be there next week when temperatures remain below 50, or in September when the team remains below .500?

As Sox owner Bill Veeck, who knows from experience, says, "The season starts too early, and ends too late."

Recycle hydrant water

With the approach of warm weather, municipal public works chiefs in the suburbs will begin their reminders of the pending water crisis and the need for water conservation by residents.

Guard every drop . . . place a brick in the toilet tank . . . don't water lawns . . . don't ask for water in restaurants unless you plan to drink it.

All these urgings are necessary. Our ground water supplies are fading fast, and we have no alternative source of water ready for the day when water levels drop too low to reach.

At the same time, warm weather will bring our crews of public works employes to open wide the taps of fire hydrants for the necessary job of flushing sediment from the lines.

Thousands of gallons will spill from the hydrants, gushing across parkways and spilling into sewers.

All this sounds paradoxical.

Couldn't public works crews spill that water onto the lawns of nearby residences, divert it to nearby public facilities or even use it to nourish the trees which line our parkways?

Perhaps there is no feasible way to recover water flushed from hydrants. But when we're all being asked to conserve, it would be nice to see some use put to all that water.

A tolerant, unsophisticated theology journal needs help

Paul Greenberg

Katallagete is in trouble again. Katallagete is New Testament Greek for Be Reconciled, and of course conciliation is always in trouble in this world. Katallagete is also the name of a sometime magazine out of Nashville, Tenn., and it's always been in trouble, financial and spiritual. Which is the way an organ of the religious unestablishmeent ought to be.

Katallagete's best known voice is that of Will Campbell, who after the best theological education the church could give him went and got religion. The result is difficult to describe, though it can easily be felt in the pages of Katallagete. It is a magazine of uncertain publication date, like much good news, but every time it manages to arrive, I feel like declaring a minor festival.

There are theological Journals more sophisticated than Katallagete, but none better at rejecting sophistication. There are many just as fundamentalist, but perhaps none so tolerant at the same time. And surely there aren't any others that mix the Good News with the all-pervading, manly humor that is the saving grace of Katallagete and perhaps of Man.

IT IS EASIER, and a lot more fun, to let Katallagete speak for itself. Here, for example, are Brother Campbell and James Y. Holloway leading off the last issue, which was devoted to the language of theology. They begin by describing their reaction to the kind of preaching that could come out of Faulkner or over a dwindling number of radio frequencies, and conclude:

"To anyone not familiar with the story of Pentecost, the scene would be described as pandemonium. Clapping, shouting, laughing, crying, and, yes, listening. We probably looked a bit uneasy. Our friend leaned over and whispered, 'Give the Fund for Theological Education thirty more years and you won't be able to find that kind of preaching.' We muttered something about that being a shame, and left the meeting. Driving away, we thought about another sermon we had heard, years ago at divinity school, by our dean, a man we loved and admired, preaching on the text, 'To whom much is given, much is expected.' The 'much' we were being 'given' was theological education. As we drove along, we thought a lot about that."

That silent invitation to join in thought extends throughout the little magazine. Sometimes the message is spelled out, as in an interview with Buell Kazee — a name that might be familiar to folk music buffs. Buell Kazee is an old-time banjo player who cut a lot of records on the Brunswick label back in the Twenties. Not so well known is his calling as a preacher, perhaps because he always kept his music separate from his preaching. He explains why in this interview:

"I COULD HAVE played a banjo in church — oh, I think a time or two I may have accompanied hymns with it in a country church, but I would not put myself in a position of mixing banjo-playing with evangelism, or with church work . . . There isn't a man or a woman who can appear on Billy Graham's program who hasn't been a great 'success' in the world. That is to say, his success in the world qualifies him to appear on the crusade program. He has to be a headliner in the world . . . Now, one's an athlete. Another's a beauty queen or something else — maybe the Roy Rogers and Dale Evans type. They have to be something pretty spectacular in the world before they're qualified to appear at a Crusade.

"They had a fellow who was the world's champion yo-yo artist on this program in Lexington. Now, he came not because of his great Christian life — he was a Christian, maybe — the point is, he was there because he was a champion yo-yo artist. Now I've preached 57 years, and my witness, beside his, wouldn't be worth two cents, because I can't yoyo! You see the difference? You see what I'm driving at? You've got to be a 'world figure' and be prominent in the world before you can be used in these great Crusades as a witness for Christ . . ."

IN THE ISSUE on the theme of language and religion, there is a piece by John Garvey — editor of Templegate Press, columnist for Commonweal, author of contemplations on the lives of the saints — who begins his text with one of the great summations of the human condition. He explains how, in order to write seriously about the inadequacy of religious language, he went to the west of Ireland, "one of the most beautiful places in the world, in a house in County Kerry, right at the wild edge of the Atlantic." And how when he got there, he and his wife found mouse droppings everywhere in the cottage.

"Granted that the stuff is always unwelcome, this effort seemed choreographed. It was on pillows and towels, plates and chairs and kitchen counters and in coffee cups — as if some mouse Beelzebub had figured in advance the places we would least like to find it.

"Outside, the Atlantic rolled in, a steady thunder behind, a rising outward fade as waves dissolve on sand, saying something new every time, and something always the same, something which is forever about to explain itself.

"AND I WAS distracted, violently distracted, by mouse shit. It isn't that bad; at least they aren't like pigeons; but it has to be cleaned up, and you have to make some move against the mice. Still, for at least half a day, a petty irritation with a few mice kept me from listening to the Atlantic Ocean.

"Who, caught like that, can deny that there is a God, and He is just?"

John Garvey has revived the old, medieval figure of the fool-in-Christ, and perhaps that is what is needed before scholar man obscures sinner man entirely. It would be a welcome change from the old, empty ecumenicism and the new, one-way gnosticism-for-beginners that appears all the rage.

This latest issue of Katallagete also included a plea for help. It wasn't one of those dramatic Last Appeals. Katallagete has more faith, and more honesty, than that. Instead it read: "The matter before us is not Katallagete's survival. It will survive. The question is in what form, and how often it will appear. We can supply the answer. We need from contributors and readers the basis of financial support to insure the appearance of at least three issues a year."

I'll put those three issues up against any quarterly on your list of endangered magazines. If you'd like your own sample copy of Katallagete, write Post Office Box 2215, Nashville, Tennessee 37214. Or even cast a few dollars on the waters. I promise you a minor festival.

Bagpipes out-loud Concorde landing

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America is truly a land of contrasts and contradictions.

On the one hand, New York authorities refuse to permit the Concorde supersonic transport (SST) to land at John F. Kennedy Airport because of the noise factor.

In this area, on the other hand, federal authorities have authorized a downtown bagpipe concert.

ACCORDING TO a Smithsonian Institution press release, "An Evening of Scottish Piping" will be held at the Museum of History and Technology.

It will feature the Great Highland Bagpipe (GHB) in a program of traditional Scottish music, which presumably will include "Who Threw the Kilts in Mrs. MacTavish's Haggis?"

I asked the Environmental Protection Agency how the government could square allowing the Scottish GHB to be played in one section of the country while the Anglo-Franco SST was barred from landing in another.

THE GHB, I pointed out, is capable of producing a decibel count roughly 17 per cent above the noise level recorded during Concorde test landings at Washington's Dulles Airport.

A spokesman for the agency said there were a number of considerations involved in the decision.

"Kennedy Airport is in the midst of a densely populated residential area. The Smithsonian museums, by contrast, are more or less isolated along the Mall. There are no private homes in the immediate vicinity.

"We believe that granting playing rights to the GHB on Friday evening after most downtown workers have gone home will cause only minimal complaints."

I POINTED OUT that the West Front of the U.S. Capitol, which faces the Mall, has serious structural defects that could become dangerous under the stress of strong vibrations.

"Might a few bagpipe blasts cause the old sandstone walls to crumble, toppling the Capitol Dome?" I asked.

The environmental spokesman conceded there might be such a risk if the GHB concert were held at one of the museums closer to the Capitol. He noted that the Museum of History and Technology was about 13 blocks away, which is believed a safe distance.

The main consideration, however, is political. Scotland has spent a fortune to develop the Great Highland Bagpipe and has exerted strong diplomatic pressure to obtain playing rights for it in the United States.

Although the United States, for environmental reasons, has decided against developing a bagpipe of its own, the Scots insist the noise issue has been blown out of proportion.

Earlier proposals to restrict GHB playing rights to the Mojave Desert were unsatisfactory to the Scots. They contend that for a bagpipe concert to be fully effective, it must be held where someone can hear it.

Two views on Wheeling vote issues

The alleged impropriety of my family's holding liquor licenses in the Village of Wheeling needs no clarification. Why? Because anyone who has known my family should realize that both my mother and father have earned everything that they have through hard, industrious work.

When has it become a crime to improve your standard of living by hard work? The implications are merely a smoke screen to try to find a reason why a person, whose family justly earned what they have and are business people in a community, should not have any participation in local government by either themselves or members of their immediate family.

It's about time the candidates running in the election in this and maybe other communities who use tactics like this to question the honesty and integrity of other candidates take a look at themselves and have the people ask them "Is this going to be a witch hunt if those so called 'righteous candidates' are elected to serve this village?"

Will they be preparing lists of people, based on occupation, acquaintances, involvement, etc. just as was done during the administration of a prior President of the U.S.? Let's stop all these Red Herring tactics and start telling the people of Wheeling what the platforms are and what can and will be accomplished during the next four years.

William H. Hein
WCP Candidate
Wheeling Village President

ON MARCH 27, I went to the "Meet the Candidates" meeting in Wheeling. It's true we met the candidates, at least they introduced themselves, except time ran out before two of them had a chance and one was absent. The rest of the time we listened to the candidates for village president take pot shots at each other personally and extol their own virtues for past performances.

Either these two men (I'm not including the independent candidate running alone for president) are on an ego trip about the importance of the job of president, or the trustee candidates are mindless automatons programmed to move or speak when the village president pulls a string or pushes a button.

The office of president of the village board is the least important job as he only conducts the village board meetings, keeps them in order, and votes only to break a tie vote of the trustees.

When we go to the polls to vote in the village election on April 19, are we going to vote for four Trustees we don't know anything about, Trustees who will be deciding our village policy, legislating our village affairs, voting on zonings and ordinances? Are we supposed to vote for the president and take whatever or whoever comes with him as a package deal? Personally, I want to know how, or if, my trustees think. I don't want them just to do what the village president says, I want my trustees to have their own minds — Why can't we hear from them?

Worthy of note

My wife Dorcas, family and I wish to express our sincere and deep appreciation to the Schaumburg firefighters who kept a constant vigil over me for 24 hours a day when I was in a critical condition in Northwest Community Hospital recovering from a massive coronary.

We are extremely grateful to the Schaumburg paramedics who ran a telemetry strip on me when I went to work the morning of my attack. Also the many wonderful people who offered prayers, sent cards, plants and fruit, etc. to bolster my speedy recovery.

I would appreciate your continued prayers, as I know that is what has brought me back so fast and I'm sure I will have good reports so I can be back to being Schaumburg Fire Chief real soon.

Golden era of Hollywood returns to the coffers of movie makers

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The motion picture industry is entering a new golden era, if the financial analysts are right.

It's very different from the golden era of the 1930s when Hollywood's studios had huge production schedules of family audience pictures and controlled vast chains of theaters.

There are hardly any family audience pictures today, only spectaculars, and the big revenue comes from television. Most of the films are produced or at least distributed by diversified companies that are in many businesses.

Paramount, the giant of the 1930s, has less than 10 per cent of the market now and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the other giant of those days, no longer is producing. It manages its big library of old films, renting them to television networks and stations, but its main source of revenue is its gambling casinos.

THE NATURE of today's golden era is best demonstrated by the recent television showing of Alex Haley's "Roots," filmed by Universal, which consumed 12 hours of prime time.

Novelist James A. Michener said "Roots" not only earned millions for Universal and the ABC network but probably would yield author Haley $4 million at once. Michener said he thought Haley's saga of a black family was a once-in-a-century miracle like "Uncle Tom's Cabin," but he said the book publishing and film industries now will strive to approach its success.

Even before the televising of "Roots," a number of Wall Street firms had published glowing accounts of both the recent progress and the immediate outlook for the film industry.

LEE ISGUR of Mitchell Hutchins, Inc. calculated, for example, that NBC made a $3.5 million profit out of the commercials broadcast during its five-hour showing of "Gone With the Wind." NBC paid MGM $5 million for a single showing of the 37-year-old film.

The Paine Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc. study predicted that, from now on, the film producers will be able to get as much as $5 million for a single network showing of any hit movie and a minimum of $900,000 for two showings of mediocre films.

Moreover, Paine Webber said the studio's losses on film series made strictly for television are being reduced.

Only lawyers profit in energy fight

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Have you ever noticed that no matter who loses any of our various ongoing arguments in this country, one group always seems to win?

We call that group "the lawyers."

And right now there is evidence that what appears to be a newly fashionable kind of debate — between those who want to protect the environment and those who want to increase energy supplies — may wind up primarily benefiting a third group entirely: the activist lawyers.

The focus of this particular debate is on a bill, now wending its way through Congress, known as the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

NOW, THERE ARE few issues more certain to sharpen the emotions these days than surface mining: it doesn't look a bit pretty while it is going on, but it is absolutely necessary if we are to have any meaningful short-term growth in U.S. energy supplies. Hence we have the somewhat ironic presence of this bill, designed to impose strict federal regulations on surface mining, at the same time President Carter has promised to increase coal production as an essential part of a national energy policy.

But the irony is not total, nor is the debate quite so clear as it sometimes is presented. For there is, by now, a consensus on the need to protect the land from callous despoliation.

What concerns even the most civic-minded of the coal operators, however, is the introduction of restrictive amendments that could mindlessly hamper coal production and accelerate the energy problem. By creating confusion about the legitimacy of any surface mining activity, the bill could open a Pandora's box for activist lawyers — as already has happened with nuclear power — and could thus contribute to power blackouts in parts of the United States by 1979.

That possibility is far from remote. The Federal Energy Administration has pointed out the growing reliance on electricity in the United States for everything from home heating to steelmaking — a trend that puts increasing demands both on coal producers and on the nation's electric utilities, which to meet the expected needs of 1985 will have to expand their present generating capacity by more than 57 per cent. The big worry is that the needed plants may not be built in time to prevent blackouts, and the Federal Power Commission has warned that in some areas electricity shortages as early as 1979 are "distinct possibilities."

THIS VIEW is echoed by T. L. Austin, Jr., chairman of Texas Utilities, which through its three operating companies serves about 4 million persons in north central and east Texas. Austin told a House committee he strongly favored the reclamation of land but oposed restrictive amendments that he said would add needlessly to the consumer's ultimate costs.

Austin objects not to the bill's intentions, which he says he shares, but to the procedures, hearings permit requirements, studies, approvals and citizens' suits that have been added like decorations on a lawyer's Christmas tree.

The underlying question is whether, in the name of a reclamation bill, we are going to legislate still another guaranteed relief and retirement act for activist lawyers. And if we do, we should not kid ourselves that anyone else is going to wind up paying the bill.

Drop of 1.4 puts Dow at new low

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Stock Exchange issues fell to their lowest level in nearly 15 months Wednesday in slow trading when bargain hunters ran out of enthusiasm while awaiting the government's report on wholesale prices.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up about a point at one time after a .58-point advance Tuesday, fell 1.41 points to 914.73, the lowest level since Jan. 13, 1976.

Since March 16, the Dow has lost 53.27 points. It is down 89.92 points so far this year. The closely watched average has been a loser in 12 of the past 15 sessions. Many analysts look for it to drop below the 900 level.

Investors, as they have been for weeks, were restrained by inflation fears. Most observers said the government's Wholesale Price Index report today will match or better the 10.8 per cent annual rate recorded in February.

The NYSE common stock index lost .04 to 53.26 and the average price of a common share decreased three cents.

Declines topped advances, 688 to 618, among the 1,831 issues crossing the tape. The 525 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty.

Big board volume totaled 16,600,000 shares, down from the 18,330,000 traded Tuesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all exchanges at 3 p.m CST totaled 18,884,048 shares, compared with 20,927,688 Tuesday.

Women's job pay bill gains support

The administration, women's rights groups and labor unions urged Congress Wednesday to void a major Supreme Court decision by amending the 1964 Civil Rights Act to ban job discrimination based on pregnancy. Only the Chamber of Commerce offered opposition as a House Labor subcommittee began hearings on a bill designed to guarantee women "affected by pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions shall be treated the same for all employment-related purposes." Although the 1964 law barred discrimination based on sex, the Supreme Court in December ruled that did not require an employer to provide disability payments for pregnant women under benefit plans that provide coverage for virtually all other temporary physical problems. Subcommittee Chairman Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., one of the sponsors, called the bill "a most important civil rights issue."

Saudis swayed from oil price hike

Saudi Arabia has convinced Algeria to drop plans for a 10 to 15 cents per barrel oil price increase in the second quarter of 1977, the newspaper As Siyassah said Wednesday. The Algerian decision came after "secret and confidential" talks in New York with Saudi Arabian officials, the newspaper said. The Algerian price freeze will remain in effect until the scheduled June meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Stockholm, the newspaper said.

Cattle price losses predicted

Beef cattle prices are heading up this spring, but Agriculture Dept. economists say prospects show many cattlemen will continue to lose money through September. At the same time, experts said in a Livestock and Meat Situation report, both cattle and hog prices are likely to rise in the second half of the year and consumers will feel the impact in the form of higher retail prices for beef and pork. The department report said prices for choice grade grain-fed steers at Omaha, which averaged an estimated $37.88 per hundred pounds from January through March, are expected to rise to a $39 to $41 average from April through June and a $42 to $44 range from July through September. The predicted increases point the way to improved returns for cattle producers who have been losing money through much of the past 3½ years.

Auto sales top million mark

The traditionally strong spring sales upturn that eluded automakers for three straight years finally materialized in March. Americans bought 1.083 million new cars — the first time in 45 months the industry has topped the million mark. New car buyers who wanted large cars went mainly for U.S.-made models. Fuel-conscious motorists pushed imports to their best sales month ever, according to figures released this week by domestic and foreign automakers. Domestic automakers sold 895,319 cars in March, up 10 per cent from last year and the second best March ever. More than 56 per cent of the U.S.-built cars sold in the 1977-model year have been mid-sized or larger models. Import sales of an estimated 188,000 cars were up 48 per cent from last year. It was the best month ever for the foreign models, with Toyota, Datsun and Honda selling strongly. Norman D. Lean, a Toyota vice president, said "There appears to be a growing consumer awareness that America's critical energy situation is a fact of life and that the switch by motorists to smaller, more fuel-efficient cars is inevitable."

Dying child is better off home says new study

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — An estimated 3,000 children will die of cancer this year in the United States and a nursing professor said Wednesday a new study suggests many can better spend their final days at home instead of in a hospital.

The research project at the University of Minnesota School of Nursing challenges medical tradition that holds the hospital is the proper setting for the dying child.

"The rewards of home care appear to be significant," said Dr. Ida Marie Martinson in a report to an American Cancer Society seminar.

SHE SAID CHILDREN want to be at home when they die, and with home care, the family is together and the parents always are with their child at death.

"The child may receive the needed security and love stemming from the home environment without unnecessary separation," Dr. Martinson said. "The parents moreover, may derive inner satisfaction in fulfilling their child's wish to remain home. This may allay the sense of guilt which frequently follows the death."

By caring for the dying child at home, she said, parents know they are giving him or her special care not available at a hospital.

"One little boy wanted pie crusts the other day," Dr. Martinson said. "So the mother said, 'Where in the hospital could I make pie crusts for my son to eat'?"

Dr. Martinson started a three-year study project last June with support from the National Cancer Institute to study the benefits and problems of home care for the dying child.

OF THE FIRST 19 families enrolled in the project, 16 children died at home and three in the hospital. One of the children to die in the hospital, requested it for pain control, another was sent to the hospital for a transfusion and died before returning home and the third was hospitalized on doctor's orders.

Dr. Martinson said the 16 children who died at home expired peacefully. Thirteen of the youngsters died in the living room with their families.

She said one father later said in a letter:

"Seth died as we had often talked about — cuddled in our arms before a blazing fire in utter peace and quiet."

Consumer law package urged by president

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Wednesday asked Congress to pass a package of consumer legislation, including an Agency for Consumer Advocacy, the long-time Ralph Nader goal which has been stymied by eight years of GOP opposition.

Carter recommended four of the five pieces of legislation the organized consumer movement requested in January. The fifth, creation of a bank to finance consumer cooperatives, was not recommended but Esther Peterson, Carter's newly named consumer adviser, said it is under study.

Carter said the new agency would "consolidate" most consumer functions now being handled by other agencies of the government.

ASKED IF THAT meant the previous administration's program of creating special consumer advocates in each major department was out the window, Mrs. Peterson said the whole matter is being reviewed.

In addition to the ACA — which passed both houses of Congress but died in conference committee last year because of White House opposition — Carter proposed:

- Legislation to give money to consumer groups to help them better represent themselves in government proceedings and to give federal courts "more discretion to reimburse litigation costs."
- A law which would give citizens more power to sue the government in "appropriate cases."
- Legislation that would expand the possibilities for class action suits, an activity which has been limited by some recent court rulings.

Nader has pinpointed the ACA as the one thing he would most like to leave as a legacy to the consumer movement.

Cubs, White Sox swing into action

Rebuilding (what else?) begins at Wrigley Field

Byline report

Art Mugalian

Sure, there will be 40,000 crazies at Wrigley Field today, snow or shine, most likely shine.

Sure, the place will go up for grabs when Ray Burris whips in that first strike.

Sure, Jack Brickhouse will say, "Forget your troubles for an afternoon and come out and see the exciting, young and promising 1977 version of the Chicago Cubs."

BUT LET'S face it. The Cubs are crummy again.

That's not a rap. Taking nothing away from manager Herman Franks' team, however, it doesn't seem likely that the Cubs will be battling for the National League East title in September. Again.

Except for a few brief, bittersweet flings in the late '60s and early '70s, the recent Cubs have never been serious contenders for the pennant. When Brickhouse filled the airwaves with platitudes, you knew he was only jivin'.

Why should it be any different this year?

THE PITCHING IS defective, the fielding is erratic and unever, and the meat of the batting order is Grade D government-rejected.

But let's give the 1977 Cubs a break. Let's assume the best, that their current 0-0 record will not be the high point of the season.

After all, the Cubs have a new manager, Franks, and a new general ager, Bob Kennedy. The team has a new man at third base, Steve Ontiveros. They have a new shortstop, Ivan DeJesus, and they have a new rightfielder, Bobby Murcer.

The Cubs even have a new injured first baseman, Bill Buckner.

It's all untested material. You don't know how they'll perform in a Cub uniform. Well, you have an idea.

THE STARTING rotation is built around Cub veterans Burris, Rick Reuschel, and Bill Bonham, all righties, and surprise 25-year-old righthander Mike Krukow, who spent most of 1976 at Wichita.

The busy bullpen includes Jim Todd, back for his second sentence with the Cubs; the already-legendary Bruce Sutter; the other half of the Cubs' historic brother-act, Paul Reuschel; and two guys named Hernandez.

The Cubs even have a bullpen in the outfield. Greg Gross, Gene Clines and Joe Wallis can relieve the regulars if the arms grow sore or the bats get heavy.

Some old standbys are back for another year. Popular Jose Cardenal will be loitering in his familiar leftfield area and Jerry Morales will move over to center to make room for Murcer. Steady Manny Trillo will be at second base.

BEHIND THE PLATE, George Mitterwald and Steve Swisher will resume their friendly competition for the regular catching chores, though neither of them seems too intent on winning a permanent job.

What does it all mean? Will it be another dreary summer on the North Side? Or can there be a miracle at Addison and Clark?

Time will tell, as it generally always does.

If Murcer and Morales provides the power that is expected of them, if Ontiveros and DeJesus come through on the left side of the infield, and — most important — if the pitchers can pitch, the Cubs could finish fourth or maybe even third.

ENOUGH OF THIS optimism. Let's be pessimistic while there is still time to avoid the charge of sour grapes.

The Cubs can't beat Philadelphia and they can't beat Pittsburgh even if Murcer hits 50 homers and Burris and Bonham win 20 each. The team isn't good enough.

So the question has to be: Is there enough there to make it interesting? Will it be fun for awhile?

We can expect to see a lot of running this year. DeJesus will steal everything in sight — if he can get on base. Cardenal is always good for a measure of excitement and a laugh. Murcer's bat should provide some thrills. And Buckner, of course, is an ex-Dodger. How much closer to a pennant can you get?

Still, this will be a rebuilding year for the Cubs. They will be rebuilding a team that finished fourth last year, 12 games under .500. They will be rebuilding a fandom that was disappointed and shocked by two horrendous trades.

This team will, as they say, take a lot of chances in 1977. Really, what do they have to lose?

HEADING for the playoffs? Bulls' Tom Boerwinkle loses his head while coming to grips with the basketball Wednesday night in Washington. The Bullets doused the fired-up Bulls, 97-96, muddying the playoff picture for the final berth with idle Kansas City.

Bullets thwart charging Bulls

From Herald Wire Services

LANDOVER, Md. — Fighting desperately for a final post-season playoff berth, the Bulls staged a thrilling rally in the final minute Wednesday night, but still couldn't overcome the Washington Bullets, 97-96.

Trailing 97-90 inside the final 60 seconds, the Bulls got crucial baskets by Mickey Johnson and Scott May plus two foul shots by Artis Gilmore to pull within one point.

Washington's Elvin Hayes had an opportunity to put the game away, but missed three consecutive foul shots with four seconds remaining.

GILMORE REBOUNDED the final miss, the Bulls called time and set up Norm Van Lier for a 30-footer at the buzzer that rimmed, but wouldn't drop, denying the Bulls a chance to stretch their lead over idle Kansas City and move a step closer to clinching a playoff berth.

Dave Bing pumped in 11 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter to spark Washington and former Bull head coach Dick Motta to the victory — the Bullets' third straight.

Elvin Hayes also had 19 points and Phil Chenier 17 for Washington while Wilbur Holland scored 23 points for the Bulls. Johnson added 13 points and 13 rebounds while Wes Unseld contributed 11 rebounds for the Bullets.

Based on the criteria for breaking ties: 1. head-to-head competition, 2. conference record and 3. division record, the Bulls are still in the playoff hunt.

HEAD-TO-HEAD is out because Kansas City and the Bulls split, but if the Kings lose one more of their three remaining games, the teams will also have identical 19-21 conference records.

If that occurs, the Bulls would need to finish ahead of the Kings in the standings. That would take two more Bull victories in their final two games.

In other NBA action Wednesday night, Buffalo beat New Orleans, 107-102, Houston downed Boston, 104-93 and San Antonio whipped Philadelphia, 131-109.

Is .500 year best hope for wrecks of Veeck?

Byline report

Bob Gallas

All through the winter, White Sox president Bill Veeck promised fans that "This won't be the team we'll begin the season with."

Even after pitchers Rich Gossage and Terry Forster were dealt to Pittsburgh for outfielder Richie Zisk and pitcher Solvio Martinez, Veeck kept up the campaign, hinting that more deals were coming, just be patient.

But the big deal never came. Bucky Dent and Clay Carroll were traded off but the Sox got little in return, certainly no one to turn things around from last season's sixth place finish and 97 losses. Veeck picked up a few bargain basement free agents like Eric Soderholm, Steve Stone, Royle Stillman and Tim Nordbrook, with Soderholm the pick of the litter. However, the big catch got away.

VEECK HAS either refused or was unable to meet the demands of the superstar calibre free agents who were available this winter. Sox pitching, especially the bullpen, has been thinned out to the danger point. The outfield will still be one of the poorest defensively in the American League. Kevin Bell will have to spend the season learning to play shortstop, although Al Bannister may wind up there in the end.

In short, the Veeck magic that prevailed most of last season will be hard pressed to finish any higher than fourth this year, and will probably end up clinging desperately to fifth.

Pitching is still of concern to the Sox and Veeck will probably try to swing some sort of deal for a pitcher before the June 15 trading deadline. Last season pitching was an area where the Sox had a surplus. Not so anymore.

In addition to the departed Gossage and Forster, the Sox gave away to St. Louis the right handed ace of their bullpen, Clay Carroll, a high salaried and aging, but still effective hurler. In return, they received Lerrin LaGrow, whose prime concern of late has been trying to stay out of the minors. Pete Vuckovich, who was tough in long relief, was also lost in the expansion draft.

Sox pitching more than anything else is dependent of the success of the surgeon. Three of the Sox' four starters went under the knife at some point last year.

WILBUR WOOD (4-4, 2.56 ERA in '76) sat out most of last season after fracturing his knee. Steve Stone (3-6, 4.08 ERA in 17 games for the Cubs in '76) is trying to come back after shoulder surgery and Chris Knapp (3-1, 4.82 ERA in 11 games in '76) had minor surgery. That leaves opening day pitcher Ken Brett (10-12, 3.32 ERA in '76) as the only member of the starting rotation who didn't contribute to rising hospitalization insurance rates.

Lefty Dave Hamilton (6-6, 3.59 ERA in '76) is the only returnee of note from last season's bullpen crew.

On the plus side, Zisk should hit 25 homers as Veeck is expected to return the center field fence to 400 feet from home plate instead of 445. Newcomers Stillman and Soderholm plus Lamar Johnson, Jim Spencer and Bell, all have the potential for 15 and Jorge Orta, now that he's been returned to the more familiar surroundings of second base, could hit 20.

Soderholm who had a hot spring, will open at third after sitting out last year due to knee surgery. With Bell down in Florida learning shortstop in 10 days or less, Bannister and/or Nordbrook will work at short now that Dent has turned Yankee.

ORTA, A DISASTER as a third baseman-left fielder last season, returns to his native second base where he is adequate. Jim Spencer, one of the more underrated first basemen around, gives the Sox an outstanding glove and reasonable bat (.263 avg., 14 HRs, 70 RBIs in '76).

The Sox have a surplus of designated hitters with Johnson (.320, 4 HRs, 33 RBIs, in 82 games) Nordbrook, Stillman and newly-acquired Oscar Gamble.

Centerfielder Chet Lemon is the key to the Sox garden patrol. A .246 hitter last year with four home runs and only 38 runs batted in, Lemon hasn't lived up to his potential either at the bat or in the field. Ralph Garr, a singles hitter who led the club with his .300 average in '76, will be in left. Zisk, a better fielder than most give him credit for, will take right.

Behind the plate, the big question is the condition of Brian Downing's arm, which has been giving him trouble on and off all spring. Downing hit .256, but drove in only 30 runs last year. Jim Essian is a proficient backup, especially defensively.

The Sox are definitely rebuilding and not in the way teams like California have rebuilt with free agents.

WITH THE $250,000 to $400,000 the Sox got from the Yankees for Dent, they may be able to sign the likes of Brett, Garr and Orta who are disgruntled with their pay and playing out their options. Or Veeck may use the cash to buy himself another player.

A relief stopper is the Sox' biggest need but it will take a player of the Garr-Orta-Lamar Johnson class to get him. Second baseman Jack Brohamer is also very expendable.

Forget about the Sox as contenders. The division race will be a cozy battle between Kansas City and California who far surpass the rest of the division in talent.

The tag "Veeck's Wrecks" will again be appropriate.

Monte Clark ousted as 49er grid coach

SAN FRANCISCO — Edward DeBartolo Jr. swept into town for the first time since purchasing the San Francisco 49ers and dropped a bombshell Wednesday when he announced Monte Clark, who had the National Football League team in title contention until the waning weeks of the season last year, would not be back as head coach.

Coupled with the termination of Clark's contract, which still had three years remaining, DeBartolo named highly successful NFL executive Joe Thomas as vice president and general manager.

Despite the somewhat cruel ending, both DeBartolo, whose purchase of the team from the Morabito family was approved last week by the NFL, and Thomas held out an olive branch to Clark.

"I, more than anyone in this room, want Monte Clark to coach the San Francisco 49ers, " DeBartolo said. "If Joe Thomas was not involved here, I still would have renegotiated Monte's contract. Under his contract with the previous owners, he had authority and duties that were far beyond those of a coach. "I chose Joe Thomas to be general manager and the duties that went along with it Unfortunately, the contract Monte had was in direct conflict with that of a general manager."

Unretired Ali to fight Evangelista

NEW YORK — Sometimes unretired heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who recently completed filming the story of his life, Wednesday joined promoter Don King in orchestrating a $2.7 million takeoff on "Rocky" by announcing a title defense on May 16 at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., against unknown Alfredo Evangelista of Spain.

Ali, reportedly feeling the pinch after an expensive divorce settlement this winter, has been weighing offers from various promoters in recent months.

King came up with Evangelista, a short, stocky Uruguayan fighting out of Madrid, Spain, who is ranked among the top 10 heavyweights in the world on some of the rankings but not on others. Evangelista, who will earn $85,000 for the fight, is 22 and has a record of 13-1-1. He is said to have a strong knockout punch.

Ali couldn't care less what Evangelista's record is, caring only that he will be receiving $2.7 million for the fight which is scheduled to be telecast on ABC-TV at 8 p.m. on May 16.

Blue will be pitching, but for whom?

While the recent feud between Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley and his ace Vida Blue seemed all but settled with the pitcher's return, a new twist was added to the scenario Wednesday.

Texas Rangers' owner Brad Corbett announced his club was in the process of negotiating a deal for Blue and said the chances of the trade materializing were an even 50-50.

An irate Blue walked out on the club Monday saying that he was "fed up with the man (Finley)." Since winning the Cy Young Award in his rookie season, Blue and Finley have repeatedly had run-ins, the most memorable being the sale of the left-hander to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million last season. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, however, voided that transaction.

"I notified his agent (Chris Daniels) he (Blue) was going to be suspended for 30 days," said Finley, "which would cost him $30,000 in salary." Finley also demanded Blue return immediately at the risk of being levied with a $5,000 fine.

Nagy, Johnson, Hardwick in 'Hall'

AKRON, Ohio — The Professional Bowlers Assoc. announced Wednesday that three men had been elected to its Hall of Fame here and will be inducted in ceremonies on April 18. Chosen in the Performance Category were Billy Hardwick, Louisville, Ky., and Don Johnson, Las Vegas, Nev. Both are still active on the pro bowling tour.

Steve Nagy, who died in 1966, was named in the Meritorious Service Category. Hardwick, who has won a total of 17 Professional Bowlers Assoc. tournaments, picked up his first title in 1963 and his most recent was in Toledo last year.

Johnson, holder of 26 tour titles, was a winner for the first time in 1964 and his most recent win was the New Orleans Classic in February. Nagy was one of 33 founding members of the PBA and served as PBA president in 1963 and 1964.

Auerbach labels Cuba trip 'stupid'

BOSTON — The United States' most recent attempt at sports diplomacy, a tour of Cuba by a group of South Dakota college basketball players, is "stupid," Boston Celtics' President Red Auerbach said Wednesday.

"The Cubans play basketball very well. It's the No. 2 sport there," Auerbach told the executive club of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"They play rough and tough and you're going out there in the lion's den with their officials and everything else," said the man who coached the Celtics to nine National Basketball Association championships. "And here you've got just an average small college ballclub."

"Well, I honestly think we're stupid," Auerbach said. "Barring anything, they're gonna get beat. They should whip us. Why go to Cuba and get whipped?"

Hawks to wear home uniforms for road battle

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Islanders will be playing the role of the visiting team in their home arena tonight when they try and wrap up their preliminary playoff round against the Black Hawks.

The Islanders, who beat the Black Hawks 5-2 Tuesday night, have the unusual advantage of playing all three first-round playoff games at the Nassau Coliseum, thanks to poor planning on the part of the Hawks. The second game between the two clubs was to have been played at Chicago Stadium on Thursday, but the arena was unavailable.

When the Islanders refused to play any other time, the game was shifted to the Coliseum. As a result, the Islanders will be wearing their road uniforms, while the Black Hwwks will be dressed in their home colors and will have the home-ice advantage of making the last line change.

BUT THE HAWKS won't have the support of the crowd, and Chicago Coach Bill White is not exactly pleased about his club's predicament. "It may help the Islanders, psychologically, to have the crowd behind them," said White. "I'm disappointed about not playing at home, but there's nothing we can do about it now. I spoke to (General Manager) Tommy Ivan and he said we should have finished first (in the Smythe Division); then we wouldn't have had this problem."

The third game, if necessary, will be played here Saturday night.

The Hawks looked like anything but a first place team on Tuesday night. They took only 16 shots at Islander goalie Billy Smith and were kept in the game solely by the inspired goal tending of Tony Esposito.

"ESPOSITO STOPPED us singlehandedly," said Islander defenseman Denis Potvin. "But everybody put out on our club and we decided there was no way we could walk off the ice after 60 minutes with a loss."

Esposito will be back in the nets tonight, and Smith is expected to be in goal again for the Islanders. Islander defenseman Bert Marshall, who missed Tuesday night's game with strained ligaments in his left knee, will sit it out once again in game two.

Masters begins

Calm, relaxed Weiskopf ready

by IRA MILLER

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Nothing will ever change Tom Weiskopf.

Not the fines, not the reprimands, not the bad image that have haunted this tempestuous but talented golfer. He has a history of involvement in countless controversy, he has been known to quit tournaments in the middle in disgust, and last year he even played on in one after he was supposed to have stopped during a storm.

But while it might be too late for Weiskopf to start winning popularity contests, there's something else he would much rather win — and has a far better chance —and that's the 41st Masters Tournament which begins today.

FOUR TIMES in the past eight years Weiskopf, a self-described "perfectionist," has been a runnerup in the Masters, first of the four major tests that comprise golf's Grand Slam.

He has said he someday will win this tournament and Wednesday, as he prepared to face a field of 76 rivals — including his good friend and ever-present rival, five-time champion Jack Nicklaus — on the famed Augusta National Golf Club course, he appeared calm, relaxed and ready while discussing his checkered past and his current preparations.

"My biggest problem has always been myself — you guys know that," Weiskopf told a group of writers clustered around him in the green-carpeted locker room.

ONE OF THEM noticed that Weiskopf, now 34 years old and the game's No. 5 all-time moneywinner, appeared much more at ease than he was perhaps five years ago.

"Maybe I found muself (five years ago) doing what you guys wanted me to — being the temperamental guy," Weiskopf said.

"I care about what people think about me. There's only one person who knows me, and that's me, and I never considered myself a bad guy, temperamental.

"I'm a perfectionist. But when your (the reference here was to press buildup) superstar didn't turn out to be such a superstar, he was temperamental, moody, but, boy, when I'm playing good, then it's Tom Terrific."

WEISKOPF'S GOLF swing is among the finest and most natural on the tour, but he rarely has performed to expectations. His career total of $1.4 million in winnings has been built on consistency with an occasional burst of "Tom Terrific" excellence, such as the summer of 1973 when he won five times, including the British Open, in a stretch of eight tournaments.

This year, a year in which a wave of youngsters has dominated the PGA tour, Weiskopf has not won in nine starts. His best finish was a third place last month at Doral in Miami.

Weiskopf played last week at Greensboro, where he is a former winner, but failed to survive the 36-hole cut. Meanwhile Nicklaus, who has been out of the top five in the Masters only three times in the past 14 years, was here for his usual extra pre-tournament practice.

"Jack is the exception, not the rule," Weiskopf said. "Just because he's won the Masters five times, that's not the only way to do it. I know the course. That's why I don't come here early like that. Some of us don't have $10 million in our pocket and some of us like to play at Greensboro."

'Moose' Skowron among Herald batboy judges

Three local people will serve as judges in The Herald — Chicago White Sox essay contest for children.

Bill "Moose" Skowron, former Yankee star first baseman who later played with the White Sox, will be a judge. The Chicago-born Skowron who lives in Schaumburg, works for Lytton Financial Printing and also speaks on bicycle safety for the secretary of state's office.

Also judging will be Stella Peysner, author of several children's books and a Palatine resident. The third judge will be Lloyd Meyer, coach of the Arlington Heights American Legion team which placed second in the nation last season. He is associated with Meyer Bros. Dairy in Arlington Heights.

Boys and girls ages 10-14 have until noon Tuesday to submit their essays on "Why I would like to be a White Sox batboy or batgirl." Only one essay will be accepted from each youngster.

Each essay should be no longer than one side of an 8½-inch by 11-inch sheet and accompanied by an official entry blank. Judging will be based on creativity, sincerity and originality, and the decision of the judges is final. Winners will be announced in The Herald on Saturday, April 16.

The grand price winning batboy or batgirl will represent Paddock Publications as honorary batboy or batgirl at Comiskey Park during the White Sox homestand April 29-May 1 against the Texas Rangers.

Interesting season ahead in major league baseball

Ah, it's Spring, when a young person's fancy turns to free agents, lawyers, holdouts, six-figure contracts, and million-dollar tax write-offs.

In other words, baseball.

Now the players are ready to take the field. Many of them have actually signed their contracts. The legal groundwork has been laid and the 1977 season is set to begin.

Lenny Randle has even thrown the ceremonial first punch.

It promises to be an interesting, if unusual, year for the National Pastime. Two new teams in the American League will further dilute the talent, although nearly everybody is earning $100,000 now anyway. And don't be surprised if a court injunction ends the whole season in June.

For those diehard fans who tell time by the pennant races, here is a quick sum-up of what to expect.

National League East

PHILADELPHIA — The Phillies will have to shake off their late season nose dive of 1976. They made the playoffs but went down quickly in three games to the Reds. The Phillies will again be chased only by the Pirates, who have the potential to take it all. Gone is second baseman Dave Cash and the Phils will miss his lead-off bat that got him on base more than 200 times a season. Also gone is first baseman Dick Allen, but that loss will probably turn out to be a plus since Richie Hebner should fill Allen's shoes nicely. The Phillies sport one of the best bullpens in the league and should do it again in '77.

PITTSBURGH — With Terry Forster and Rich Gossage joining the club from the White Sox and returning to the more comfortable surroundings of the bullpen, the Pirates should be improved for new manager Chuck Tanner. Richie Hebner played out his option and defected to Philadelphia. The Pirates traded Richie Zisk and Manny Sanguillen, but with the bats of Willie Stargell, Dave Parker and Al Oliver, the Pirates still have potent firepower.

ST. LOUIS — Vern Rapp will be the rookie manager of the Cardinals this season and will need some pitching if he expects to turn around the Cards' swoon of the past two seasons. St. Louis traded for Larry Dierker (13-14 with Houston) and Lynn McGlothen (13-15 with San Francisco) during the offseason, so the pitching should be better. Bucking the percentages, pick the Redbirds for third in the division.

NEW YORK — The Mets as usual sport some of the best arms in baseball with the likes of Tom Seaver, Jerry Koosman and Jon Matlack and one of the best home run hitters in the league with Dave Kingman. The Mets were ninth in hitting in the National League last year, sixth in runs scored and last in stolen bases so there's not much else after Kingman and the big three pitchers. Color them fifth, behind the Cubs.

MONTREAL — The Expos won the least amount of games of any team in

Reds overcome snow, Padres in opener, 5-3

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cesar Geronimo hit a two-run homer off San Diego ace Randy Jones to power the world champion Cincinnati Reds to a 5-3 victory over the Padres Wednesday in the 1977 National League opening game, played only after snow plows pushed two inches of snow off the Riverfront Stadium turf.

Veteran left-hander Woodie Fryman, acquired from Montreal in an off-season trade, got credit for the victory, although he gave up six walks and seven hits in the 5 1-3 innings he pitched.

Jones, last year's Cy Young award winner who had off-season surgery on his pitching arm, was the first of four Padres pitchers and took the loss.

A FREAK APRIL snowstorm a few hours before game time dumped two inches of snow on the artificial turf, but groundskeepers used snow plows, shovels and wheel barrows to cart the snow off the field. The last huge pile of snow was removed only 30 minutes before the game started.

Players and fans alike shivered throughout the two-hour, 27-minute game played in 38-degree temperature, but most of the 51,937 persons who purchased tickets turned out for the game. The Reds did not immediately announce an official attendance figure, although it was near capacity.

Reds' third baseman Pete Rose, who pleased Cincinnati fans by signing a two-year contract Tuesday, received a hearty round of applause each time he came to bat, but was hitless in four trips to the plate.

The Padres pounded out nine hits off three Reds pitchers, but stranded a dozen baserunners. Mike Ivie had a solo home run for San Diego.

What teams look tough for 1977?

the majors last season (55) but have added some punch and could finish out of the cellar for a change. Dave Cash will help at second and Tony Perez moves over to first from Cincinnati as the Expos did alright in the re-entry draft. But pitching is the big question mark for new manager Dick Williams. The Expos lost their bullpen workhorse, Dale Murray (4-9), 13 saves in 81 games) and starter Woody Fryman (13-13) in the Perez trade but gained Will McEnaney (2-6, seven saves) in the deal. Could finish as high as fourth but will probably trail the field by September.

National League West

LOS ANGELES — New manager Tom Lasorda takes over after 23 seasons of Walt Alston as manager and just may have the formula to catch the Reds. Speed will key the Dodger attack which will be bolstered by outfielders Dusty Baker and Reggie Smith and shortstop Bill Russell who were bothered by injury problems last year. The addition of Rick Monday from the Cubs further bolsters the outfield and will add power to go with Ron Cey, Steve Garvey and Russell. Pitching relies on the starting staff of Don Sutton, Burt Hooten, Doug Rau and Rick Rhoden.

CINCINNATI — Will contract squabbles tear apart the world champions? Only the pennant race will tell. With Tony Perez, one of the Reds' better clutch hitters gone, Cincinnati still has a lineup potent from top to bottom. The loss of starter Don Gullett to the Yankees will thin the pitching corps, despite the addition of Fryman from Montreal. With Dan Driessen (.247, seven HRs, 44 RBI) ready to step in for Perez and Johnny Bench healthy again, the Reds as usual will be tough.

SAN DIEGO — Here is the team that could surprise, but would still need a minor miracle to overhaul both the Reds and Dodgers. McDonald's czar Ray Kroc, also Padres' owner, dipped deep into the free agent well and came up with catcher-first baseman Gene Tenace and reliever Rollie Fingers. The biggest question mark is Randy Jones, a 20-game winner for the past two seasons and the National League's Cy Young Award winner, who underwent arm surgery during the off season. The Padres also picked up hard hitting outfielder George Hendrick from Cleveland. Pick the Padres to break the .500 barrier for the first time, but no better than third place.

SAN FRANCISCO — Another rookie pilot, Joe Altobelli, takes over the helm of the rebuilding Giants. The Giants lost firepower when Gary Matthews played out his option and Ken Reitz was traded to the Cardinals. The Giants traded Bobby Murcer to the Cubs but got Bill Madlock, two-time N.L. batting champ. John "The Count" Montefusco should come through with another good year on the mound but the club should do no higher than fifth, possibly sixth.

ATLANTA — Give owner Brad Corbett and "A" for effort and "F" for methods. Corbett picked up Matthews and got himself suspended from baseball for a year for "tampering." For the second winter in a row, Corbett cleaned house at Atlanta, trading five players for Jeff Burroughs of Texas. Mike Marshall may or may not be healthy enough to regain his form of old in the bullpen. Again, the Braves are an improved ballclub, but can only hope to finish fifth, and the cellar awaits again.

American League East

BOSTON — Add free agent hurler Bill Campbell, a healthy Fergie Jenkins and the Red Sox pitching will be stronger than last year but not as formidable as the Yankees. An ankle injury will shelve Fred Lynn until late April or early May. The addition of aging George Scott may give the Red Sox some power at first base. If the ageless Luis Tiant can come up with yet another good year (21-12, 3.06 ERA), the Bosox have the best chance to whip the Yankees.

NEW YORK — The batting order tells the story of this club — Graig Nettles, American League home run champ in '76 with 32, could bat as low as seventh. With the addition of Reggie Jackson, Bucky Dent and hurler Don Gullett, the Yankees supposedly have bought themselves a title. Perhaps the best balanced team in baseball. Just how well all those superstars play together will be the question only time can answer.

CLEVELAND — Third is about the best the Indians can hope for. Andy Thornton (from Montreal) Wayne Garland (reentry draft) and Al Fitzmorris (from Toronto) will help. Not too much in the way of long ball hitters.

BALTIMORE — The loss of Garland, Jackson and Grich, all of whom played out their options, will hurt the aging Orioles. Jim Palmer will anchor the pitching again on a thin staff. Pencil in the fading Orioles for fourth.

DETROIT — A knee injury has shelved Mark "The Bird" Fidrych and the Tigers will miss their star hurler for the first couple months of the season. The young Tigers are still maturing and must rely on veterans Ron LeFlore, Rusty Staub and Willie Horton for the scoring punch. Fifth place.

MILWAUKEE — Cecil Cooper and Sal Bando should produce some runs as new faces for the Brewers this season, but the pitching is woefully weak. Gone are Jim Colborn (traded to Kansas City) and Danny Frisella (killed in dune buggy accident). All that's left are Bill Travers (15-16) and Jim Slaton (14-15). Thanks to the expansion Blue Jays, the Brewers won't have to worry about the cellar.

TORONTO — After 15 years in the minors, Roy Hartsfield is finally getting his chance to manage in the majors, but doesn't have much to work with. Bill Singer should anchor the pitching corps and Pete Vuckovich (from the White Sox) may surprise as may Sam Ewing, a minor league batting chance who's never had a good shot in the majors.

American League West

KANSAS CITY — Hitting is the Royals strength with the one-two punch of George Brett (1976 A.L. batting champ) and Hal McRae (runnerup). Manager Whitey Herzog was counting on pitching ace Steve Busby, who still isn't ready to return after a year off due to injury. Hurler Paul Splittorff also missed much of last year with an injury and will be needed if the Royals are to hold off the expected rush from California.

CALIFORNIA — Owner Gene Autry plunked down a cool $4.5 million for the talents of free agents, Don Baylor, Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi. Add to that the return of an injured Bobby Bonds and the pitching of Nolan Ryan and Frank Tanana and the Angels have an instant contender. But give the Angels some time to learn to play together. The relief pitching is weak. Pick the Angels to finish second — maybe take it all.

MINNESOTA — The Twins finished hard in '76 after Bert Blyleven was dealt to Texas for Roy Smalley, Mike Cubbage and Jim Gideon. The loss of hurlers Singer and Campbell puts the pressure on an already thin mound corps, but the Twins have hitters, like Butch Wynegar, Rod Carew and Lyman Bostock.

OAKLAND — Can owner Charlie Finley survive after a winter of chasing Commissioner Bowie Kuhn around a courtroom? Gone are Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers, Don Baylor, Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando. Enough said. Fifth, possibly sixth place for the A's.

TEXAS — The Rangers plucked Campaneris and Alexander from the free agent market and traded like crazy to improve on their fourthplace finish. Jim Umbarger's departure could hurt the aging pitching corps. If all the pieces fall together, the Rangers could rise as high as third, but should finish fifth or sixth.

SEATTLE — Pitching is weak but the Mariners have the nucleus for years to come with some talented young players, such as 21-year-old Ruppert Jones. Manager Darrell Johnson will be looking up at the rest of the league all year.

Officials' strike could lead to chaos

Byline report

Charlie Dickinson

Prior to their Wednesday night game with the Washington Bullets, the Chicago Bulls' Magic Number is two.

Any combination of Bull wins and Kansas City Kings losses equating two will cinch a Western Conference playoff spot for Chicago.

The National Basketball Assn. also has a Magic Number of two. Any combination of two officials without NBA experience, working the playoffs, will lead to all sorts of problems.

THE NBA playoffs are scheduled to begin next week, an annual bloodletting that is the ultimate goal of every team.

Making the most of their situation and importance to the playoffs, the 24-member NBA referees association is planning a strike, possibly before the regular season ends Sunday.

"We feel that since the NBA has continued unfair labor practices, we are entitled to strike before the regular season ends," said Richie Phillips, the refs' attorney, earlier this week.

Not surprisingly, the officials' main gripe is money.

OFFICIALS ARE under many of the same pressures that wear away at the players. They are constantly on the go, moving from airport to arena to airport. Occasionally they get to stop at a motel but most of their sleeping is done on planes.

Their greatest goal is anonymity but that is rarely achieved. For a player, one mistake is forgiven in exchange for a clutch basket or blocked shot. An officials' error is never forgiven.

And for all this verbal and physical abuse, the base pay of an NBA official is just $18,000.

When officials pick up the paper and read about the bucks collected by some players, it is little wonder they are finally demanding a piece of the pie.

A STRIKE of the NBA playoffs would produce results indicative of the officials' importance to the game.

Bulls' coach Ed Badger, following his teams' win over Denver last Friday, refused to comment on the games' officiating, saying, "I don't want to say anything because we might get them in the playoffs."

His remark was one of self-preservation. It is not smart to take shots at the men with the whistles when there are still games to be called.

But, what would be the results if amateur officials were stuck into the violent chaos of the NBA playoffs?

NBA COMMISSIONER Larry O'Brien has said he has officials standing by in the event of a strike.

"I've been advised by the supervisor of officals that this fine young (referee) talent that we have . . . are in place and will be available to officiate all games," he said.

That's great, as far as it goes.

What O'Brien seems to overlook is that any official not used to the hammer and tongs style of NBA basketball may do more harm than good.

A FEW YEARS back professional baseball umpires honored a strike by stadium vendors in Pittsburgh and amateurs were brought in to call the game. There were no controversial plays and, all in all, the stand-ins were praised for the job they did.

It is foolish to draw a parallel between baseball and basketball and say that since amateurs held up well enough on the diamond they will carry on on the hardcourt.

Much is made of NBA officials keeping a game "under control." Fact of the matter is, if a ref had a game under complete control, the sport would self-destruct in an orgy of free throw shooting.

WITH A HALF dozen 240-pounders smashing against each other every time the ball goes in the air and four fleet-footed guards grabbing and pushing, there are times when every player on the court is doing something illegal.

Purists may deplore the heightened physical contact but that's the way the game is played now and NBA players are the finest athletes in professional sports.

A strike by NBA officials, and the use of amateur replacements, could severely undercut the intensity of the playoffs and may alter the results.

Badger said it best. "Amateur refs wouldn't be used to the contact and that could cause a lot of problems. The refs we've got now aren't perfect, but at least they don't miss every call."

Win at bridge

Grasshopper wins one

In Aesop's fable of the grasshopper and the ant, the grasshopper wasted his substance in riotous living in summer and starved in winter while the frugal ant lived happily for years.

This doesn't always work out in a bridge game.

East wins the first trick with his ace of clubs and the frugal ant plays his tiny three spot. The ant is sure to take the next two clubs as well as two diamonds, two spades and one heart. In addition, he should be able to find an eighth trick somewhere — but the all-important ninth won't be forthcoming.

Now look at the spendthrift grasshopper. He drops the king or queen of clubs under the ace!

Later on he will cash his ace and king of diamonds and king of clubs and lead a low club. Dummy's 10 of clubs will become an entry for North's last three diamonds and the grasshopper South will pick up at least nine tricks, which is a lot better than the ant's seven or eight.

Ask Andy

Heredity plays major-role in baldness cases

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Gina Sametini, 12, of Utica, N. Y., for her question:

WHY DO PEOPLE GET BALD?

When your hair falls out and does not grow back, you are bald. While it can happen to anyone, the odds are in favor of it happening only to the male members of the population. Baldness may begin early in the 20s and even in the teens occasionally. Often the condition is associated with the middle years of a man's life, although many are never bothered by baldness.

We do not know the exact cause of most cases of baldness, although we do indeed know that sex, age and heredity play their parts. About 95 per cent of all cases occur with the male who is middle-age and who had a balding father and grandfather.

Although a few girls become bald, most just suffer from a thinning of the hair in their later years. Wigs can easily solve the problem.

Baldness with the male usually starts at the temples and with a receding hairline. Sometimes it starts at the crown, forming a bald area toward the back of the head. The bald spot in top and the receding hairline may then meet and leave only a thin fringe of hair around the head.

Temporary baldness has been known to happen as a result of certain infections and scalp disorders. When the disease is terminated and the problem solved, normal growth of hair will begin.

Treatments and formulas that report to be able either to prevent baldness or regrow hair are a waste of money because they are ineffective. Baldness, whether we like it or nor, is permanent and incurable. Only one method, the transplanting of hair through surgical procedure, can change a person's baldness.

A temporary bald spot has been found with some babies, caused by friction as the head is rubbed against the bedding. The hairs break off close to the scalp, giving the head a bald look. This is just a temporary condition and one that will solve itself as the baby grows older.

A most unusual form of baldness is called alopecia areata. This is a disease in which patches of hair suddenly fall out, causing bald spots in the scalp. The cause of this distressing condition isn't known, and there is no cure. Alopecia areata, however does not last long and the hair usually grows back.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Janice French, 10, of Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, for her question:

ARE YOUR EYES IMPROVED BY EATING CARROTS?

Carrots were so named because they are rich in carotene, a yellow pigment found in some foods which the body chemically converts to vitamin A. And vitamin A is necessary for the material in the retina of the eye which lets us see in a dim light. So carrots are indeed important for the eyes.

Carotene is also found in sweet potatoes, milk, egg yolk, liver, butter, yellow corn and leafy vegetables. In some foods, the color of the chlorophyll masks the yellow of the carotene.

Carrots are delicious either raw or cooked. We eat the root of the plant, discarding their lacy fern-like tops.

9 incumbents win in city, village votes

by United Press International

Former State Rep. John J. (Jack) Hill squeaked to victory by 32 votes to win election as mayor of Aurora, final official results showed Wednesday.

Hill, 58, an 18-year Springfield veteran, got 7,955 votes to 7,923 votes for Robert J. O'Connor.

In other results, Illinois voters reelected at least seven incumbent mayors and two incumbent village presidents Tuesday. One incumbent mayor was unseated.

Skokie Village Pres. Albert J. Smith and Oak Park Village Pres. James J. McClure Jr. also won reelection.

Urbana's incumbent mayor, Hiram Paley, was unseated by Republican Jeff Markland, 3,471 to 2,485.

Five other Illinois cities elected new mayors to replace retiring chief executives or those not seeking reelection. Newly elected were Bloomington Mayor Richard D. Buchanan, Galesburg Mayor Robert W. Kimble, Quincy Mayor Dave Nuessen, Evanston Mayor James C. Lytle and Berwyn Mayor Thomas Hett.

CHARLES NICHOLS ran unopposed in the Belleville mayoral race.

In Rockford, McGaw, a Democrat, defeated Republican Arthur Nielsen 16,682 to 13,959. Carver defeated Kenneth Dahlstrom in Peoria 11,217 to 4,064.

Lenz won reelection on a write-in campaign in Alton against three other candidates. Lenz, who had held the post for eight years, was not listed on the ballot due to a discrepancy in his petition, but gained more than 50 per cent of the vote.

Final results gave Lenz 5,597 votes to runner-up Edward P. Schenk's 3,115.

In Macomb, Arnstine tallied 2,404 votes against 502 for his write-in opponent, David Loker. Schuler had 6,230 compared to challenger Daniel J. Partney's 5,140 in the Granite City election.

IN THE FREEPORT race, McLeRoy earned his third term by out-polling challenger Jerry Manning 3,982 to 1,001.

Smith scored a decisive fourth-term victory over Bernard B. Nathan in Skokie, 8,646 to 3,408. In Oak Park, McClure won a second 4-year term, polling 6,773 votes to 3,342 for opponent H. John Yopp.

In the Urbana race, Markland grabbed 50 per cent of the vote to unseat Paley, a first-term mayor. Markland received 3,471 votes to Paley's 2,485. An independent candidate, Norman Bagby, was third with 937.

BUCHANAN DEFEATED Victor E. Armstrong Sr. 3,659 to 1,924 to replace retiring Bloomington Mayor Walter Bittner. Kimble edged out Frank L. Johnson Jr. 3,122 to 3,008 to replace retiring Galesburg Mayor Robert Cabeen.

Nuessen, a Republican, defeated Democrat Joe Bonansinga in the Quincy election, 8,127 to 6,641. Lytle received 7,913 votes against runner-up Lola Flamm's 5,344 in the four-way Evanston mayoral contest.

In Berwyn, Hett, a Democrat, outpolled Republican William Bedrava 10,984 to 6,388.

In Arlington Heights, Ryan won by a three to one margin, getting 6,338 votes to opponent Douglas R. Cannon's total of 1,859.

Fowler elected to Young's House post in Georgia

by United Press International

The voting machines in Georgia were barely closed Wednesday when Atlanta City Council President Wyche Fowler took the oath of office for the House seat vacated by U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young.

In Los Angeles, Tom Bradley polled nearly 60 per cent of the vote to win reelection as mayor of the nation's third largest city.

Fowler, 37, was sworn in before his certificate of election arrived in Washington and showed up in time to join other House members for a 10-day Easter recess Thursday.

HE BEAT CIVIL rights activist John Lewis, who was backed by Young and other black leaders, in Tuesday's run-off election with a strong showing in the predominantly white suburbs of Atlanta.

Fowler's election makes Georgia's 10-man house delegation all white again. He said he hoped his victory was based on name recognition and not race.

Bradley, a black, ran a low-key campaign and accused his chief opnent, State Sen. Alan Robbins, of favoring secession of the San Fernando Valley from Los Angeles. The valley is a mostly middle class, white suburban area.

Bradley, son of a black sharecropper, neutralizied Robbins' appeal on the school desegregation issue by saying most blacks oppose "massive crosstown busing."

FOWLER'S ELECTION leaves the House with 290 Democrats and 144 Republicans, with one vacancy in Washington state for the seat left by Brock Adams, the new secretary of transportation.

Liberal Democrat Marvin Durning and Republican State Sen. Jack Cunningham won a primary Tuesday and will face minor party candidates May 17 in an election for Adams' seat.

In other races Tuesday;

- Paul Soglin, former student anti-war leader, was reelected mayor of Madison, Wis. by a landslide.
- James F. Conway, a Democratic state senator, won the race for mayor of St. Louis despite a write-in campaign aimed at black voters.
- Al Veys, a South Omaha, Neb. grocer, engineered a successful write-in campaign in a primary race for mayor of Omaha.

Army's clubs take the 'happy' out of the 'hour'

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) — "Happy Hour" in U.S. Army clubs in Europe is not going to be as happy as it used to be.

As anyone who was in the army knows, the happy hour — often it was hours — was the period in which army clubs sold drinks at half price. Usually the happy "hour" was between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Fridays. Some clubs sold drinks at cut prices twice a week.

But now the headquarters here of the U.S. Army in Europe has ordered clubs to stop selling drinks at reduced prices in line with its campaign against alcoholism.

"We want to demphasize and deglorify the use of alcohol," one officer said.

Gen. George S. Blanchard, commander of the army in Europe, in endorsing the new regulation, said, "More attention must be focused on our alcohol abusers."

Army officers at the headquarters here said they were not abolishing "happy hour" and that they hoped soldiers still would gather in clubs.

They suggested the happy hour in the future might feature entertainment or pizza or some other food at a cut price.

KEN BOSWORTH says being a homeowner has many advantages, but he realizes that yard work and other chores come with the property.

More singles finding home ownership the way to go

by JOE FRANZ

Ken Bosworth is young, ambitious and has an eye to the future. He shares many of the goals of other Americans. What sets him apart from the crowd is that he's single and a homeowner.

But he's among a growing number of singles who are passing up or giving up the "swinging singles" apartment scene in favor of the American dream — home ownership.

"There's still the stigma that if you buy a house you're either married or getting married," said Bosworth, 26, a lawyer who recently purchased a three-bedroom ranch house in Arlington Heights.

"BUT THERE'S NO correlation between the two," he said. "You don't have to be married to buy a house."

Richard D. Fulk, part owner of Century 21-Peters and Fulk Realtors, Arlington Heights, said although married couples still buy the vast majority of homes, there has been a definite trend in the last two years toward home ownership by singles.

"I think young people are a little bit more knowledgeable about real estate as an investment," he said. "They see it not only as a place to live, but also as a way to build equity.

"Many (singles) are realizing if they can get enough for a downpayment their mortgage payment isn't that much more than if they are paying rent for a two-bedroom apartment," Fulk said.

FULK SAID economic incentives, more plentiful mortgage money and the fact that men and women are getting married later in life have contributed to the trend toward home ownership by singles.

"Singles and women in particular are having a much easier time getting mortgages now than they used to," Fulk said. "Actually I think many singles are more qualified than some married men because they don't have the medical bills and obligations of a married man."

Ken Gohr, a salesman at the Lexington Green development near Schaumburg, said he believes the increasing divorce rate and the tax load placed on single persons are the primary reasons for the trend toward home ownership by singles.

"I would say that 35 to 40 per cent of the people buying at Lexington Green are single," he said. "That percentage is made up of divorcees, persons who have never married, widows and widowers."

FULK SAID about 75 per cent of the singles buying homes from him are men and that about 50 per cent of the homes sold to singles are single-family residences.

"About half of the homes are single-family with the rest being townhomes, quads (quadrominiums) and condos (condominiums)," he said.

Although the factors that attract singles to the home buying market are numerous and varied, economics is the reason cited most often.

"The primary reason I bought was because real estate is a sound investment," said Fred Di Dio, a 27-year-old salesman who will move in May into a three-bedroom home in Palatine. "I'm doing it mainly because of the tax advantages and because it's a good hedge against inflation."

MICHAEL SUMMERVILLE, 28, an Illinois state trooper who will be moving into a quadrominium in Schaumburg any day now, said he purchased a home because he's tired of paying rent.

"Over the last three-and-a-half years I've paid about $6,000 in rent," he said. "And for that period of time I've got nothing to show for it but a pile of rent receipts.

"By buying something I'm not only building equity in something, but at income tax time I can knock off all of the interest," he said.

Bernard Prange, 36, a draftsman, who will move in November into a three-bedroom tri-level home near Schaumburg, said he bought primarily for the tax advantages and investment value.

"THE TAXES I'm paying now are eating me up," he said. "I also think property is a sound investment because thereis no way it can go but up."

Bosworth said his monthly payment for principal and interest on his home is comparable to the rent he used to pay, and will be paid in part by two men who rent rooms.

"I'm paying even less with the two renters in the house," he aaid.

Di Dio and Bosworth said that within a few years they plan to sell their homes and buy more expensive residences.

"It's an investment for three to five years," Bosworth said. "After that I'd like to get into a bigger house."

DOROTHY JANOUSEK, 25, a supervisor in the accounting department of United Airlines, said the three-bedroom tri-level home she will move into near Schaumburg in November will be more than an investment.

"I plan on staying there for a long time," she said. "Sure it's an investment, but I'm not just doing it to make money. I've lived in a home all my life and think I would prefer it to apartment living."

Bosworth said that while he purchased a home primarily for economic reasons there were other factors that entered into his decision.

"If you're living in an apartment and the guy upstairs has a party you either have to join in or live with the noise," he said. "The same goes if you're having a party. You have to worry about disturbing people."

PRANGE SAID HE is looking forward to the privacy of his new home. "In an apartment everybody in the building knows what you're doing," he said.

Di Dio said owning a home not only allows the occupant more privacy, but also gives him more freedom to decorate and make modifications to the residence.

"In an apartment you either can't make certain changes or because it's so temporary you don't want to put the money into it," he said.

Bosworth said if he still lived in an apartment he wouldn't be able to have Abraxas, his German Shepherd.

"Even if I did have him in an apartment there would be no backyard to let him out into," he said. 'In an apartment there also is no yard to play football or have a barbecue."

ALTHOUGH MOST OF the singles questioned are pleased with their decision to purchase a home, they said being a homeowner is not without its disadvantages.

"One of the disadvantages is the maintenance and having to do yard work," Bosworth said. "In an apartment if something goes wrong with the heat, electricity or plumbing you call the management and they come and fix it. But in a home it's your responsibility."

Bosworth said another disadvantage is that utilities in a home are much more costly than in an apartment.

"I'd rather not have to worry about these things, but they're something that go with owning a home," he said. "I think they give you a sense of responsibility."

DI DIO, WHO purchased a home in Palatine's Pepper Tree subdivision, said he chose the area because it has California-style homes. He said the fact that it is on a small lake and that the subdivision has a private swimming pool also were factors that entered into his decision.

"One of the reasons I bought a home where I did was because the recreational aspects were greater at Pepper Tree," he said.

Miss Janousek said recreational facilities were not a consideration when she purchased her home.

"I bought where I did because I liked the area and layout of the house," she said. "I also wanted a house on a corner lot."

Bosworth said he chose a home in Arlington Heights because that is where he grew up.

"I wanted to stay in the area because I have a lot of friends here," he said.

Summerville said he believes that prospective buyers are unwise to put off buying a home because they cannot afford the exact home they desire.

"Instead of trying to save up a down payment to buy exactly what they want, they ought to buy something they can afford right away," he said. "That way they'll start building up equity right away and can't lose. Later they can buy what they want."

One-family home sales set record

Last year was the best year in history for the sale of existing single-family homes in the nation, the National Assn. of Realtors reported.

"Just over three million existing single-family home transactions took place in 1976, making it the best year ever for the resale market," said H. Jackson Pontius, executive vice president, in releasing the annual report prepared by the association's department of economics and research.

Pontius attributed the record volume of 3,002,000 units to a number of factors. Among them were the ample supply of mortgage funds at interest rates that were the lowest in recent years, bright employment prospects and a substantial rise in personal income.

Accompanying the sales increase was a record growth rate in dollar volume, the report said. During the year American consumers spent $126.7 billion on resale homes, a 32.5 per cent increase over the 1975 figure. Of the $31.1 billion rise, the report says, 70 per cent resulted from the increase in the number of sales transactions and the remainder from a rise in selling prices.

"Historically, the growth in dollar volume has been spectacular," Pontius said. "The value of sales in 1976 was almost double the total of four years earlier and more than three and one-half times the 1968 level."

Somewhat surprisingly, the report says, the growth rates were almost identical in each of the four regions of the country. Existing home sales in the South and North Central regions grew by about 23 per cent, in the Northeast by 21 per cent and in the West by 20 per cent.

With 1,110,000 sales, the South became the first of the four regions to record more than a million resale transactions in a single year, the report notes. The South accounted for more than one of every three existing single-family homes sold during the year. The percentage of the total for the other regions were: North Central, 28.1 per cent; West, 19.7 per cent; and Northeast, 15.3 per cent.

Despite the strong level of activity, the report says, the median sales price rose a relatively modest 7.9 per cent to $38,100, the lowest price rise since 1973 and the first increase of less than 10 per cent in three years. However, there was a wide variation by region, with a 16.4 per cent increase in the West, 9.3 per cent in the North Central region, 6.4 per cent in the Northeast and only 4.9 per cent in the South.

The report shows the steady rise in home prices in terms of the growing proportion of single-family home resales occurring in the higher price ranges. Last year 28.2 per cent of all such sales were of homes priced at $50,000 or above. Just four years ago, only 9.0 per cent of the homes sold were priced that high.

The report notes, the high-priced Western region led the nation in the percentage of homes in the upper price bracket, with 41.2 per cent selling for $50,000 or more and 16.6 per cent for $70,000 or more.

"Despite the rising cost of energy, buyers have not lost interest in larger homes," Pontius said. "In 1976 sales of existing homes containing four or more bedrooms accounted for 26.4 per cent of market activity, virtually identical to the preceding year when these larger homes represented 26.6 per cent of all resales."

Home finance plans gain backing

A U.S. Senate proposal to establish two new, alternative methods of housing finance is being supported by the American Bankers Assn.

Testifying on the Young Families Housing Act before a subcommittee of the Senate Banking Committee, Robert W. Irving said bankers believe that graduated payment mortgages and individual housing accounts "can become valuable and widely-accepted alternative means of providing housing."

The graduated payment mortgage would offer home buyers reduced mortgage payments in the early years of property ownership, allowing younger individuals to purchase homes earlier than is now the case and to begin to build equity for the future.

INDIVIDUAL HOUSING accounts would permit prospective home buyers to tax-shelter up to $2,500 a year, with a ceiling of $10,000, by depositing it in IHAs. Up to 10 years later, the home buyer could use those funds as a down payment on the purchase of a first home. Funds accumulated in IHAs would be treated as capital gains until the property ultimately was disposed of.

Irving noted that the graduated-payment mortgage proposal has some possible drawbacks, but said they "should not force the abandonment of this and other progressive thoughts concerning alternative mortgage plans." He said careful review of the program would make it possible to refine the use of graduated payment mortgages.

The ABA spokesman warned, however, that the viability and fairness of the IHA program could be threatened by the current interest rate differential between what banks and savings and loan associations are allowed to pay for savings deposits.

Irving said the interest rate differential should be eliminated for IHAs. "The perceived rationale for the existence of an interest rate differential is to attract savers' funds into thrift institutions which supposedly carry a mandate to reinvest those funds into the housing marketplace. In any case, a differential for IHAs is not necessary because the funds collected in IHAs are already earmarked for housing."

Irving is chairman of the government relations subcommittee of ABA's Housing and Real Estate Finance Division, and senior vice-president of the Equitable Trust Co., Baltimore.

The ABA is the national trade association of the banking industry. Its membership comprises 13,252 banks.

Are you 'in' or 'out'? Try this for size

There's a new trend afoot as evidenced in the life styles of young suburbanites.

"You may have it — but don't flaunt it."

So notes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

The new suburban credo: No showing off needed here. The status symbol today is informality plus community involvement.

"This goes for just about everything in day-by-day living — but especially in the home," Goss says.

He offers a checklist of the new "ins" and "outs:"

• In: Do-it-yourself projects. Adding on a red brick patio or wallpapering the dining room — instant hits.

• Out: Professional lawn and landscaping services. The young marrieds like to do these things — previously labeled as chores. Mowing the lawn, trimming the hedge and growing vegetables and flowers all tend to make for a slender waistline.

• In: Refinishing antiques or making your own pottery or any phase of ceramics — all good. And making a patchwork quilt has lots going for it too.

• Out: Posh sundecks and swimming pools.

• In: Recreational pursuits within the community. Having a bicycle parked in front of your home means more to the young suburbanite than an expensive car.

• Out: Golf — tennis has taken its place.

• In: Informal dinner parties with homecooked food — chili a mainstay — and lots of use for the family room.

• Out: Ostentatious mailboxes and attention-getting furbelows on a home — the simpler the better.

• In: A collection of paintings by unknown artists — usually friends or neighbors.

• Out: Signature scarves, name luggage and designer labels. Blue jeans and casual living are now the name of the game.

There is no doubt about it. Young suburbia is embracing the homey, uncluttered way of life.

"Even the most affluent young people believe that good taste and low-key spending are most meaningful," Goss says.

Limited supply of condominium units: Kaplan

A dwindling supply of existing condominium units, increasing construction costs and the availability of mortgage money make spring 1977, an excellent time to make that long-thought-about purchase, according to an area real estate firm.

"The condominium inventory in the Chicago area is almost negligible now," said William S. Kaplan, president of Condel Realty Company Inc., Morton Grove. "The small supply we have means that new condominium construction should start again soon. Unfortunately, rapidly rising construction costs will substantially increase the price of that new condominium."

Kaplan's firm is the sales agent for Bar Harbour at Windmill Lake, a 150-unit complex in Schaumburg.

"The cost of building a home in the Chicago area rose 9.6 per cent last year, exactly double the 4.8 per cent national figure recorded in the Consumer Price Index," according to Kaplan.

"It appears that the easing in the rate at which construction costs have risen over the past several years has ended, at least for the present time."

The increase for 1975 was 5.2 per cent, 7.89 per cent in 1974, and 11.46 per cent in 1973.

"This means that a newly-constructed condominium similar to the units offered at Bar Harbour could conceivably cost as much as 25 per cent more than our existing homes. The person who buys now, while there still are existing units and while mortgage money is readily available, will come out ahead financially."

The major reason for increased construction costs are the rising prices of building materials. Prices of five of the Consumer Price Index's nine composite building materials rose during the final quarter of 1976. Insignificant wage boosts to building trades members helped offset some of the increases.

"This is not the first time home-building costs in the Chicago area have gone up twice as fast as national living costs in general," Kaplan said.

"In the 1960s, they often outstripped living costs by the same margin. At that time, however, construction wage increases were the primary reason."

Bar Harbour has homes ranging in size from 1,469 to 1,875 square feet and priced from $36,650 and $55,800. The 36-acre community is at Schaumburg and Meacham roads.

Bar Harbour models are open from 10 to 6 week days, 11 to 6 weekends or by appointment.

New ways to save energy on way: exec

"Your air conditioner may be heating your bath water, while your coffee is being kept warm by the refrigerator."

Such eye-opening uses of energy in the home are predicted for the near future by Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

"The name of the game today is energy conservation — Americans are being asked to turn down their thermostats and to drive slower. A great deal of research is now being conducted to find ways of building energy-efficiency directly into our homes.

"In fact, many builders are finding that energy-saving design features are not only practical for the future — they are strong and viable selling points today," he said.

Goss lists several new developments:

• Waste heat produced by air conditioning systems will be used more and more to provide hot water for home use.

• Experimental devices have been developed which harness the heat given off by a refrigerator's coils to boil water — to help keep foods warm in the kitchen.

• Solar energy panels, which will pay for themselves in 10 years in lower utility bills, will soon be an affordable reality for the American homeowner.

• Home heating and cooling systems — both to be contained in the same outdoor "module" — are being readied for mass manufacture. This innovation is aimed at saving interior space, reducing noise plus providing easy access for servicing the unit.

• Hundreds of gallons of water may be saved by the installation of separate recycling systems for drinking and washing water — as water is used, it would be filtered, purified, and re-used.

• Rain falling on a specially-designed roof will be collected, treated and sterilized for drinking purposes — then fed into its recycling system.

• Building materials which act as heat-transfer systems are now being tested. For example, we may soon have walls and ceilings made of synthetics which "breathe" warm air in, cold air out — or vice versa.

"All of these advances promise to reduce energy consumption levels significantly," said Goss, "but the best energy-saver of all will continue to be the American consumer's common sense."

Mortgage delinquencies remain about the same

Mortgage loan delinquencies at the nation's savings and loan associations and cooperative banks remained virtually unchanged in February, dropping slightly from 0.98 per cent to 0.977 per cent, according to the U. S. League of Savings Associations.

"Mortgage loan delinquencies reached their high point in the month of February in both 1975 and 1976," said Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the league. "This February's mark of 0.977 per cent was well below the 1.06 per cent mark reached in February last year."

The league bases its monthly delinquency figures on reports from 920 savings associations and cooperative banks representing 48 per cent of the assets of the business. For purpose of the survey, a loan is considered delinquent if payment has not been made within 60 days of the date stipulated in the mortgage contract. All types of mortgage loans — conventional, FHA and VA — are included in the survey.

THE LEAGUE IS the principal trade association for the savings and loan and cooperative bank business. Savings associations are the nation's chief suppliers of home mortgage funds.

Strunk said that association mortgage loan delinquencies represent less than 1 per cent of all the mortgage loans on the books.

"Even in a nation where credit is widely used by nearly all families," Strunk said, "the debt obligation on the home takes number one priority except in dire emergencies."

Neighbors fearful of zoning change

People power is still the stronget factor for preserving a neighborhood. The neighborhoods where all of the residents show an active interest are generally good places to live, and are favored with stable values. The following letter is an example of how this works.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The house I live in is quite old, but has been well maintained. All the houses in our neighborhood are similar. Other homes of similar age in the city are selling for very low prices. This is not the case in our neighborhood. The reason for this is the care and attention that all of the neighbors have shown in maintaining their homes. Any one of the neighbors who allows his house to run down is immediately informed by the other residents to "shape up."

Now we have a new problem. One of the properties in the middle of the block has been sold. Yesterday they posted a zoning notice which indicated that the new purchaser intends to install a beauty parlor. It is our feeling that this commercial use in the midst of our homes could destroy the residential character of the neighborhood.

What can we do to protect our homes? — Home body.

The notice that was posted on the building was placed there for a purpose. The municipal government is informing the residents that the purchaser of the property has applied for a zoning change.

They are giving the neighbors an opportunity to appear at an open meeting and express their opinions on the proposed change in zoning. If the neighbors are in agreement that this would hurt your area. The best way to defeat the proposal is for all of you to appear at the meeting and express your opinions. Unfortunately, this will take a good deal of organizing on your part, and you may have to hire a lawyer to represent you at the zoning hearing.

However, it is my experience that when the neighbors stand solidly behind an issue, the politicians will usually listen to their complaints.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Ours is a very old house, but in pretty good shape. The one problem we have at present is that the floors are sagging in the center.

We have brick supports under the beam. Do you think it would be advisable to raise supports in the basement to level off the floors? I'm really not an expert in these matters, so I'm seeking your advice. — Drooping below us.

The first thing you should do is discover the cause of the sagging floors. If rotting timbers are the culprit, you would have to replace the floors.

I assume that the bricks support the girders across the floor joists. If these supports were built from the ground up instead of from the concrete floor, it's possible that they have sunk into the earth. If this is the case, the floor can be raised by using adjustable metal posts, which is not a complicated job.

Seek the advice of hardware dealers or someone in the building material business.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We are looking for a house, but we know nothing about values or whether a house is built well.

Is it possible that you know someone in our area who could look over a house we are interested in, advise if it is a good buy, and check to see if any major repairs are required?

We would be so appreciative of any help. — Careful and wary.

There are three professional groups which can be of service to you. Because of their training, codes of ethics and experience, they are competent and trustworthy.

They are the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, The American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, and the American Society of Appraisers. I am sending you a roster of members of these groups in your area.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My husband and I sold our house and made a down payment on a new one. We had promised our daughter that when we sold our house, we would give her our beautiful electric oven. We did this and replaced it with the original oven that came with the house, which had been stored in our basement.

In the meantime, the buyer changed his mind and told us he wanted to back out of the sale and wanted his deposit back. We refused, naturally, because we had already put a down payment on our new home, and needed the proceeds from the old one to settle on the new house.

The day before settlement was to take place, the buyers visited our old house and noticed that the oven had been changed.

They said this was not the way the sale had been made, and since we had changed equipment, they refused to go ahead with settlement. They threatened to sue us for the down payment.

We told them we would bring back the oven we had given our daughter. But they say it's too late. We need this money to settle for the new house, and we can't find another buyer at this late date. What can we do? — Honesty is the best policy.

The buyer must settle because when the oven was brought back, the house would be in the original condition in which it was sold. They cannot back out of the deal on that basis. The agreement is valid.

It's to each his own when considering buying a house

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

Individual differences in taste help to explain why the shopper is confronted with a baffling choice of colors, cuts, textiles and styles in clothing. If we all felt the same way it would certainly simplify life for the clothier — and make for a very dull life.

Tastes in how one's money should be invested follows the same pattern.

Dear. Mr. Campbell: I have always felt your advice on financing a home has been somewhat irresponsible. But when you advised a 78-year-old man and his wife to desert a perfectly comfortable and satisfactory apartment to buy a $25,000 home — well, that's madness!

This couple's income is $11,000, as you remember, and presumably they intend to pay cash for the home for the sole purpose of beating inflation. Can't you see that by 'investing" in this home they are automatically cutting their income to about $9,000 or less (the difference being the loss of interest on the $25,000) and that wipes out any savings on rent?

There are many experts writing about investments today and I doubt any of them would follow your line of thought on this. To quote only one, Dr. Morton Shulman, in his book, "Anyone Can make a Million," says, "On a purely financial basis, purchase of a home by the average person is bad economics. It is cheaper to live in an apartment close to the center of the city both as to the actual cost of living and time and expense in commuting."

And you don't have to be an economist to recognize the many advantages other than economic that a maintenance-free apartment offers an elderly couple over a home with its grass to cut, plumbing to repair and advice on investments to someone who dvice on investments to someone who understands economics and the problem of our senior citizens. You don't seem to comprehend either. — Mr. R. B. (Bethlehem, Pa.)

A. I'm delighted that you've found such a staunch champion of your viewpoint in Dr. Shulman. I happen to think that you're both all wet.

The couple you made reference to was not the least bit interested in apartment living, did not intend to pay cash for the house and I haven't got the foggiest notion where you got the idea that by buying a home they were cutting their annual income by $2,000 —a figure that you plucked out of the air by assuming a loss of interest on the $25,000.

What you completely ignore is that, by buying the home (no, not for cash outright), the couple is cutting its monthly housing expense in half — leaving about $150 a month for other investments — while, at the same time, the property is appreciating steadily in value.

You don't like home ownership and that's fine. You don't like my grasp of economics and that's fine, too. I don't happen to like the way you read into, or out of, a letter only those portions on which you consider yourself the country's leading expert.

Dear Mr. Campbell: We purchased real estate in New Mexico in 1970 and 1971 through a land development company and have paid taxes on these properties the past two yeas, but have not received our tax notices for the current year (which we normally would have received last November).

I also have just read an article where four officers of the company have been convicted of mail fraud and unlawful land sales in New Mexico. Our two pieces of property are comproperties the past two years, but have the deeds.

Do we have any recourse for recovery of any or all of our original purchase price? If not, could we write off the purchase price on our income tax? What should we do about the current property taxes? — Mr. L. A. T. (San Leandro, Calif.)

A. I think a long overdue trip to the county seat in New Mexico where your land is located is very much in order — to find out what the tax status is and to find out what disposition is being made of the development now that the roof has fallen in on it.

County officials on the scene also can tell you what the odds are on getting your money back — which I would imagine are slim. No, you can't write the purchase price off for tax purposes (at least not yet), because you don't technically have a loss on it.

But I'm afraid that you are going to have to go to the scene of the crime to straighten this mess out.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am 65 years old and have been in this apartment for seven years starting at $70 for a four-week month and $17.50 more for five weeks. He went up twice in 1975 and now he has gone up again to $110 for a four-week month. I had to burn my gas for a month before he would put the heat on. I am unable to move (sickness and money) and Social Security will give me no more than I am getting. — Mrs. C. T. (Philadelphia, Pa.)

A. I wish I could say something that would make you feel better, but I can't. I would certainly appeal to your local welfare agencies, though, to see if you don't qualify for some assistance.

House hunting? Realtor says this is the time to buy

Real estate experts will tell you that the best time to buy a home is when you have the downpayment for the house you want and can afford paying the monthly mortgage installments, property taxes, and operating a home.

In other words, it's a smart investment any time it can be afforded, whatever the price. Owning a home is the best investment available to most families.

But while he agrees with this philosophy, one authority contends there are some times that are better than others.

"YOU MIGHT save a substantial amount of money by buying now rather than waiting if you can do so," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner Inc. and generaly manager of the diversified real estate iompany's residential sales division.

His "buy now" advice is based on current mortgage interest rates, which Walters says "are probably as low as they are going to be for some time."

He said lending institutions are bulging with savings deposits. As a result, there is an abundance of mortgage money available.

To illustrate how interest rates affect the cost of owning a home, Walters prepared a chart that shows how each one-quarter of 1 per cent of interest adds to costs in a range between 8.15 and 9 per cent, which represents what interest rates recently have been in Chicago.

His chart is based on a home with a $50,000 purchase price on which the buyer is able to make a downpayment of 20 per cent, or $10,000, and secure a 29-year mortgage.

THE CHART uses the 8.25 per cent interest rate as the base line. In other words, each other line compares with 8.25 per cent.

"As you can see, the difference between an 8¼ and 8½ per cent rate of interest on a $40,000 mortgage is only $7 a month. But for the full mortgage term it's more than $2,400. And the $22 a month difference between 8¼ and 9 per cent translates to $7,360 for the life of the mortgage," Walters said.

Interest Rate	Monthly Interest Cost	Increase Per Year	29-Year Increase
8.25%	$302.92	—	—
8.50%	$309.91	$ 83.88	$2,432.52
8.75%	$316.96	$168.48	$4,885.72
9.00%	$324.07	$253.80	$7,360.20

Besides low current interest rates, home prices are almost certain to be higher in the future, he said.

"There's a general feeling that homes will not continue to appreciate at a rate of 12 per cent a year, as has been the recent experience," Walters said..

"But even at half that rate, let's say 6 per cent a year, today's $50,000 house will be $53,000 in a year. And if interest rates should rise once again, as is likely if the economy continues to expand, it will compound the cost," Walters said.

Housing starts at new high

A record increase in housing starts, combined with a strong rebound in building permits issued, have virtually assured that the entire January shortfall in housing activity due to the severe weather will be made up in the coming year, according t the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America.

Housing starts posted a record monthly increase in February, following the record monthly decrease in January, said John Wetmore, chief economist for the MBA. Total starts hit an annual rate of 1.8 million units.

Single-family starts reached an annual rate of 1,422,000 units, exceeded in recent years only by the 1,431,000 pace in January 1973.

While Census Bureau figures on single-family starts only go back to 1959, Wetmore estimates that the record was set during the Korean War boom of 1950 with 1.7 million single-family starts, with the second highest year being 1955 with 1.5 million starts.

Building permits issued in February matched the high December level of 1.5 million units. Permit activity for apartments was unusually strong, indicating a significant rise in apartment starts later this year, Wetmore said.

Home buying called best investment for future

Since the average value of a home has increased more than 100 per cent in the past 10 years, many financial experts and homeowners agree that buying a home is one of the soundest investments a person can make.

Build-up of equity interest and addition of yearly tax savings provide the basis for their recommendations.

"Homeowners are discovering ways to use their home investments effectively as a cornerstone in their financial planning," said John L. Markay, a partner of Gladstone, Realtors, which has eight offices in the West and Northwest suburbs. "The key to these approaches seems to be a more sophisticated attitude towards the home's value."

Markay, who also is a board member of RELO (Inter-City Relocation Service), said that while it is common for many people to look forward to a day when the mortgage can be paid off, others deal with their home investment as a tangible asset that can be tapped for additional capital. This capital, in turn, can generate more income or be used to enhance the family's lifestyle.

CURRENTLY MOST home purchases require a down payment of about 20 per cent. The homeowner who wants to maximize his or her investment potential tends to keep the equity interest at about this level, said Markay, adding that a homeowner's equity interest increases through monthly mortgage payments, as well as through the home's growing value on the resale market.

It is possible to take advantage of a home's added value over the years by refinancing, or by selling the home at a profit. The additional capital thus received often is used to buy income producing property, or to upgrade a lifestyle with a new house.

Markay offers three examples of ways home ownership can aid in financial planning:

• In one, the Jones family bought a $20,000 home in 1966; in 1976, with its value increased to $43,000, the home was refinanced, returning the family's equity interest to 20 per cent. The cash difference was used for a down payment on an income producing rental apartment building.

• In another example, as a member of RELO, Markay described the movements of the Smith family. With an original and similar $20,000 investment in 1966, this family now relocates in new communities every three or four years. With each move, they use the profits from a former house sale as a 20 per cent down payment on a house with a greater market value. Their second home was purchased in 1969 for $40,000. On their third move in 1973, they purchased a $68,000 home. Last year, in a fourth move, they bought a home for just under $100,000.

• A more conservative approach was taken by the third family, the Jacksons. They decided simply to let their home's growing value add to their net worth. They, too, bought a $20,000 home in 1966 and by 1976 noted that it was worth about $43,000. Monthly mortgage payments and appreciation had increased their equity interest to more than 75 per cent and deductions for interest payments save them money on each year's income tax bill.

"Home ownership is a winning investment for the vast majority of people," Markay said. "Even the conservative approach of the Jacksons reflects sound financial planning. Their goal is to own the house free and clear; the other two families effectively used their initial investments to create additional income assets and enhanced lifestyles."

Got some time to burn? Try painting your home

Dear House Doctor: I have recently retired and need activities to fill my time. The outside of my house needs painting and this should be a project to keep me occupied for a week or two. It is one-story frame and is in reasonably good condition, having been painted six years ago. Some pointers will be appreciated. R.H.G.

A. — House painting is the perfect project for the homeowner with time to spare, since the preparation of the surface is more time-consuming than the actual painting. The following list will keep you busy for several days.

Remove all loose paint by scraping and feather the edges of paint around bare spots by sandpapering. A sanding disk used with a portable electric drill makes this easy.

Replace defective caulking around doors and windows. Check all windows for loose putty and replace where necessary. Remove mildew by washing with a suitable fungicide; otherwise it will soon reappear on new paint.

Nail down loose boards. Sandpaper rust from nail heads and apply a rust-inhibiting primer. Cover knots with shellac or aluminum paint. Touch up bare spots and allow paint to dry before proceeding with painting.

IF YOUR house previously was painted with oil paint, it is best to continue with this type as there is less chance of the paint peeling. Exterior latex paint is fast drying and is much easier to use, but when applied over oil paint, a special bonding primer should be applied first.

Start painting at the top and work down. Use a good quality four or five-inch brush. Apply the paint in six-inch-long daubs spaced the same distance apart and over the siding overlap, then spread evenly, being sure to cover the lower edge of the siding. Where convenient, paint the entire width of one area before proceeding to a lower area.

If a different color paint is to be used on fascia and trim, this is applied after the main body of the house is complete.

Outpatients' clinic

J. B. — Your fireplace should have a damper located a few inches above the opening. If there is one installed and it is closing properly, it should prevent the smoke odor from entering the house when the fireplace is not in use.

B. G. — The most durable finish for a hardwood floor is penetrating sealer. A material of this type is used on gymnasium floors.

P. G. LeG. — The construction and installation of a skylight is not a project for the inexperienced. Real expertise is required to prevent rain leaks. The skylight should be double glazed to reduce heat loss.

Dishwasher repair

Dear House Doctor: The finish on the inside of the door of my dishwasher is damaged and the metal is rusting. What material is used for repairing it? S.P.

A. — The first thing you should do is attempt to obtain a new door. If the model is more than 10 years old, a door may not be available, but try this first.

If you must refinish the surface, remove all rust by sandpapering and then paint with two-part epoxy enamel. This finish may not be permanent, but it is the best that is available.

TV interference

Dear House Doctor: When an electrical appliance is used either in my home or in my neighbors', we get so much interference with our television that we cannot use it. The salesman at the department store where we purchased the set has no answer. F. T.

A. — The interference is caused by arcing in electrical connections. During the '40s and '50s, many homes were wired with aluminum wire due to the scarcity of copper. The aluminum corrodes beneath binding screws of receptacles and switches, and arcing results. This can be corrected by turning off the current and cleaning the corrosion from the wires at these terminals.

Another frequent cause is a loose connection in the ground wire, either at the distribution panel or at the water pipe or ground rod to which the outer end connects.

Electrical appliances, such as vacuum cleaners and food mixers, have carbon brushes that press against the commutator. Dirt, corrosion or roughness on the commutator will cause sparking. There are many items to examine but it is always arcing at bad connections that is causing the interference.

Masking tape

Dear House Doctor: Masking tape was placed around some closet doors. Some of the adhesive remained on the door when the tape was pulled off. How can this be removed? R. B.

A. — The adhesive on masking tape and cellophane tape will respond to trichlorethylene. It is best to buy this in the pure state, but if you cannot find it, Carbona cleaning fluid contains a large amount of it.

Carpenter Ants

Dear House Doctor: At certain times of the year, I see increasingly large infestations of carpenter ants. I cannot find their nest. They are crawling all over the outside of my house. One suggestion I received was to ignore them. Another was to apply chlordane dust around the house foundation. I prefer not to do this. Can you help me? Mrs. W.S.B.

A. — If you want to close your eyes and let the ants eat up your house, you can do that, too, but that is not my recommendation. Carpenter ants usually nest in rotting wood, which may be decaying trees near the house. You should continue to search for the nest, using a hatchet, if necessary, to cut into suspected parts of trees.

When you find the nest, stir eight heaping teaspoonsful of 5 per cent wettable chlordane powder into a gallon of water and thoroughly soak the infested wood with this. Should you find that they are attacking wood in the porch or other exposed parts of hour house, soak the wood with a 5 per cent solution of pentachlorophenol. This chemical is very poisonous, so observe all precautions printed on the label.

Florida to bounce back: exec

Home building and real estate sales in Florida are expected to rebound significantly this year after several years of economic problems, according to one developer.

Louis R. Fischer, president of the Miami-based General Development Corp., said the 20-year-old company has always found the Chicago area to be one of its prime markets, pointing out that more than 16,000 homesite owners are now living in the Northern Ilinois area. He said about 2,000 buyers have already built homes and have migrated to one of General Development's seven Florida communities.

"In addition, our records show that we have about 2,500 shareholders in the company in the Chicago area," he said.

HE SAID THAT 1977 has started on an encouraging note since sales during the first two months of this year in homesites and home building contracts are up nearly 100 per cent over the same period in 1976.

As an example, Fischer said that contracts for single-family homes in January and February totaled to $5.3 million compared to $1.3 million during the same period last year.

"The turnaround probably can be attributed to a combination of factors such as a stronger nationwide economy and the introduction of our new moderately-priced housing line. Also, the cold winter may have started people to thinking about moving to a warm climate," he said.

General Development's four major communities include Port Charlotte on the Golf Coast, Port St. Lucie and Port Malabar on the Atlantic Coast and Port LaBelle in the south-central Florida ranchland area.

Since the introduction of the moderately priced housing line, Fischer said, the most popular model has been the company's "answer home." It's a three-bedroom, two-bath home with 1,590 square feet including garage. The sales price is $28,490 not including homesite.

The General Development president said nearly 40 per cent of the company's home sales have been "answer homes," but that its VIP model also is having a strong sales appeal.

The VIP is a three-bedroom, 1½-bath home with 1,152 square feet including porch and garage. It's price is $25,990 without the lot.

Fischer said that while single-family homebuilding may be sharply curtailed in many metropolitan areas because of the high cost and scarcity of land, he doesn't see any immediate problems of this nature in Florida, or for General Development.

"We still have sufficient inventories of single-family homesites in most of our communities. And we have met our environmental responsibilities in planning and developing these communities," Fischer said.

Fischer, who also is president-elect of the Florida Chamber of Commerce, said the state also is beginning to show more economic maturity by stepping up its efforts to attract more light, clean industry.

"The Florida economy in the past has been mostly tied to tourism, agriculture and construction, but after the recent recession we're attempting to create a more solid economic base," he said.

In addition to home site sales and home building, General Development also is constructing light industry complexes at Port Malabar, Port Charlotte and Port St. Lucie. The company also has diversified into resort facilities, financial services, and has one of the largest privately-owned utility companies in the state.

$90,000 median price of home in nine years: prof

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within nine years from now, the median priced new house will cost almost $90,000 and the average downpayment will be close to $23,000, driving nearly half of the young families out of the market.

These figures were given to the Senate Banking Committee recently by Kenneth Rosen, professor of economics and public affairs at Princeton University.

He said the nation is in a "housing crisis of unprecedented proportions" and the "American Dream of universal home ownership is virtually dead."

Already he said home ownership is available only to the "fortunate few," and excludes most low-and middle-income households, minorities and young families."

He estimated a $90,000 home with $23,000 downpayment by 1986, based on a 7 per cent inflation rate in the over-all economy and 10 per cent in the housing market, and average mortgage interst rates of 18.7 per cent.

Static year seen for heavy industry

Equipment distributors and contracting copanies in this section of the country see 1977 as essentially a flat year for the heavy construction industry said William S. Hemker, assistant vice president in charge of C.I.T. Corporation's Chicago division.$ The forecast emerged from C.I.T.'s annual survey of the 1977 business expectations of contracting companies and equipment distirbutors, who are the sellers of heavy construction equipment. Responses were received from 135 contractors and 66 distributors in the portion of the survey covering Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri and Wisconsin. These are among the highlights:

• Most distributors and contractors, 63 per cent an 65 per cent respectively, believe heavy construction activity this year will not increase over 1976.

• Contractors are even less optimistic about sales and profits; 38 per cent believe sales will decline and 45 per cent say profits will be lower; Both percentages exceed those of contractors who say sales and profits will be up.

• Distributors are more optimistic; 59 per cent say sales will post a gain, 33 per cent say profits will rise. Both of these percentages exceed those who say sales and profits will decline.

New projects started during the year will stem mainly from sewage treatment and water supply facilities, industrial and commercial building and road construction and maintenance, according to survey respondents.

C.I.T. Corp. is the industrial financing and leasing unit of C.I.T. Financial Corp., one of the nation's larget multiline financial services organizations.

Midwest forecast: more tornados

Midwesterners may find little solace in the flight of winter as weather experts forecast that tornados threaten to carve a wider-than-normal path of destruction this spring.

In the past five years more than 1,600 twisters have ripped the United States' midsection, injuring thousands and causing damage of almost $1 billion. This year the Severe Storms Center of the National Weather Service predicts the southern portion of the Midwest through Missouri and eastward may see a higher-than-normal number of tornados.

The Insurance Information Institute warns that regardless of where you live, however, you should prepare now and keep informed about what to do before, during, and after a tornado.

KEEP IN MIND that inflation is increasing the cost of home repair and replacement, so a homeowner should review insurance coverage with an insurance representative to make certain he will be adequately compensated in the event of a storm loss.

Be sure and keep important papers, including insurance policies, titles, wills and other records in a safe place where they are not likely to be damaged by water, wind, or fire, but where they can be easily retrieved. A homeowner also should keep an up-to-date inventory of possessions, complete with photos of the property. This will aid in determining losses after a storm hits.

Also, keep a first-aid kit, a flashlight, a portable radio and extra batteries handy. Then they will be available when needed most — during and after a tornado.

The institute recommends mobile homeowners secure it with anchors or tie-downs and position their homes to take advantage of natural windbreaks such as trees and hills. Even then, mobile home residents should seek more secure shelter in the event of a tornado, as a twister can quickly turn such a home into a mangled mass of steel and wood in seconds.

WHEN STORM conditions develop, persons should keep alert to radio and television weather advisories and plan work and play schedules accordingly. Remember — a tornado watch is issued when conditions are favorable for a tornado to develop. A tornado warning means a twister has been sighted.

If a tornado is sighted, residents should move to a place of safety immediately — the basement is the safest place. If there is no basement, residents should move to the center and lowest floor of the home or apartment where outside walls offer maximum protection. They should stay low, preferably under a piece of heavy furniture, and away from windows.

Most injuries during a twister are caused by flying debris. Wherever shelter is taken, a person should also make an extra effort to protect his head and chest.

Residents should be careful after a tornado hits. They should avoid loose electrical lines and stay away from badly damaged buildings that could topple over. They also should keep tuned to a radio for any instructions from community officials.

PHONE LINES will be disabled or tied up with emergency calls and residents should avoid using the telephone after a tornado hits.

If a home or business has been severely damaged, gas and electricity should be turned off at the point these utilities enter the building. This will reduce the hazard of fire.

Residents should inspect property as quickly as is practical and report any damage to insurance representative as soon as possible. They also should make any temporary repairs that will prevent further damage to property, such as covering holes in the roof or walls with plastic or other temporary siding. They should keep the receipts, since these costs are normally covered by home insurance policies.

If residents are forced to move to temporary quarters, such as a motel, this cost is usually covered by insurance. Before leaving, residents should leave word with neighbors and their insurance representative as to where they can be reached.

FOLLOWING major storms the insurance industry mobilizes adjusters from throughout the country, says the I.I.I., sending them to the stricken area to expedite the handling of claims. Larger, more serious losses are given priority.

In addition to insurance personnel, government and private relief agency officials, there will be other groups on the scene of a disaster. Looters, fly-by-night contractors, bogus "adjusters," instant "tree surgeons" and a variety of others will attempt to take advantage of storm victims, especially if the resident has just received a check from the insurance company.

Unsolicited offers of assistance form other than bonafide relief agencies should be regarded with suspicion. A call to the disaster center, which is set up after a tornado, is wise before conducting business with over-eager strangers. Also watch for out-of-state license plates on trucks or cars in the stricken area and report suspicious activity to the police.

Electric utilities urged to convert to coal power

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States' best hope of achieving reasonable self-sufficiency in energy is for the government to finance conversion of electric utilities to coal burning, according to combustion experts.

There isn't any hope of finding enough additional petroleum supplies or quick progress in coal gasification or liquefaction, said Donald E. Heyburn of Barberton, Ohio, head of Babcock & Wilcox's fossil power generation division.

LeRoy Culbertson, a vice president of Phillips Petroleum Corp. of Bartlesville, Okla., also said coal must play the key role in achieving energy self-sufficiency. He and other Phillips officials agreed, however, that electric utilities face formidable obstacles in converting to coal.

BABCOCK & WILCOX'S Heyburn said the utilities are not in financial shape to solve the problem by themselves. What is needed, he said, is to build new coal boilers alongside the present oil or gas-fired boilers without any interruption of service and to build some new coal-fired power plants from the ground up.

Heyburn also said it is idle to hope that the fast breeder nuclear reactor or magnetohydrodynamics, the direct production of electricity from fossil fuels without making steam and turning a mechanical generator, can solve the nation's energy crisis any time soon.

"These things require new scientific breakthroughs, not just money and engineering," he said, "and nobody can predict when a scientific breakthrough will come."

Conversion of electric power plants to coal, on the other hand, requires only engineering — although extremely expensive engineering.

"Many persons probably find it hard to understand why it is so much more costly to convert a power plant back to coal than it was to convert it to oil or gas some years ago," Heyburn said. "There are many reasons. A boiler heated by coal also can be heated by gas or oil but a modern boiler built for clean gas or oil heat has too narrow tubes for the fly-ash laden heat of even the cleanest coal. It soon will slag up, so conversion to coal means new boilers."

FINDING AND training enough coal miners to supply the amount of coal that would be needed is another big problem. Transporting the coal not only will involve big investment but delicate decisions as to whether a particular utility should be supplied by railway unit trains or coal slurry pipeline.

It may be advisable to relocate some power plants closer to coal supplies. A minehead location of the generating plant is the ideal.

The environmental and occupational safety problems of rapid expansion of coal mining will be extensive and difficult, especially where strip mining is involved.

Finally, there is the matter, Heyburn said, of finding the proper balance, both economic and ecological, between nuclear and fossil fueled plants. A study of comparative costs indicates as a general rule, nuclear generating is cheaper on both the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts while fossil-fired plants are cheaper in the heartland. But every location presents its own problems.

Time is getting short, he said, because the United States is losing ground in the drive for energy self-sufficiency and petroleum imports are rising too fast.

'Plenty of rain' seen for spring

Things may be better this spring and summer than some weathermen have been forecasting, according to Stanley Changnon, head of atmospheric sciences research for the Illinois State Water Survey.

Using Illinois temperature and precipitation records for the last 80 years, Changnon says chances are good that there will be plenty of rain this spring to recharge moisture-short soils.

And, he adds, it will be a nice summer, with temperatures about normal and rainfall above normal.

"THERE IS ABOUT a 70 per cent chance of the weather coming out like this," he said. "Of course, there is a 30 per cent chance of it not coming out like this."

Changnon said that some farmers in the state probably will experience dry conditions. "Even in a wet year there are pockets of drouth," he said, "but generally, it looks good."

Changnon said he bases his forecast on years that most closely resemble the previous season. For example, he used the summer of 1973 to forecast the winter of 1973-74 by examining temperature and rainfall statistics of summers that were similar to the summer of 1973.

His forecast was for a mild and wet winter, which proved accurate. He did the same thing with statistics from the winter of 1975-76 to accurately forecast the summer of 1976.

TWO WINTERS closely resembled the winter of 1976-77, he said. Those were the winters of 1892-93 and 1917-18. Both included below normal temperatures and moisture for most of the season.

December and January of all three winters registered below-average cold, ranging from 15 degrees below normal in January of this year to 12 below in January of 1893. It was colder than normal in March 1893, but a little warmer than normal in 1918. But April and May of both of those years were cooler than normal.

Precipitation records show below-normal moisture in December and January of all three winters. March 1893 had normal rainfall but it was below normal in March 1918. It has been above normal so far this month. April and May also were wet months in 1893 and 1918, according to records.

"The best outlook is for cool temperature and heavy rainfalls," Changnon said, "Our analysis over the last 80 years shows normal to above normal rainfall this spring and summer. If I were gambling, I'd go with wet conditions."

A soil moisture survey in February indicated soil moisture levels are below normal. By April or May, Changnon believes, they may be near field capacity.

Rail buff seeks to buy line linking two Illinois towns

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill. (UPI) — A 34-year-old Iowa-born short line railroad magnate hopes a 73-mile stretch of Baltimore & Ohio R.R. track in Southern Illinis becomes his sixth acquisition in the past six years.

Craig Burroughs of New Lenox, founder of Trans-Action Associates Inc. in Joliet, says he has been trying to buy the section from the B&O for 3½ years to serve farmers and other customers and finally has received authorization from the Interstate Commerce Commission to acquire the line.

But he said before the sale can become final a decision must come on litigation opposing the sale filed by railroad unions.

BURROUGHS SAID the B&O has been trying to sell the 73-mile section between Flora and Shawneetown for 6½ years as an unprofitable operation and that a price of $500,000 has been agreed upon.

"We would start as a non-union operation," Burroughs said. "My target date for operating the Prairie Trunk Railroad is July 1."

He the B&O has been making two round trips a week over the 73-mile stretch.

"We plan to start out with five round trips a week," Burroughs said.

Burroughs, a native of Greene, Iowa, earned a business degree from Iowa State and worked for the Rock Island Lines in Chicago before leaving to open a consulting business.

Trans-Action Associates Inc., was formed six years ago and is now operating short line railroads in Iowa, Nebraska, Louisiana, Mississippi and Rhode Island, Burroughs said.

Different tax rules used for capital gains, losses

by United Press International

Taxation of gains and losses from the sales of capital assets is governed by special rules.

Capital assets include many types of property, such as stocks and bonds, personal residences, household furnishings, and personal automobiles.

Here are how some of these special rules work. First of all, it should be noted that gains realized from the sales of the above types of property are nearly always taxed to the seller, says Commerce Clearing House, Chicago.

One exception is the gain from sale of a personal residence. The tax on such gain is postponed if the taxpayer purchases a new residence within 18 months before or after the sale of the old residence at a cost that is higher than the sales price of the old residence.

On the other hand, losses from the sales of many types of capital assets are not recognized for income tax purposes. These include losses from the sales of personal assets, such as a residence, car, home furnishings, etc.

It should be pointed out, however, that if any such asset is stolen or destroyed in a casualty, such as a fire, the loss is deductible — but only if the taxpayer itemizes his personal deductions on Schedule B of Form 1040.

Stocks and bonds and other investment property do not fall within the nonrecognition-of-loss rules. Losses on these assets are deductible, subject to certain limitations explained below, and can be claimed even though the taxpayer does not itemize his deductions.

IF THE ASSET was held for six months or less, any gain or loss is a long-term gain or loss. (The period for determining whether a gain is short-term or long-term becomes nine months in 1977 and one year after 1977 under the Tax Reform Act of 1976.)

A 50 per cent deduction is allowed for the excess of a net long-term capital gain over a net short-term capital loss. The alternative tax computation in Part IV of Schedule D, Form 1040 — the "capital gains tax" — has the effect of limitating the tax on each $1 of the excess of net long-term capital gains over net short-term capital losses to a maximum of 35 cents. The tax on each $1 of the first $50,000 ($25,000 for a married taxpayer filing separately) of the excess is limited to 25 cents.

The benefits that a taxpayer with large capital gains may get through capital gains transactions may be reduced by the 15 per cent Minimum Tax. This tax is imposed on tax preference items, one of which is the amount allowable to an individual by the 50 per cent capital gains deduction, even if he uses the alternative capital gains tax.

Whenever the ordinary income reaches a level where any part is in a bracket over 50 per cent, a computation should be made to determine whether the alternative tax results in a lower tax.

LOSSES OF AN individual from sales or exchanges of capital assets are deductible to the extent of capital gains plus up to $1,000 of ordinary income. However, it takes $2 of a long-term capital loss to offset $1 of ordinary income. A short-term capital loss or a long-term capital loss carryover from a pre-1970 year can nevertheless offset ordinary income up to the $1,000 limit on a dollar for dollar basis. (The $1,000 limit becomes $2,000 for 1977 under the Tax Reform Act ot 1976.)

After this $1,000 is used up, any unused net capital losses remaining may be carried over indefinitely to future years until exhausted. A loss carryover is treated as long-term or short-term depending upon its origin. The amount of a carryover of long-term capital loss sustained in a taxable year beginning in 1970 or thereafter does not include any part of the long-term loss that was used to offset ordinary income on a $2 of loss for $1 of deduction basis.

Where a husband wife file joint returns, their capital gains and losses are combined in computing their tax. They may deduct no more than $1,000 of capital loss from ordinary income on a joint return. On separate returns, each may deduct no more than $500.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Curiosity killed a cat and, while it hasn't killed any homeowners that we know of, it has caused a lot of trouble. A "For Sale by Owner" sign in a yard attracts all kinds of people. For many, the chief attraction is simply curiosity. Yet, the homeowner can't be sure so the curiosity seeker is invited in, shown the property and given as much time as a legitimate buyer.

To mask his waste of your time, a curiosity seeker may pretend to be much interested in a way that wastes more of your time until you realize he has no intention of buying.

When we handle the sale for you, we screen out the curiosity seekers. We bring only qualified buyers to see your house. We save you time and we save you trouble. Let's talk about listing with us, OK?

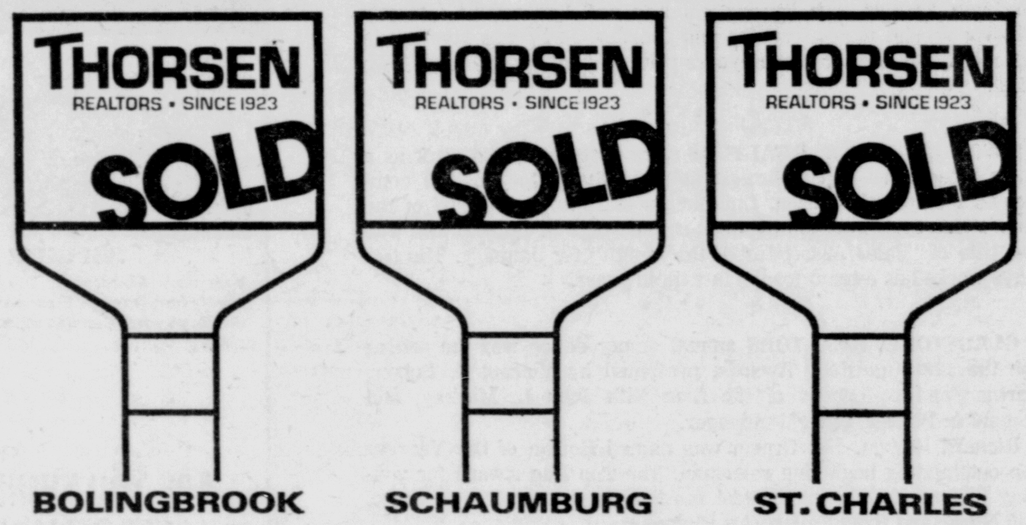
SIGNS OF SUCCESS



BOLINGBROOK Opened June 1975
SCHAUMBURG Opened February 1976
ST. CHARLES Opened April 1976

A record of success is the Thorsen Realtors' story. The last three offices opened by Thorsen Realtors have become instant successes. In less than one year's time, Thorsen's Bolingbrook and St. Charles offices have become pace setters in these markets. Schaumburg is in the top 25% of brokerage firms of over 100 serving the Northwest Suburban area of Chicagoland.

Our statistics show that the average sales associate's income earned with the company tops $25,000 annually. Licensed salesmen and unlicensed prospective salesmen have an immediate opportunity for instant success in Thorsen Realtors' new Arlington Heights/Mt. Prospect branch office. A few key sales opportunities are still available in Thorsen's Schaumburg/Hoffman Estates office. Management positions are also open in the Northwestern Suburban area offices. The Thorsen management team is dedicated to the success of each and every Thorsen sales associate.

Opportunities await you, so for a confidential interview call Joyce Anderson at Thorsen Realtors' Oak Brook headquarters, 887-5980.

Here's why you're wise if

is your financial home:

WE REALLY OFFER A HIGHER RETURN ON YOUR SAVINGS

This is not just a matter of what the law allows (7¾% on certificates of deposit at S&Ls vs. 7½% at banks, for example) but how these institutions, both S&Ls and banks, compute the interest they give you within these allowable limits.

There is as much as 171% difference in the amount you actually receive — from the same interest rates! This is because there are some 40 variables that get into the computation. Just one example: If you deposit $100 in January, $100 in February, and $100 in March and then withdraw $100 in late March, which $100 gets cancelled out? Some institutions operate on first-in-first-out (FIFO), which means that the January deposit, with its largest earnings, is eradicated. At Arlington Federal, we use a day-in-day-out principle, which maximizes your earnings.

University studies demonstrate that just four variables such as these account for a difference of almost 68% between the stingy and liberal methods of computing interest. We are on the liberal side. It means a big difference to you.

One other thing: We still use passbooks to record your savings—because you prefer it that way.

OUR HOME LOANS ARE IN YOUR FAVOR, TOO

We offer competitive interest rates and closing costs and include features in our loan contracts that favor the home buyer. Our specialty is home financing, and our multi-advantage home mortgage loan is your best insurance of home ownership at lower cost.

WE'RE MORE CONVENIENT: WE HAVE MORE BRANCHES HERE THAN ANYONE ELSE

This is good evidence that the northwest suburbs are Arlington Federal Territory. Our seven offices serve you from Mount Prospect to Lake Zurich. As one of the top 16 savings and loans in Chicagoland and one of the 400 largest among the 5,000 S&Ls in the United States, Arlington Federal is unique in that we focus upon this relatively small area. We are within your range wherever you live.

MONEY YOU SAVE HERE GETS INVESTED HERE

When you stop to think about it, your savings with us contribute to your community's economic strength. You are creating the means for investment in local homes, insuring that when you come to buy or sell, the money required will be here. With over $200,000,000 in assets, Arlington Federal is a veritable reservoir that nourishes the economic health and liquidity of the area. Self-interest tells you to save where you live.

WE OFFER EXPERT FINANCIAL COUNSEL

Our counselors can advise on the many ways in which your savings programs can be tailored to meet your special needs. If you are seeking a loan for home purchase or improvement, no staff is better qualified than ours to advise you on local values and opportunities. And, of course, we can take care of your insurance needs through our wholly owned subsidiary, the Arlington Agency, we process bond redemptions, execute sight drafts, and provide safety deposit boxes, travelers checks, free notary service, and many other extras for our customers.

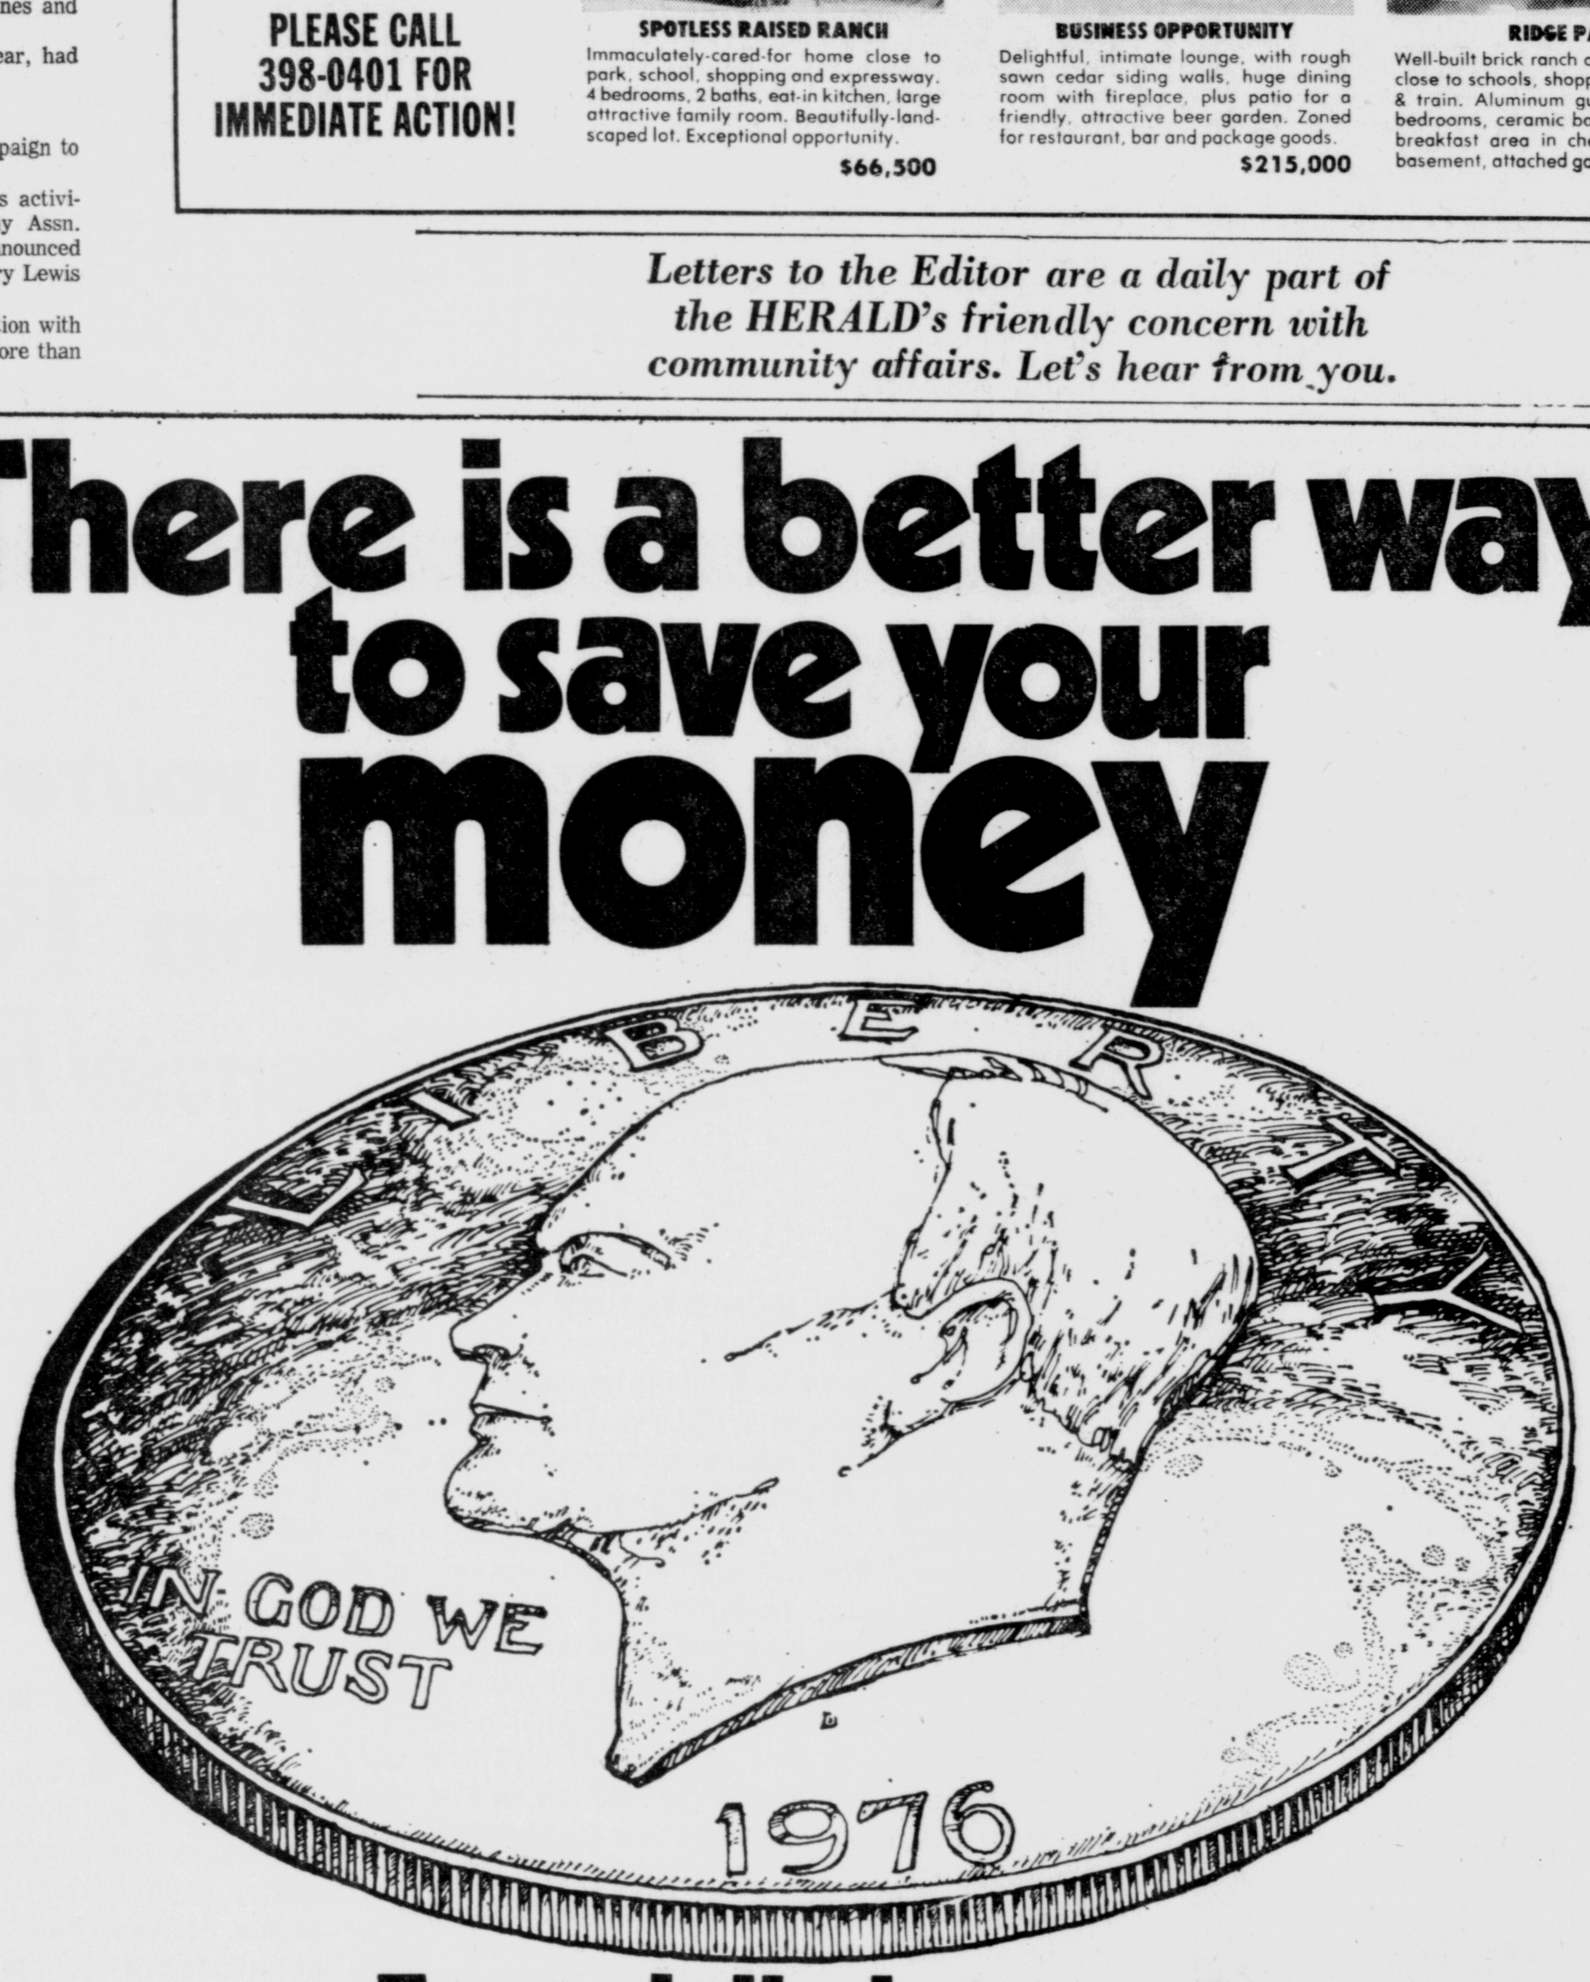
There is a better way to save your money



Earn daily interest

If your hard earned savings aren't earning Daily Interest, they should be. It's the most flexible, convenient and profitable passbook savings plan around. You begin earning interest from the day you open or add to your account, and you get paid that interest for the exact number of days on deposit. Add or withdraw anytime without ever losing a cent of interest. Not all banks or savings and loan associations offer this. We at Union Federal do, because, you might say, we think it's in you best interest. The 5¼% per annum you earn is the most any insured savings institution can pay on passbook savings. It's more than you can earn at a bank. There is a better way...the Union Federal Daily Interest way!

'Balloon frame house' now at the Smithsonian

The "balloon frame" house, which revolutionized home building in America, has become a permanent exhibit in the "Hall of Everyday Life in the American Past" in the National Museum of History and Technology at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

Made possible by a grant from the CertainTeed Corp., a building materials manufacturer, the exhibit is a midwestern farmhouse built more than 100 years ago in the original "balloon frame" method.

The balloon frame construction technique originated in the 1830s and was a major innovation in housing technology. Made possible by the mass manufacture of cut nails and availability of wood in standard dimensions, a balloon frame house could be constructed very quickly using unskilled labor.

Previous construction methods were time-consuming and expensive. Balloon frame construction differs from timber frames in the size of the members, use of nails to hold the frame together, and in the support of the upper floors. Studs placed on 16-inch centers, ran from the sill to the plate and roof. At the second-floor level a ban, or ribbon, was set into the notched studs and nailed — it supported the joists which were also nailed to the studs.

"Balloon frame" was so named, in jest, by skeptiis because it appeared flimsy when contrasted with earlier building techniques. Nonetheless, it made shelter quickly available to settlers who moved westward, and it changed the face of America.

Entire cities like Chicago and San Francisco — and many in between — were built virtually "overnight." A modern version of the technique is still used today to construct most of America's housing.

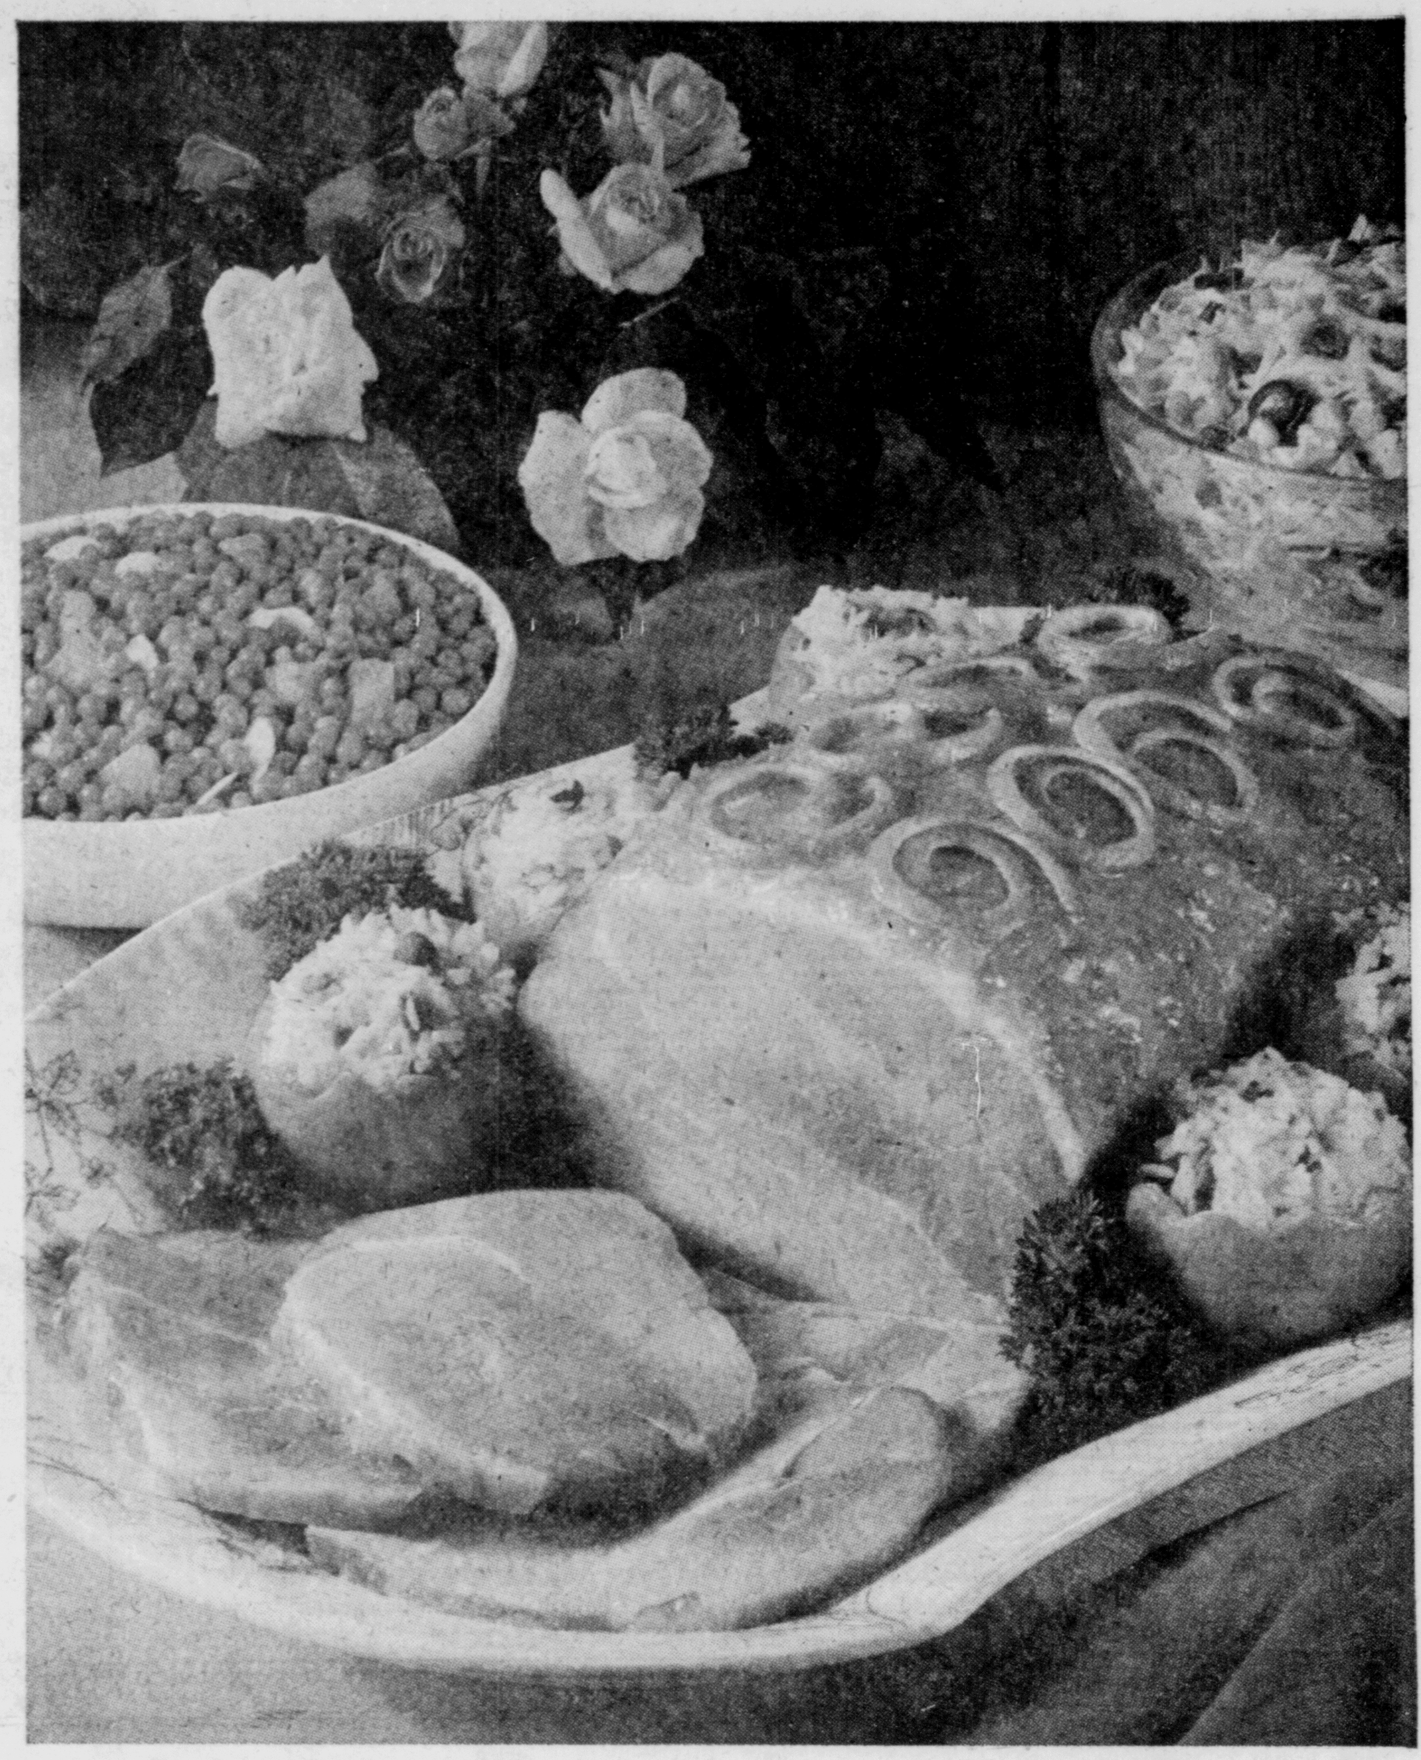
Easter elegance and a follow-up feast

The traditional ham, prepared in an unusual manner and surrounded by colorful side dishes of rice and vegetables, dresses up any Easter table. Left-over ham need not be confined to the usual sandwiches, but may be used in a soup, salad or entree.



Baked Smoked Ham Orange-de Cacao Glaze

- 7 to 10-pound boneless "fully-cooked" smoked ham
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup orange marmalade
- 2 tablespoons creme de cacao

Place ham on a rack in an open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a 325-degree oven until meat thermometer registers 130 degrees.

Combine sugar and cornstarch in small saucepan, stir in orange juice, marmalade and creme de cacao; cook slowly, stirring constantly until thickened. Brush warm glaze over ham and return to oven until thermometer registers 140 degrees. (Allow approximately 15 to 18 minutes per pound.) Decorate top of ham with curls of orange peel, if desired.

Note: To prepare orange curls cut each reserved slice from tops of oranges in spiral fashion to form curls of thin peel. Press into glaze on top of ham.

Springtime Peas

- 2 packages (10 ounces each) baby peas frozen in butter sauce
- 1 can (13 3/4 ounces) pineapple tidbits, drained
- 2 tablespoons sliced almonds
- 1/4 teaspoon seasoned salt

Cook peas according to package directions. Stir in pineapple, almonds and seasoned salt. Serves 6 to 8.

Rice en Orange

- 6 to 8 small to medium oranges
- 2 packages (11 ounces each) frozen rice pilaf (with mushrooms and onions)
- Paprika

Cut 3/4 to 1-inch slice from top of each orange*. Squeeze oranges to obtain 1/2 cup juice, being careful to retain shape. Remove pulp and scallop edges, if desired. Cook rice pilaf according to package directions until thawed and combine with 1/4 cup orange juice. Fill each cup with approximately 1/2 cup rice mixture and sprinkle with paprika. Place filled orange cups in small baking dish and cook in a 325-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 6.

* Reserve tops of oranges for ham decoration.

Creamy Ham and Vegetable Soup

- 1 1/2 pounds cooked smoked ham, cut in 1/2 to 3/4-inch cubes
- 1 1/2 cups sliced celery
- 2 cups hot water
- 1 package (10 ounces) cauliflower frozen in cheese sauce
- 1 package (10 ounces) peas frozen in butter sauce
- 2 cups milk
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons flour

Place ham cubes and celery in Dutch oven or large pot. Add hot water, cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Remove frozen vegetables from their pouches and add to ham. Add milk and pepper. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Stir water into flour to blend, combine with soup and cook slowly 3 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serves 6. (1 1/2 cups each).

Ham a la King

- 1 1/2 pounds cooked smoked ham
- 2 packages (11 ounces each) frozen rice pilaf (with mushrooms and onions)
- 1 package (10 ounces) mixed vegetables frozen in butter sauce
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 jar (2 1/2 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 can (11 ounces) condensed Cheddar cheese soup
- 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/8 teaspoon curry powder
- Dash pepper
- 2 hard cooked eggs, cut up

Cut ham in slices 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick and cut in julienne strips. Cook rice and vegetables according to package directions. Snip vegetable pouch and drain the butter sauce into large saucepan. Add onion and mushrooms and cook 2 to 5 minutes, until onion is transparent. Add soups and milk and stir until smooth. Add ham, mixed vegetables, curry powder and pepper and cook slowly 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Fold in eggs. Turn rice into serving bowl and fluff with fork. Serve Ham a la King with the rice. Serves 6.

Tip: For festive serving, shape rice in a ring mold or individual molds.

Calypso Coleslaw

- 4 cups shredded cabbage
- 1 can (12 ounces) whole kernel corn with sweet peppers, drained
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup diced sharp process American cheese
- 2 tablespoons sliced black olives

Combine cabbage, corn, onion, cheese and olives in large mixing bowl. Add creamy mustard dressing and toss gently to combine. Cover and chill. Serves 6 to 8.

Creamy Mustard Dressing

- 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 4 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seed

Blend mayonnaise with sugar, vinegar, mustard and celery seed.

Ham and Rice Mandarin

- 2 packages (11 ounces each) frozen rice with bell peppers and parsley
- 1 1/2 pounds cooked smoked ham, cut into bite-sized wedges
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced celery
- 1 can (11 ounces) pineapple tidbits and mandarin orange segments
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- Lettuce

Cook rice according to package directions; chill. Combine ham, rice and celery. Drain pineapple and orange segments; reserve 2 tablespoons syrup. Blend reserved syrup with mayonnaise and combine with ham mixture. Fold in pineapple and orange segments. Chill. Serve on lettuce. Serves 6.

Pastries flavor holidays

by LOIS SEILER

Homemade baked goods add a special touch to festive holiday meals. The recipes featured today are ideal for Easter and are the specialties of Joan Peterson of Mount Prospect.

Joan loves to bake and particularly enjoys working with yeast. Because she is employed, time is of the essence. So Joan bakes whenever she can, keeping a supply of baked delicacies available in her freezer.

For Easter dinner, she surely will serve her elegant Swedish Sweet Rolls. Although made with a yeast dough, there is no kneading involved. The dough is made one day, then rolled out and baked the next. From this one basic recipe, a variety of dinner rolls can be made: pecan rolls, butter horns and tiny frosted jam-filled rolls. All are light in texture with a rich, sweet flavor — ideal for accompanying baked ham.

FOR THOSE WHO prefer something other than a sweet roll, Joan suggests All-Bran dinner rolls. There is no kneading involved in this recipe, either. The dough can be baked the same day it is made, or it will keep in the refrigerator up to two weeks. Coarse but light in texture, these muffins are an excellent accompaniment for any type of dinner.

For Easter breakfast or brunch, consider Joan's Cardamom Coffee Cake. Just a minimum of kneading is required for this yeast dough, which is formed into round or oblong loaves.

Similar in texture to a light bread dough, the coffee cake has a mild cardamom flavor. It is sliced and served with butter and jam. Joan adapts this recipe for other holidays, adding candied fruit to the dough at Christmas and frosting the loaves with a confectioners' sugar icing. It always makes a hit with her husband, Pete, and their five children.

In addition to working as a doctor's receptionist and caring for her family, Joan is active at Northwest Covenant Church where she belongs to the Women's Fellowship and teaches Junior High Sunday School. In her spare time, she enjoys needlepoint and cross-stitching.

JOAN PETERSON'S Swedish Sweet Rolls add a special touch to holiday menus. Several different kinds of baked goods can be made from one basic yeast dough recipe.

SWEDISH SWEET ROLLS

1 cup soft butter or margarine
4 cups sifted flour
½ cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk, scalded and cooled
½ teaspoon salt
1 cake compressed yeast (0.6 ounces) or 1 envelope dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water

Cut butter into 3 cups flour and sugar.

Dissolve yeast in water and combine with eggs, milk and salt. Add to dry mixture and stir. Add remaining cup flour and mix well. Refrigerate overnight.

Divide dough into fifths. Roll each piece into a 9-inch round circle.

To make pecan rolls, use 2 circles of dough. Spread each with melted butter (about 1 tablespoon per round) and sprinkle with a little cinnamon and about 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Roll up as a jelly roll. Cut into ¾-inch slices.

Make the following pecan glaze:

½ cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons cold, firm butter

Combine brown sugar and water and bring to a boil. Add butter and cook slowly until butter has completely melted. Let stand 10 minutes. Spoon 1 tablespoon into 16 small muffin cups. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon or more chopped pecans into each cup and place rolls on top. Let rise about one hour. Bake at 350 degrees about 13 to 15 minutes. Remove immediately from pan and cool on wire rack.

For butter horns, spread melted butter on rounds and cut each into 12 wedges. Roll up from the wide end to the point. Place on greased cookie sheet and brush with melted butter. Let rise 1 hour and bake at 350 degrees for 13 to 15 minutes.

For jam-filled rolls, spread rounds with melted butter and spread lightly with your favorite jam. Strawberry and apricot are good. Roll up and cut into ¾-inch slices.

Place in small buttered muffin pans and let rise for 1 hour. Bake at 350 degrees for 13 to 15 minutes. Remove from pan and while warm, frost with a confectioners' sugar icing.

ALL-BRAN DINNER ROLLS

1 cake yeast (0.6 ounces)
1 cup lukewarm water
1 cup lard or vegetable shortening
¾ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
¾ cup sugar
1 cup All-Bran cereal
1 cup hot water
2 eggs, well-beaten
6 cups flour

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water.

Pour hot water over lard, sugar, salt and All-Bran. When cool, add yeast mixture, eggs and flour and beat well. Cover and let rise about 2 hours.

Pinch off about 1 rounded table-

Coffee prices on the rise

Coffee will continue to take a big bite out of the food budget in April, as the average price of a 2-pound can of Folger's increased 56 cents in the past month, the Herald monthly price survey shows. Prices in the Northwest suburbs ranged from a low of $5.51 at Jewel to a high of $7.11 at Eagle and A&P.

Last week Folger's announced still another increase, raising the wholesale price of a pound of ground coffee to $4.43. General Foods recently raised its ground coffee price to $4.21 a pound and raised its decaffeinated coffee price 40 cents a pound. Both wholesale increases will be affecting retail prices by June. Nestle's raised its freeze-dried coffee price 12 cents an ounce and its instant coffee prices 8 to 12 cents an ounce.

The news is better for pork and poultry lovers. Broiler-fryers are at record supply levels for April, the USDA says, and the average price per pound declined four cents over the last month. The average price per pound of pork declined 20 cents.

ALTHOUGH THE USDA reports that fed beef is in heavy supply and a pound of ground beef averaged six cents less this month, round steak prices rose slightly and T-bone steak costs about 16 cents more per pound this month.

Supplies of milk, butter and American cheese are good and the average price of a dozen eggs went down 11 cents. However, President Carter recently approved an increase in government milk supports effective April 1, which is expected to cause retail prices to jump from six to eight cents per gallon.

The USDA reports oranges and grapefruits are plentiful in the Midwest, with Florida citrus supplies only slightly less than those of last year. Orange juice prices in the Northwest suburbs have stabilized, while the average price of white grapefruit has declined nearly to the pre-freeze levels.

IN THE PRODUCE department, d'anjou pears and potatoes are in good supply, although prices of both increased slightly. Asparagus is in peak season in April and prices have dropped drastically in the past month. Artichokes, greens, green peas and pineapple are in season this month, and rhubarb and strawberries will soon be coming into season.

Food program to get funds

Illinois will receive a portion of the $29 million of unspent Women, Infants and Childrens (WIC) Program funds, according to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland. Bergland reported the money, which is being redistributed, will be reallocated to 25 states operating their WIC programs at or near their authorized capacity.

Pat Fitzgerald, WIC administrator with the Illinois Department of Public Health, says Illinois' more than $2 million share of the reallocation will be used to transfer the Cook County Supplemental Food Program to WIC.

The WIC program, operated by local health or welfare agencies, provides special supplemental foods to pregnant, postpartum and nursing women, and to infants and children up to 5 years old. To be eligible, participants must be "at nutritional risk" because of inadequate nutrition and income.

No sugar in these fruit desserts

Some of the greatest desserts in the world are native American that go back to the early days of our country. In those days, sugar was so expensive and rare that it was kept under lock and key, so naturally dessert was served without sugar whenever possible. With their natural sugars, fresh fruiits were highly prized dessert items. Short seasons and limited distribution made them special treats.

Fresh fruit desserts are easy to make and well-supplied with the vitamins and minerals. Fruits such as raw apples and pears are healthy for the gums and furnish fiber for the body.

One of the bonus beauties of serving fresh fruit desserts is that they are lower in calories than many conventional desserts. You need add few ingredients to fresh fruits to present them as the best of desserts.

SIMMERED APPLES AND PEARS

3 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons honey

Scientists to hold 'dial-ogue'

Thirty-one university and government scientists have agreed to participate in the national "Food Day Dial-ogue" April 20 and 21.

The "Dial-ogue" is a coast-to-coast toll-free telephone network by which consumers and high school students can ask scientific experts questions on food safety, nutrition and agricultural production. The scientists, most of whom are university faculty members, will meet to take the calls at the Quality Inn-Capitol Hill, Washington, D.C.

The telephone numbers for the "Dial-ogue" are 800-424-9510 for all calls outside of Washington, D.C. The telephone lines will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. (CST) each day.

The sponsor of the event is the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology, a nonprofit association of 21 scientific societies, which is being assisted by a grant from the National Agricultural Chemicals Association.

Turkey, tuna takes taste from Italy

Vitello Tonnato (Tunnied Veal) is a delicate veal-and-tuna dish found on the menus of better Italian restaurants. To prepare it, boneless leg of veal is cooked, cooled, thinly sliced and served with a piquant sauce of tuna, anchovies, lemon juice and capers.

To avoid the high cost (and smaller supply) of veal in the markets these days, turkey can be substituted for veal in the traditional recipe. In preparing Tacchino Tonnato (Tunnied Turkey), the turkey is cooked until tender in chicken broth, white wine and vegetables, sparked with Tabasco sauce. This turkey stock is used in the Tonnato Sauce. Should there be any left, it's very good poured over sliced tomatoes and salad greens.

TACCHINO TONNATO

1 5-pound turkey breast
3 cans (13¾ ounces each) chicken broth
2 cups dry white wine
2 cups water
2 onions, quartered
2 carrots, pared and cut in quarters
2 ribs celery with leaves, cut in chunks
2 bay leaves
6 sprigs parsley
2 whole cloves
¼ teaspoon Tabasco sauce

In large kettle place turkey breast and add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer 1 hour and 40 minutes, or until turkey is tender. Remove from heat, and cool in refrigerator in stock. When cold, remove turkey from stock and slice. Reserve 1/3 cup stock and prepare Tonnato Sauce. Spread a little sauce over bottom of a 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking dish. Arrange turkey slices over sauce and cover with remaining sauce. Cover and refrigerate overnight. To serve, let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Arrange on platter and garnish with lemon slices, sliced pitted black olives, sliced scallions and watercress. Serve with marinated tomatoes and Italian bread. Serves 6 to 8.

TONNATO SAUCE

2 egg yolks
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna, drained
½ teaspoon salt
6 anchovy fillets, rinsed and chopped
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/3 cup reserved turkey stock
½ teaspoon Tabasco sauce
¼ cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons capers, rinsed and drained

In container of electric blender, combine olive oi, egg yolks, tuna, salt, anchovy fillets, lemon juice, reserved turkey stock and Tabasco. Cover and process at high speed until smooth. Pour into a bowl; stir in heavy cream and capers.

Waffles vary cheese fondue

Prepare frozen waffles according to package directions; cut into 1¼-inch pieces. When serving fondue as a main entree, allow 2 to 3 waffle sections per serving. When serving as an appetizer, allow 1 to 1½ waffle sections per serving.

For fondue, combine over low heat one 10¾-ounce can Cheddar cheese soup, 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded natural Swiss cheese, 1/3 cup dry white wine or milk and 1 garlic clove, minced. Stir frequently until well blended and heated. Serves 4 to 6 as a main entree or 10 to 12 as an appetizer.

Keep fondue warm over very low heat; too high heat will cause cheese to become tough and stringy. To serve spear waffle pieces with fondue fork or wooden pick and swirl, rather than dip, waffle pieces into fondue.

This helps the mixture retain a smooth texture. Remember to reseal unused frozen waffle package (do not refreeze partially thawed waffles), and keep waffles frozen until ready to use.

Consumers don't read food labels: study shows

by JEANNE LESEM

Six studies at Purdue University confirm what everybody's been saying since nutritional labeling was introduced on American food products a few years ago:

The average consumer neither understands nor uses the information on food packaging.

Simplifying the information won't help, says psychology Prof. Jacob Jacoby, not unless people can be made to understand the importance of using the informationand being motivated to use it.

Jacoby is a past president of the American Psychological Association's division of consumer psychology and of the Association for Consumer Research, an independent organization of about 800 persons, including home economists. He also is a consultant to a food manufacturers' trade group and the Federal Trade Commission.

AGRICULTURE secretary Bob Bergland said recently he expected people to avoid junk foods when the USDA begins telling them about nutritional values.

"Nonsense," said Jacoby. "He fails to consider motivation and cultural and social factors."

For example, if someone doesn't like grits, he's not going to eat them, no matter what their nutritional value, the professor said.

The studies he referred to were made in Tippecanoe County, Ind. A total of 1,032 persons were asked, among other things, to select the information they wanted about foods. They were asked to define or interpret the information.

JACOBY SAID the group included persons from the academic world, industry and farming; women ranging in age up to 85 years; and educational levels from grade school and below to university doctorates. One group consisted of undergraduates, another of supermarket shoppers. Incomes ranged from below $7,000 to above $30,000.

"Most just didn't understand terms like carbohydrates, protein or fats.

"They have to understand why (nutrition labeling) affects them, why it is important to them," he said.

Although 90 per cent of the respondents in two studies called nutrition information one label "perfectly clear" only half could use even part of it correctly.

TO NO ONE'S surprise brand name and price proved to be the most often acquired facts. Two studies indicated they probably are the most influential factors in consumers' shopping.

Jacoby thinks labels contain "much too much nutrition information. It's difficult to understand without a computer, even for intelligent people."

He also thinks the order in which ingredients are listed needs to be revised.

"It should be in alphabetical order, with the most important ingredient listed first." In a protein-type product, he would list the meat or poultry or other major protein ingredient first. If it's high in carbohydrates, the ingredients containing those nutrients should head the list.

JACOBY SAID shoppers use less label information when buying many items than they do when buying a few.

Too many brand choices also contribute to the confusion. "You might have 16 brands of breakfast cereal and 40 to 50 kinds of information to read."

Not only is this a hit-or-miss basis for disseminating nutrition information, he said, but it also adds tremendously to retail food costs.

Even so, he thinks motivation and comprehension are more important than simplification.

He agrees with those who suggest establishing an independent national organization "to conceive, develop, disseminate, coordinate and evaluate all consumer education efforts in the United States," including nutrition.

Toppings flavor beef stroganoff

In today's busy world, casseroles are becoming an important part of familymenu planning.

This easy beef stroganoff recipe can be baked with any one of four different toppings to please all tastes.

EASY BEEF STROGANOFF

- 1½ pounds ground chuck
- Salt and pepper
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 cup chopped celery and leaves
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed mushroom soup, undiluted
- 1 cup (½pint) sour cream
- 1 cup canned or frozen peas
- 1 jar (4 ounce) piemento, drained and diced
- 1 can (4 ounce) sliced mushrooms, drained
- salt and pepper
- desired topping

Season chuck with salt and pepper. Shape beef into small 1-inch balls. Heat butter in a skillet and saute meat balls until brown on all sides and cooked. Drain excess fat and stir in onion, celery and leaves and green pepper. Stir over medium heat for 5 minutes or until vegetables are soft.

Stir in soup and sour cream. Stir in peas, pimiento and mushrooms. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Heat until bubbly. Spoon hot mixture into casserole and top with desired topping. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for the length of time specified for each topping.

Toppings:

Top with refrigerated biscuits — takes 10 to 15 minutes.

Top with a slice of American cheese after casserole has baked for 15 minutes. After topping with cheese bake 3 minutes more.

Top with seasoned mashed potatoes — bake for 10 to 20 minutes or until potatoes are lightly browned.

Getting best vegetable buys

Are you trying to figure the best buys in vegetables, now that prices for fresh ones are high and increases are anticipated later in canned and frozen produce in the wake of crop damage this winter?

The Extension service of Cornell University checked out some prices in a large supermarket here. Its findings include:

A 12-ounce vacuum pack of canned corn in liquid or cream style is roughly equivalent in servings to the 16 ounce liquid pack.

Cost-per-serving generally is related to brand and package size rather than canned or frozen form. As an example, shoppers found the least expensive form of green peas was a frozen, store brand product in a large poly bag.

Beets, broccoli and asparagus in 10 ounce frozen packages or 16-ounce cans were about equal in servings to one pound of fresh vegetables.

But fresh green or wax beans give five and one-half servings per pound, compared with only three and one-half from a No. 303 (15-to-17 ounce) can and three and one-fourth from a nine-ounce package of frozen.

Salads celebrate Easter, spring

The personal meaning of Easter changes each year for most celebrants as they absorb new experiences.

St. Paul believed this to be a loving time and that . . . "love never ends . . faith, hope, love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love." Thus the importance of sharing this special day with family and friends.

The celebration of Easter also heralds the coming of spring. This truly is a new beginning and what better way to mark positive hope for a new season than with very special Easter salads.

MOLDED GAZPACHO SALAD

1½ cups tomato juice, divided
2 tomatoes, peeled and quartered
1 rib celery, cut in pieces
¼ clove garlic
3 scallions, cut in pieces
1 carrot, pared and cut in pieces
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup wine vinegar
1 cucumber, pared, seeded
1 green pepper, chopped
1 tomato, peeled and chopped
1 carrot, pared and chopped

Sprinkle gelatin over ½ cup tomato juice in container of electric blender. Heat remaining 1 cup tomato juice to boiling and add to blender container. Cover and process at low speed until gelatin dissolves. Add 2 tomatoes, celry, garlic, scallions, carrot, lemon juice, salt, pepper, sugar and vinegar. Cover and process at high speed until smooth.

Turn into bowl and chill, stirring occasionally,until slightly thickened but not lumpy. Fold in chopped cucumber, tomato, green pepper and carrot. Turn into 4-cup mold. Chill until firm. To serve, unmold and garnish with salad greens, tomato wedges and scallions. Serves 6 to 8.

FRUIT SALAD GEL ROSE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold water
1¼ cups Rose wine or halved large strawberries or halved alrge strawberries
1 can (8¾ ounces) sliced peaches, drained
½ cup sliced banana
Dairy sour cream or whipped cream

In medium saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatin over water. Let stand until gelatin is moistened. Place over low heat. Stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in wine.

Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in fruit and spoon into stemmed glasses; chill until set. Garnish, if desired, with a dollop of sour cream or whipped cream. Serves 4 to 6.

Cookies to fill baskets

How many families have pictures of their children when they were tots showing them happily clutching a well-filled Easter basket? Egg rolling and the filling of mini-baskets with candies and fruit remain customs for many. Making and filling baskets keep many kindergarten classes busy as Easter nears.

Here are some Easter cookies to help fill those baskets.

ORANGE EASTER BASKET COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup packed light brown sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
½ cup milk
1 cup raisins
1 cup quick or regular oats, uncooked
½ cup chopped nuts

In large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and orange rind. In a small bowl mix flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add to cream mixture alternately with undiluted orange juice concentrate and milk. Stir in raisins, oats and nuts.

Drop by teaspoons 2 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Bake in 350-degree oven 15 minutes, until lightly browned. Remove to rack and cool. Makes about 4 dozen.

spoon of dough at a time and place in buttered muffin tins. Let rise again Bake at 400 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: approximately 42 rolls. (Dough will keep in refrigerator up to 2 weeks.)

CARDAMOM COFFEE CAKE

4 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon crushed cardamom seed
1 cup milk
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ pound butter
1 envelope dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 eggs, beaten

Stir cardamom seeds into flour.

Scald milk and add sugar, salt and butter. Stir until butter is melted.

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water.

Pour milk mixture into large, buttered mixing bowl. Add beaten eggs, yeast and flour with cardamom and beat thoroughly by hand. When dough leaves the sides of the bowl, put on floured board and knead lightly a couple of minutes.

Place dough into large, buttered bowl and let stand, covered, about 2 hours. Punch down and turn out on floured board and knead about 1 minute. Shape into round or oblong loaves and place on buttered cookie sheet. Cover and let rise about 2 hour. Brush with beaten egg and sprinkle with a little sugar. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Slice and serve with butter or jam.

For Christmas, candied fruit can be added to the dough. Frost baked loaves with a confectioners' sugar icing.

More Americans popping the corks

French champagne shipments to the United States jumped 40.5 per cent last year, compared with 1975. The Comite Interprofessional duVin de Champagne, the industry organization, says a total of 4.013 million bottles were sent to the United States in 1976. (UPI)

Trust.

In the banking business, as in life, trust is something that has to be earned. For more than 40 years, First Arlington National Bank has been earning the trust of its community. That fact is obvious to the bank's new management. Without trust from the community, the bank would not be the largest in Arlington Heights today. It would not service 25,000 accounts. And, without trust by the bank returned to the community, it could not have provided $50 million in loans to the people of this area. The stated policy of the New First Arlington is to continue to improve on the bank's record of service to the community. Improve. That's the key word here, for there are far greater goals to be reached in the future.

"SOME OF THE JOY is knowing that people who have spent time here have had some sort of religious or faith experience," said Sister Georgette, a director at St. Joseph's Retreat House, Des Plaines.

More than teachers, nurses

Nuns have new ways to serve

by ELEANOR RIVES

(Last in a series)

Sister Carol Marie and Sister Georgette are performing today a type of religious service that was not in existence in their order, the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, as recently as five years ago.

The two young women, both in their early thirties, are retreat directors, a far cry from the two traditional roles previously open to them, schoolteacher or nurse.

Their special territory is the St. Joseph Retreat House, the long white building behind the red brick convent that also houses De Lourdes College in Des Plaines.

"The 'retreat experience' is a strong movement," said Sister Canisia, president of De Lourdes. "Many sisters are doing this now. It's one of several new roles open to them."

Another new role which she described is in the area of pastoral ministry, where sisters do many of the activities for which the priest has no time. In the East, pastoral ministry reaches out into the parish, with home visits by nuns. Still another area of service for sisters is religious counseling and comforting of hospital patients.

WHAT WAS FORMERLY the postulancy for aspiring nuns — there are only five women in initial training at the Des Plaines convent today — opened as St. Joseph's Retreat House three years ago.

The "retreat experience" evolved to answer the need for an intensive, in-depth religious experience for children at various critical points in their lives, according to sister Canisia. Sister Carol Marie and a group of nuns were asked to experiment, to see if there truly was such a need.

"It snowballed," said Sister Carol Marie. "Now we have one-day retreats for eighth graders, one to three days for high schoolers, one-day women's retreats, marriage encounter groups, weekend retreats for divorced Catholics, Holy Name groups, workshops for sisters, even transcendental meditation groups.

"This month, 10 people representing seven countries will be here as part of the Council of International Programs, which operates out of Northeastern Illinois University."

Who staffs this rambling building with its large meeting room, a dining room at one end of what was once the gymnasium, a kichen and 39 single rooms for overnight guests?

"WE DO," SAID Sister Carol Marie. "There is one volunteer who helps us, and sometimes a sister may drop in to help. We might be involved in anything from leading a discussion to doing the cooking."

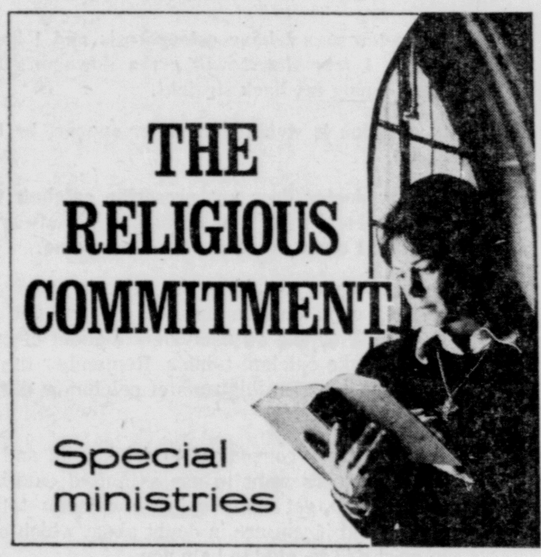
Both women are tremendously happy with what they are doing. "This is a new experience for me — I really love it," said Sister Georgette, who has been at the retreat only since last September. "Everyone told me I would miss the classroom, but I don't."

"People look to the retreat as a growing experience," added Sister Carol Marie, "an opportunity to discover more about themselves and life. For example, the Divorced Disciples. Many think their situation is isolated, but they find support, new friends, a new look at themselves.

"The retreat is for prayer, worship, solitude, discussion, inspiration and the sharing of experiences."

What path did these sisters, both Chicago area women, follow to reach this point in their lives?

"Ever since I was a little girl, I thought of becoming a sister," said Sister Georgette. "I made the decision at 12 and entered the order at 14. All along the way, this is what I wanted."



SISTER GEORGETTE majored in education at De Lourdes and taught for eight years. She has a master of science degree from Notre Dame University.

"I had the inclination to become a nun from little on," said Sister Carol Marie, adding "but not during my early high school years. By my junior year, I decided that would be my choice of life. I really prayed over it."

After her junior year, she began the preliminaries, entering the convent the following September. She, too, majored in education at De Lourdes. She taught for four years. The next year and a half, she served as director of postulants, then became vocation director for the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth.

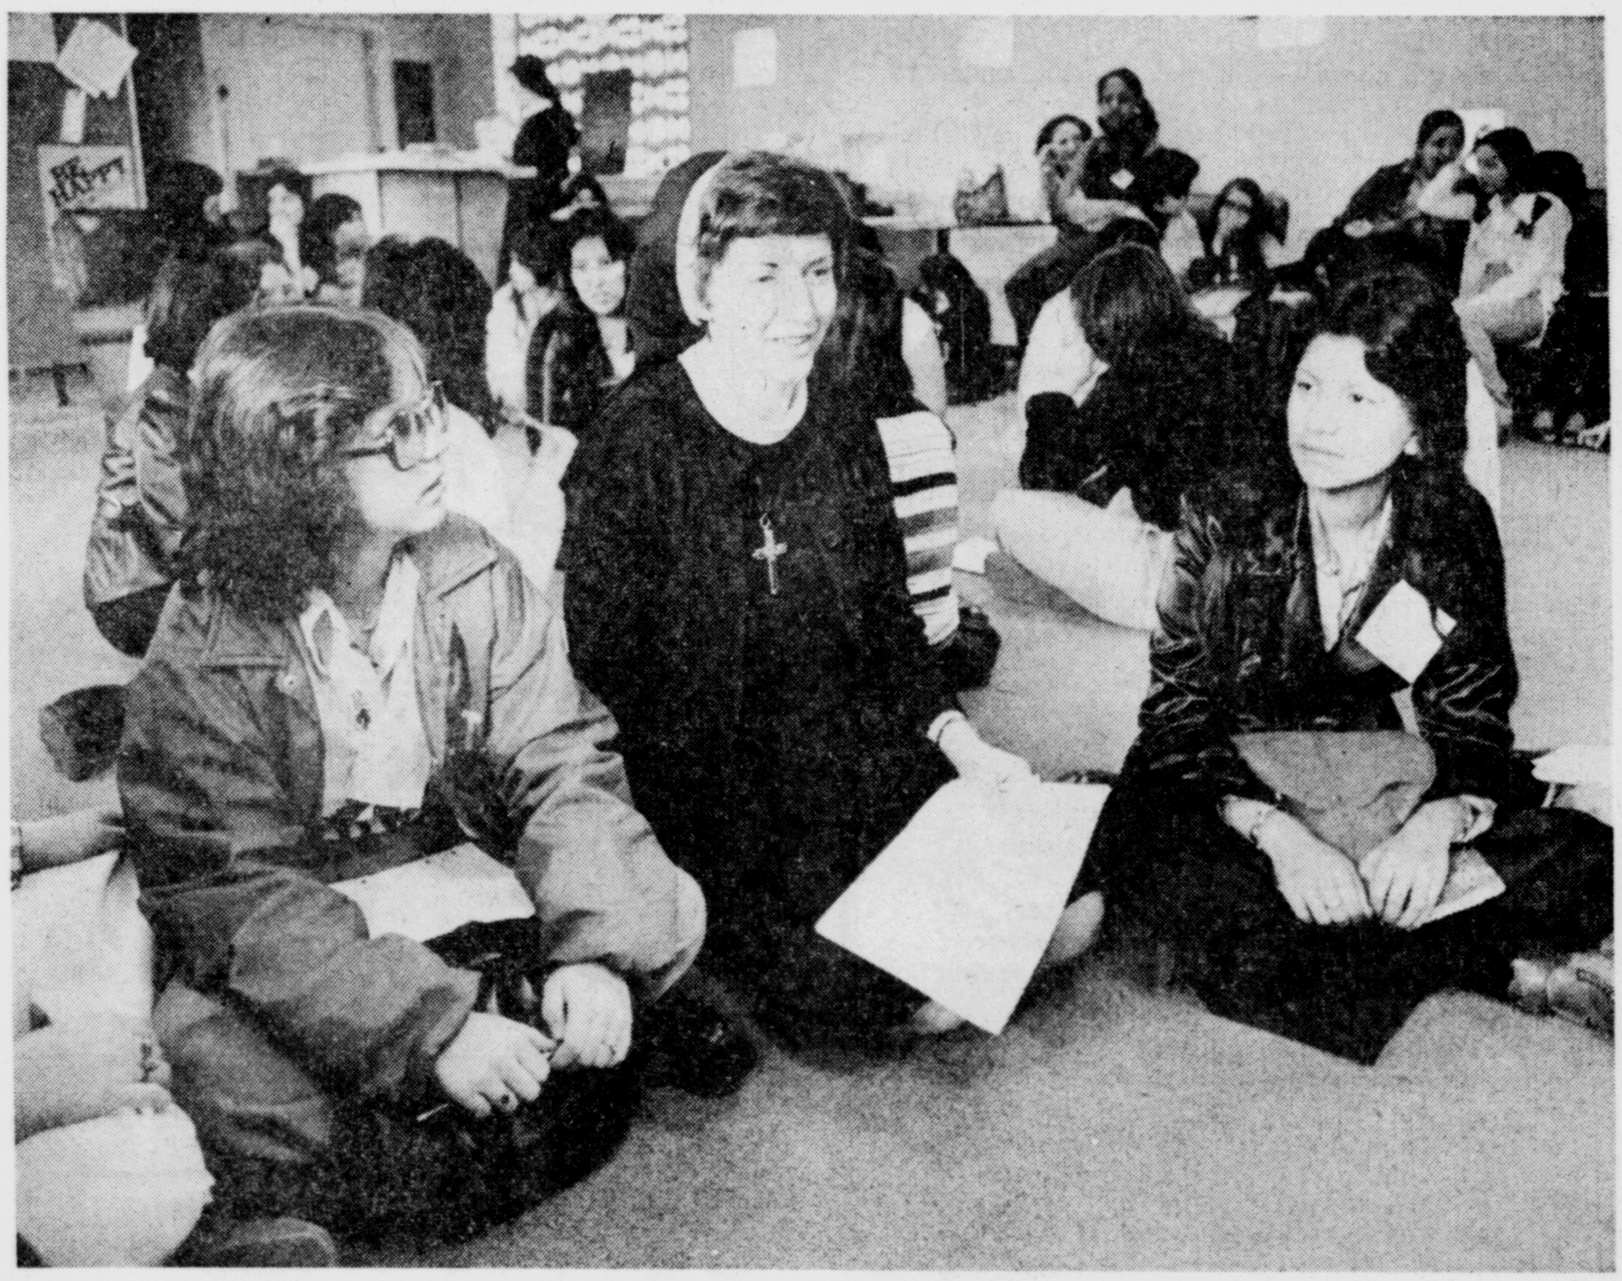
In her last year as vocation director, a group of sisters decided they would like to start working with retreats. At the same time, an Oak Lawn high school was searching for a retreat facility. The combination was a good one.

What qualities does one need to successfully staff a retreat house? Sister Carol Marie suggested: a deep faith and prayer life, the ability to facilitate another person's relationship with God, a sense of being dedicated, enthusiasm and creativity, a sensitivity toward people that increases the joy of working with them.

"THERE ARE MANY household activities, the little things that must be done. One must accept these as part of the job. too," said this woman who recently attained a master's degree in theology.

"Like anyone else, I can get 'down' once in awhile," continued Sister Carol Marie. "But I come out of it knowing that this is where I really belong."

Sister Georgette added, "It's all part of God's plan for your life."



THE 'RETREAT EXPERIENCE' for high school students meets the need for an in-depth, intensive religious experience at a critical point in their lives. Sister Carol Marie, retreat director, offers them personal counseling, time to think, and time to pray. "People of all ages say they enjoy the hospitality of the retreat house," she said. "It's like a home away from home."

Easter cards more recent custom

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

Long before the Christian era, ancient North Europeans had paid homage to Eostra, the beautiful goddess of light and of spring. Their progeny, not wishing to renounce the observance of the old customs, continued to hold Easter services.

Early Christians celebrated by bouncing blazing wheels of straw down hillsides, and the fiery circles touched the land, which was then "blessed."

The feast of Easter has marked the resurrection of Christ for more than 1500 years, but the observances spring from an ancient non-Christian goddess. Her poetic name, Eostra, suggests east, dawn and spring.

AND ALTHOUGH you may think of the Easter bunny as a modern symbol, he, too, dates back from pre-Christian lore. Hares and rabbits were symbolic in fertility rites of abundant new life in the spring season.

Later the Easter Bunny came to be the legendary source of Easter eggs for many children. An old 17th century German cookbook says, "Do not worry if the Easter Bunny escapes you; should we miss his eggs, then we will cook his nest!"

Easter greetings such as the postal card pictured do not have the long lineage of Christmas cards or Valentines, but after Christmas cards became popular in this country about 1880, printers were quick to introduce greetings for other holidays as well. When the postcard craze of the 1900s was at its peak, it was almost as common to send an Easter card as it was to mail a birthday greeting.

THE EGG, of course, is a long established emblem for Easter, and it appears on many early cards. Just-hatched chicks, angels, children, flowers (especially lilies) and Biblical pictures are other much-used motifs.

According to Joan Fleming, writing in The Antique Trader Annual of Articles for 1974, "Easter Bunny was very artistic in Germany. He supposedly laid red eggs on Maundy Thursday and eggs of other colors the night before Easter Sunday. In southern Germany, Easter bunnies became popular in edible form . . . pastry and sugar."

And, of course, in chocolate today. Many persons collect the molds in which these old chocolate bunnies were made in the early days. They are heavy metal resembling pewter.

BUT FOR POSTAL card collectors, it is possible to specialize in any area or holiday. And there are those who collect only the Easter Bunny card.

By the way, if you would like to color your Easter eggs in the ways that early Christians dyed theirs (and this practice was borrowed from the Persians in the first place!), you can boil them with various flower petals, logwood chips, leaves of spinach or chochineal. Spinach or anemone petals made green, logwood rich purple, cochineal for scarlet and gorse blossom for yellow. (Onion skins, I know from trying, make a nice yellow and tan also.)

Greeting card publishers often went to great lengths to create different cards, even using the real pussy willow bud to form the bodies of tiny chicks. Crosses were made of birch bark, and cards were edged in fringe or silken ribbons. These may be found at flea markets or shows among boxes of greeting cards and can be the start of a delightful hobby, very inexpensively.

The doctor says

Calcium daily need in milk or tablets

My doctor says I have osteoporosis and I have a lot of pain in my back. I fear that I will get a dowager's hump since I have trouble keeping my back straight.

My question is would a shoulder support be beneficial? I am 61 years old.

Also my doctor does not prescribe calcium tablets. He says to drink a quart of milk a day which is not always convenient, especially while I am at work or gone from home.

The purpose of drinking the milk is to give you 1000 to 1200 milligrams of calcium a day. If you are not going to drink the quart of milk or use an equivalent amount of cottage cheese, then you should take calcium tablets. Remember the rule that you need to get at least 1000 milligrams of calcium a day. It doesn't matter how.

It is not always convenient to drink milk and some people can't tolerate it. Others want to use a limited calorie budget for other foods. You can get some suitable calcium tablets at your local drug store and if you are in doubt about which ones, I'm sure your pharmacist will be glad to help you.

I'm not very enthusiastic about a shoulder support. Why? Because splints and supports do the work your muscles should be doing. They allow your muscles to grow weaker and make you dependent upon the support. I would prefer that you be on a program of exercise to strengthen the muscles between your shoulder blades. These are mostly the type of movement a swimmer uses for a backstroke.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening, to give you more information on what osteoporosis is and what you can do in terms of diet and exercise to help yourself. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

I've had mild heart trouble for several years. Frequently I read that organ meats are bad for the heart. In whay way and why? I keep my weight down and walk two miles daily. Also I quit smoking to save my health.

Wild game is one of my favorite meats. Is it true that it generates more body heat than other meats?

The concern about heart patients eating too much organ meat is that many of them contain large amounts of cholesterol. Fatty-cholesterol deposits in arteries is the usual cause of heart trouble in our society.

Brains contain more cholesterol, ounce for ounce, than almost any other food. Fortunately few people eat many brains. Liver contains 300 milligrams in a three-and-a-half ounce (100 gram) serving, but it is low in fat.

Sweetbreads are rich in cholesterol and fats. Tongue is fatty. Lean heart muscle is acceptable but it is muscle rather than glandular tissue.

Limit your cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day. Since there is some cholesterol in read meat, fish, poultry and dairy products, it is best to save your daily budget for these essential items in your daily diet.

There is no important difference in wild game and domestic animals other than the relative fat content of the carcass. Wild game tends to be leaner.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally, but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Crease hard to remove in polyester garments

Dear Dorothy: I recently bought two pantsuits and ripped out the shaping darts in the backs of the two jackets. Now I can't get the lines (where the darts were) out. I've sponged and dried and then rinsed the jackets but the lines are still there. The stitches don't show — just the creases. Does that make sense? Is there any way to get the creases out of these 100 per cent machine-washable polyester garments? — Harri Terry

You have to remember you are fighting polyester's great advantage — holding a crease. There are two methods you may try which may make the material "forget" the original lines. One is to dampen a sponge in white vinegar and rub it along the crease, then iron it dry. It may take several dampenings and ironings. The other method is to put the garment inside out on the ironing board and spray the let-out seam heavily with either spray starch or spray sizing, then press with the steam iron set at the temperature designated for the fabric. Here, too, more than one application may be necessary. I'd like to see you win this one. Do let us know.

Dear Dorothy: My nephew takes dried eggs along on his camping trips. Are they safe in cooking? — Yovonne Kegel

This is probably the one way eggs can be transported long distances — what with probably no refrigeration at the other end, either. If they are thoroughly cooked or used in baking, there's not a thing to worry about.

Dear Dorothy: What can I do with a crack that has appeared on the linoleum between the kitchen and breakfast room? — Maynard Clipper

Be patient, The change in weather will bring it back together. Contraction and expansion are with us all the time.

Pavilion Players present 'Lady on Rocks' April 20

"Lady on the Rocks," a dramatization of the problems of alcoholism, will be presented by the Pavilion Players Wednesday, April 20, at 8 p.m. at Our Saviour's Methodist Church, 611 Golf Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The performance is jointly sponsored by the United Methodist Women of Our Saviour's and the alcoholic treatment unit at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. The public is invited; there is no admission charge.

The drama, written by Elizabeth Blake for Plays for Living, was commissioned by the National Council on Alcoholism to help develop an understanding of the disease of alcoholism. It portrays a woman's problem, her family's recognition of her problem, and how it affects her, her husband and her teen-age son.

"Lady on the Rocks" is presented as a community service by Alexian Brothers Medical Center, with the Pavilion Players, a group of volunteer actors and actresses, donating their time and talent to the project.

Alternative to common birth control methods

by JAMES J. DOYLE

An obstetrician-gynecologist says there is a sure and safe method of birth control that does not require contraceptive devices or the pill.

Dr. Victoria Georges Hufnagel of Cedars-Sinai Hospital, Los Angeles, said the method relies on the body's natural safeguards against pregnancy.

She said the technique is totally unrelated to the so-called rhythm method but instead is based on the fact that conception is possible only during a few days each month. During the rest of the time natural barriers make impregnation impossible.

"Further, the few days during which a woman is fertile can easily be recognized by certain clearcut external changes."

THE CHANGES show up in bodily secretions, specifically cervical mucus. The secretion, which a woman can test for daily, changes slowly during the month, becoming thin during the period of ovulation and thick during infertile periods.

"Under an electron microscope," Dr. Hufnagel said, "it can be seen to form a natural barrier. It actually prevents fertilization."

"We've known about it for some time," she said, "But many doctors, including gynecologists, don't know enough about it."

One big problem, however, is that the method requires a period of abstinence of six to eight days, said Dr. Gabriel Bialy, head of the contraceptive branch at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in Washington.

HE SAID THERE is a paucity of statistics, but the data that are available suggest the natural family planning method is 95 to 98 per cent effective if followed accurately by couples.

The method, known since 1970, is being taught to 154 couples at the Cedars-Sinai's Natural Family Planning Center in a project that got underway last year.

The program, funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's child health institute,is the only one in the country. The only other program, also administered by Cedars-Sinai, is being conducted in Bogata, Colombia.

The effort is aimed at gathering the data necessary to confirm its effectiveness and to determine how attractive the technique is to the public. Bialy said the method has its opponents as well as proponents.

"Quite plainly, HEW wanted a method which did not rely on drugs or implanted devices," Dr. Hufnagel said, "but rather upon one's own physiological dynamics.

"At about the same time, the United Nation's World Health Organization also recognized the urgent need for safer birth control methods that would not meet cultural resistance, and it made a similar commitment."

But Dr. Hufnagel, a resident physician in obstetrics and gynecology, said she expects resistance and slow progress in helping women understand their own bodies well enough to make the program work.

"There is a certain cultural stigma about learning to be in touch with your body," she said.

DuPont ZE PEL forms an invisible shield on the carpet which keeps dirt from lodging itself within the carpet fibers. Even mud doesn't seep in, and drys on the surface. Since dirt tends to settle on the top of the carpet, it can be easily vacuumed away. Less soil clings to the ZE PEL treated carpet, so your carpet won't need its first shampoo until much later than unprotected carpet.

Decoupage egg for Easter

Judy Harper

Traditional crafts

The Easter season always brings the egg to our attention. The egg is a symbol of spring, rebirth, new life and perfection — and seasonal decorative accessories based on the egg form can be enjoyed all year.

Such an ornament is the illustrated ceramic egg, decorated with decoupage and an antique crackle finish. The egg also could be painted and personalized before adding the finish.

To begin, you will need a ceramic egg, which probably will have to be purchased at a ceramic shop. (This would be a good time to acquaint yourself with a new hobby, if you haven't already tried ceramics.)

You will first need to clean the greenare egg, which involves sanding off the seam ridge and polishing off dust. Then have it fired to bisque, and you are ready to take it home for decoration.

THE EGG FIRST must be coated with two thin layers of acrylic background paint — or enough to cover. Let it dry thoroughly.

Then cut out a floral spray or the desired subject matter with small, sharp decoupage scissors. Greeting cards are an excellent source of designs for egg decoupage.

Glue on your cutout very neatly and carefully with white craft glue, thinned with a little water. Be sure the egg is glued tightly and that air bubbles are pushed out. Clean off excess glue with a damp cloth.

When this has dried completely, begin your antique crackle finish as follows:

Brush on two rather heavy coats of "Decal-it," (available at craft and hobby stores). This will dry slowly and will develop invisible hairline cracks as it dries.

When ready, apply the antique stain, brushing on and then wiping off with a soft cloth. You should now be able to see the crackle in the finish.

Complete the project by spraying on a good decoupage finish.

AN ALTERNATIVE you might try is a porcelain-like finish made with white craft glue, slightly thinned with water.

Apply the glue with your fingers in about 10 successive coats, letting it dry to transparency between coats.

Apply your cutout at this point, and then apply two or three more coats of glue. Let it dry thoroughly, and then coat with your favorite decoupage finish — either high-gloss or matte, whichever you prefer.

If would suggest using one of the quick drying acrylic sprays.

Your finished decorated egg may now be used framed in a shadow box, as a paperweight or simply as a decorative ornament.

Homicides up

An Extension family life specialist here blames a change in the average American's responsibility perspective for the rapidly increasing United States homicide rate.

Ronald T. Daly of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln said the national homicide rate has doubled since 1965. In the past, he said, Americans blamed themselves for economic or family problems, where now they hold that government and society are responsible for their jobs, educations, the better life. He said this change has been linked to the rising homicide rate, with one out of every three murderers related to their victims.

CANCER DETECTION
HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood presure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 Issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois (Near Woodfield Mall.) Master Charge accepted. Telephone (312) 885-1360.

Diane Mermigas

Bixby tries to say something in programs

From the moment he gives you a hearty handshake, you know that Bill Bixby is a man who delights in turning his unleashed energy and deep feelings into meaningful entertainment.

He's a fit and friendly man who talks in sweeping, enthusiastic tones. He leans across the table and peers directly into your eyes when trying to make a point.

He leans back in a chair, comfortable just to be talking about the lady in his life, his young son, his work on stage and what he likes about television.

HE IS STARRING through May 8 with his wife Brenda Benet in the Marriott Lincolnshire Resort theater production of "Send Me No Flowers."

He believes that his past television efforts — "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," "The Magician," "Rich Man, Poor Man," "Once Upon a Classic" and "Steambath" have all been social commentaries that have given people a little better insight into themselves.

He is just bustling with ideas on what the future can hold and what new projects he can bring to the small screen via his acting and directing talents.

He has completed a pilot series for NBC with Barbara Feldon entitled "The Natural Look on Broadway" which is about a couple that tries to make their marriage work after each has achieved professional success.

AFTER FOUR YEARS of planning, Bixby, songwriter Paul Williams and Chicago author Gerald DePago are working on a script entitled "Arthur Among the Animals" which Bixby calls "a humorous and touching look at the human race."

"I don't want to make just commercial television. I want these shows to be something special," Bixby says.

" 'Eddie's Father' was an emotional show, 'The Magician' was theatrical and 'Steambath' was intellectual. They were each something different. That's what I want, to keep a diversity in my work," he said.

Bixby says he gets mail from all over the world where reruns of "The Magician" are shown. Viewers are still engrossed in the visual effects of the show and want to know if the tricks are real.

"They are," he said. "I respect the television audience and know that television has trained them to be sophisticated about what they see. They don't want camera tricks. They want the real thing and so, that's what we gave them in that show," Bixby said.

WHEREVER HE IS VISITING or performing, parents come up to Bixby to tell him they still enjoy reruns of "The Courtship of Eddie's Father."

"They tell me how the show has brought them closer together with their children and how it has taught them how to share. I am just thrilled when I hear that because that means that I have reached out and touched the people," he said.

"It is a privilege being able to make a living that way and I can't take it for granted," he said.

Bixby says he's a man who has the best of everything right now. The whole family spends more time together when he and his wife are appearing in the same play. He faces the challenge each night of making an audience walk away from the play, feeling they have gotten more than their money's worth.

HE'S WORKING ON four television projects including a movie, "Earthworm," which he'd like to star in and direct. There is room for his ideas now on network television, he says, because they are constantly in search of something new and different. "Success means being able to do only the projects you really want to."

Bixby is an actor with a fury of ideas and creative vibrations constantly in search of a new outlet.

"I am a hyperactive person, but if I am the hurricane then my wife is the eye of the storm. She is my peace and it's because of the beautiful people around me, like her, that I can carry out my plans," he said.

BILL BIXBY

TV NOTES:

In last week's top ten shows, "Laverne and Shirley" beat the first part of the film "Jesus of Nazareth" for first place. The biblical epic took a second, "Happy Days" came in third and the Oscars show came in fourth place. The rest of the top 10 ending the week of April 3 is predictable except "Hawaii Five-O" made another showing in the elite list like it did several weeks ago — this time in eighth place. To complete the list: "Barney Miller" came in fifth, "M*A*S*H" came in sixth, "Three's Company" came in seventh, "Barnaby Jones" came in ninth and "Welcome Back, Kotter" tenth.

This season to date, ABC remains on top of the ratings with 21.8 per cent of the audience. CBS trails with 18.7 per cent, and NBC has 18.2 per cent.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- The White Sox open their season today in a game with the Blue Jays in Toronto. WMAQ-AM will begin its broadcast of the game at 12:30 p.m. with play-by-play announcers Harry Caray, Lorn Brown, Mary Shane and ex-major league star Jimmy Piersall.
- The Cubs open their season today in Chicago against the New York Mets. Channel 9 begins its coverage of the game at 1:30 p.m. with veteran sportscaster Jack ("Hey! Hey!") Brickhouse doing the play-by-play.
- Lavina Cox, first runner-up in last year's Miss America Pageant, will play a cameo role in the ABC daytime serial "All My Children" at noon today on Channel 7.
- "The Bugs Bunny Easter Special" at 7 p.m. today on Channel 2 offers viewers scenes from old-time Warner Bros. cartoons.
- "People's Command Performance: 1977" at 8 p.m. today on Channel 2 features Bernadette Peters and George Burns introducing performances by favorite show-biz personalities selected in a public-opinion survey.
- On tonight's episode of "Nova" at 8 p.m. on Channel 11, Robert Redford narrates "The Wolf Equation," a study of wolves in the Alaskan Northwest.
- Pop singer Melissa Manchester demonstrates her vocal versatility on "Soundstage" at 9 p.m. today on Channel 11. Her performance will be stereo simulcast on WXRT (93 FM).
- "The Geraldo Rivera Program" at 10:30 p.m. today on Channel 7 will feature superstars Jane Fonda, Henry Winkler, Kate Jackson and Jaclyn Smith.

Kids' high-fat diet hikes heart attack risk: doctor

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A pediatrician says children who develop a high cholesterol level and retain it as an adult run a five to six times greater risk of heart attack or stroke.

And Dr. Charles Glueck, professor of pediatrics and medicine at the University of Cincinnati, said there is evidence suggesting a national campaign to urge less fats in the diets of children might have beneficial long-term effects.

But the medical community, he said, is sharply split on the advisability of such a population-wide move.

RESEARCH ON the subject — only seven years old — hasn't gone far enough to show definitely whether such diet manipulation and whether the use of cholesterol-lowering drugs can prevent future high risks, Glueck said.

The subject came up at a recent symposium on nutrition and cardiovascular disease sponsored by the American Heart Assn.

The heart association already recommends low-fat diets for adults.

Glueck said within the past five years many pediatricians routinely have been checking the levels of cholesterol in the blood of their young patients and "I recommend that."

BUT HE SAID there is "sharp and acrimonious debate in the medical profession over the suggestion that we take the children and change their diet, and reduce the cholesterol level to normal, and if that were maintained over time, whether this could be beneficial to the child."

Glueck said there is not yet enough evidence to show that nutritional changes in adult diets is successful, and many researchers "want the 'smoking-gun' evidence."

Opponents of the idea of urging a change in the diets of American children say they worry about the unanticipated side effects.

Glueck responds by saying there is no evidence that such diet modification would be harmful.

HE SUGGESTED children of adults who have a record of heart disease before the age of 50 should be routinely checked. By changing diet and adding medicines, the pediatrician said, "we can normalize the cholesterol level in 60 per cent of the cases."

About one in every 200 children is born with an inherited propensity for high cholesterol levels, Glueck said, and these can be readily identified and given low-cholesterol diets.

In addition to those who inherit the problem, he said two to six per cent of the nation's children acquire a cholesterol level in excess of what would be normal for an adult.

The debate, however, may all be for nothing, Glueck said. "If we're successful in getting adults to change their diets and they follow it, it inevitably will change the children. No mother is going to cook separate meals for the children."

Rev. Solanus Casey

by THEODORE ILIFF

DETROIT (UPI) — He was a prison guard, logger, trolley conductor, rabid baseball fan and barely tolerable fiddler. But to thousands of devoted followers the Rev. Solanus Casey was also a saint.

Cardinal John Dearden, archbishop of Detroit, has endorsed a 20-year campaign for Roman Catholic canonization of the priest, partly because of remarkable healing powers that even occurred on the telephone.

Brother Leo Wollenweber, charged with gathering evidence of sainthood, now works in aging St. Bonaventure Capucin Monastery in a depressing east side Detroit neighborhood, where Father Solanus drew his most avid following.

TO BROTHER LEO, Father Solanus represents a chance for the church to honor a man of the contemporary world — unlike the many saints whose loosely documented lives often approach mythology and have little inspirational value for modern Catholics.

"When a saint comes from our own time, it's easier to relate to him than a saint of several hundred years ago," Brother Leo said with an easy smile framed by a gray moustache and full goatee similar to that of his favorite subject.

But Brother Leo sprinkles any discussion of miracles with quick reminders that Father Solanus, who was 87 when he died in 1957, was flesh and blood, not a haloed apparition with unearthly powers.

Father Solanus was born Bernard Casey in Prescott Wis., in 1870. His Irish immigrant parents had nine other sons and six daughters.

AFTER A CHILDHOOD of strict rural life, he became a prison guard at 16 in Stillwater, Minn., where he met members of the Younger Brothers and the Jesse James gang. Later, he was a logger and one of the first conductors on an electric trolley.

His boyhood ambition, however, led him to a Milwaukee seminary when he was 21. He grappled with instruction given in German and barely endured rigorous studies to become a member of the Capucin order in Detroit in 1898. He was ordained in 1904.

Although he worked in New York, Indiana and his native Wisconsin, he established his reputation in the years counseling, consoling and ministering in the impoverished area around the St. Bonaventure monastery. Demands for his time occasionally stretched the limits of endurance or propriety.

"One time he was late and we had guests for dinner," said Brother Ignatius Milne. "As he walked in, his superior leaned over to a guest and said, 'Have you met the late Father Solanus?'

"SOME BROTHERS could become quite impatient with him. But time left him when he was helping people. Father never hurried anyone."

Toward the end of his life, with health failing, his superiors moved him to Huntington, Ind., to get away from the crowds seeking his help. But the situation improved little. He spent his last two years in Detroit.

His life, however, was not monopolized by religious duties. When he was young, the 10 boys in the family had their own baseball team, and he became a devout baseball fan.

"Because of his background," Brother Leo said, "he always had an interest in farming."

ONE OF HIS FEW pastimes was music, specifically a violin. While listeners tried to conceal their anguish, the father would occasionally saw away with scratchy, squeaky renditions of old country standbys.

"He played the violin rather badly, I'm afraid to say," said Brother Leo with some embarrassment. "He mostly played things like 'Turkey in the Straw,' but usually it was by himself."

Despite his renown, he disliked obsequious attention.

Brother Ignatius remembered when a fawning dowager met the father and gushed about how everyone in town was talking about him. Drawing on his prison guard days, Father Solanus quietly replied without expression, "They used to talk about Jesse James, too."

But sainthood is not bestowed for anecdotes.

THE BROTHERS and members of the Father Solanus Guild labor daily to add to information from 200 persons documenting reports of miracles attributed to Father Solanus' intercession.

One of the most famous cases involves a 12-year-old Detroit boy who was stricken with polio in 1935. A highly respected doctor ordered the youth to a hospital. Father Solanus told the family to keep the boy home, adding, "He will be all right."

The next day the angry doctor barged into the home and found the boy had recovered.

"His reputation was well known," Brother Ignatius said. "You can't go anywhere without someone knowing him or at least recognizing the name."

That fact was verified at his funera in 1957. A crowd of 20,000 jammed the church and the surrounding neighborhood.

Cardinal Dearden, through priests in parishes across the nation, has asked that anything written of the father be sent to Brother Leo. Dearden then will forward the written evidence to the Sacred Congregation for Causes of Sainthood in Rome.

When that body approves the evidence, another round of investigations will follow involving interviews of witnesses to miracles.

If that step is successful, the beleaguered Detroit east side — famous in recent years for little more than crime and misery — will have the balancing effect of claiming a saint of its own.

HE WAS A PRISON guard, trolley conductor, baseball fan and a barely tolerable fiddler. To thousands of devoted followers, the Rev. Solanus Casey was also a saint. The Archbishop of Detroit has endorsed a 20-year campaign for Roman Catholic canonization of the priest who lived from 1870 to 1957, and who is said to have possessed healing power that occurred even on the telephone. Here Father Solanus is shown indulging in a bit of fiddle playing.

Art 'not centralized,' Gilot says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Art orbited around Paris in the 1950s, then New York in the 1960s, but French expressionist painter Francois Gilot says art now is spreading to all parts of the world without a discernible center.

"Art is not in one specific place — it's not centralized," she said. "In the 50s it was Paris and the 60s New York. Now there is a little everywhere."

Mme. Gilot, a student of Henri Matisse and mistress of Pablo Picasso, was in New Orleans for a showing at a French Quarter gallery — her fourth showing in the city.

She said she is working on a collection of lithographs at the Tamarind Institute at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque where she is an artist in residence.

"For a young artist, it is a good section of the country to go. They used to go to New York, but I feel the excitement now in California — where there is a lot happening — New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado," she said.

Mme. Gilot took up art when the Nazi invasion of France in World War II forced her to abandon plans to be an international lawyer.

"I thought in three seeks, six weeks, two months I might be dead s I did what I wanted to do," she said. "Modern artists were banned since the Nazis considered them decadent so young artists would go to their studios to see what they were doing. Under that pressure it kind of brought us all together."

The result was a Paris expressionist style of painting. Mme. Gilot acknowledged she learned much from her friendship with Matisse and her years with Picasso, but said her style is her own.

"In the European school of art we have our own personalities," she said. "From a distance it may look as one. To Europeans in the U.S., they may have the same feeling the paintings look alike.

"There are trends in art and that doesn't mean we influence one another — just the trend. In that way we may look alike."

Besides her painting and law studies, Mme. Gilot also earned a degree in English literature from Oxford and a philosophy degree from the Sorbonne. She wrote "Life with Picasso" in the early 1960's and has published several poems. She and her husband, polio vaccine pioneer Dr. Jonas Salk, live in LaJolla, Calif.
